CITY SOLICITOR STREETS GUARDED A TRIPLE TRAGEDY

Says Eight Hour Law Applies to Engineer at City Farm

Some time ago the board of charities received a communication from Inspector Roche of the district police, calling attention to the fact that an engineer employed at the Chelmsford Street hospital was working more than eight hours a day and that the statute providing for an eight-hour day applied to the engineer in question.

The board decided to get the opinion of the city solicitor in the matter and in his letter asking for an opinion the chairman of the board, Dr. James J. McCarthy, suggested to City Solicitor Duncan that the statute in this particular case was a bit ambiguous, and to this the city solicitor agrees.

Mr. Duncan, however, is of the opinion that the engineer at the Chelmsford Street hospital is not exempt from the provisions of the law. His opinion is as follows:

Office of City Solicitor,
Lowell, Mass., Nov. 1, 1910.
Board of Charities, Lowell, Mass.
Gentlemen: I have your communication of Oct. 28th, asking for a construction of Section 39 of Chapter 514 of the Acts of 1909, and its application to the engineer at the Lowell Chelmsford Street hospital.

Section 37 of said chapter provides that "eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen and mechanics, now or hereafter employed by or on behalf of the commonwealth, or of any county therein, or of any city or town which prior to the 25th day of June in the year 1907 had accepted the provisions of Section 29 of Chapter 106 of the Revised Laws." Said section further provides that "engineers" shall be considered "mechanics" within the meaning of the section.

By Section 39 of said chapter the provisions of Section 37 do not apply to persons employed in any state, county or municipal institution, on the farm, or in the care of the grounds, in the stable, in the domestic or kitchen and dining room service, or in store-rooms or offices.

A first glance at the exceptions enumerated in this last section might make it appear that persons employed in state, county or municipal institutions in any capacity were excepted from the provisions of Section 37, and that the expressions "on the farm" or "in the care of the grounds," etc., referred to additional instances where the statute was not to apply.

But my interpretation is, that these latter expressions are merely used in to restrict and modify those which precede them. In other words, to indicate clearly how far the non-application of the "eight hour law" is to extend in reference to public institutions.

I am therefore of the opinion that, since engineers are not among those employees specifically referred to in Section 39 as excepted from the provisions of the law, they must be employed in conformance therewith.

This covers the case of the person referred to in your communication.

Very truly yours,
Wm. W. Duncan,
City Solicitor.

But Refused to Support His Family

CAUGHT BY THE POLICE AND FORCED TO GIVE UP

Brought in For Non-Support With $154 in His Possession—Court Ordered Fund of $100 Turned Over to His Family

A very pitiful case was brought before the attention of Judge Hadley in police court this morning when Edward Tracey was arraigned on a complaint charging him with failing to provide proper support for his wife.

Tracey appeared before the court last week on a similar complaint, and the court after learning the circumstances in connection with the case, ordered Tracey to pay $5 a week to his wife, the first payment to be made last Saturday.

Tracey failed to comply with the order of the court and as a result a capias was issued for his arrest and yesterday he was taken into custody and when searched at the police station it was found that he had $154 in his possession.

When the matter was brought into court this morning and it was explained to Judge Hadley that Tracey had considerable money in his possession and refused to give any of it to his wife, the court ordered that Tracey be fined $100, the money to be paid to the wife.

Liquor Nuisance
Osmond L. Field pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with keeping a liquor nuisance. Upon promising to do better in the future the court imposed the nominal fine, $50.

Drunken Offenders
Thomas F. McGovern has been hanging around the South common for the past several weeks, according to the testimony of Patrolman Cogger. McGovern was charged with being drunk and admitted the allegation. After the patrolman had testified the court sentenced McGovern to two months in jail.

Thomas Bond, who was charged with being drunk, promised to do better in the future and the court feeling that there was a chance for the man to reform gave him a suspended sentence of four months in jail and placed him in the hands of the probation officer for one year.

John A. Smith was given a direct sentence to the state farm.

Serious Offense
James C. Burns and Mary C. Austin were found guilty of a statutory offense and were sentenced to six months in jail.

FUNERALS

HARRIS—The funeral of Mrs. Abbie S. Harris took place yesterday afternoon from her residence, 38 Smith street. The services were conducted by Rev. Julius P. West, pastor of the Highland M. E. church. Services were also held by the James A. Garfield Woman's Relief Corps, 33. Appropriate selections were sung by Mrs. Hallie Whitney. The bearers were Daniel W. Parker, Herbert H. Russell, George A. Cheney and William A. Smith. Burial was in the Edson cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George W. Healey.

HERBERT—The funeral of Alfred Herbert took place yesterday from his home, 6 Arthur avenue, with solemn funeral services at 3 o'clock at St. Jean Baptiste church. Rev. Fr. Wattle, Berneche and Onelle, O. M. I., officiated. The choir sang Perreault's mass, Dr. Calise leading, and Arthur J. Mariel playing the organ. The bear-

Express Drivers' Strike in New York May Spread

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Police measures today were more comprehensive than ever for the preservation of order in the strike of several thousand express company employees which has practically tied up express traffic through this city for several days past.

Police officers and special guards swarmed about the danger points at express company offices and stables where hundreds of strikebreakers have been gathered and the city authorities were prepared they said, to give wagons sent out all needed protection.

Possible results were looked for today from the conference held by Governor Fort of New Jersey last yesterday with representatives of the strikers in Jersey City and later with express company officials in Manhattan. It was stated that the New Jersey executive made known to the company officials what the strikers demanded were. While no official statement on the result of the conference could be had it was understood that all but one of the companies were willing to consider the chief demand of the strikers—recognition of their union.

Companies represented at the conference, it was said, were the United States, Adams, American, Wells Fargo and National. Practically all the express lines of the city are now in the hands of the ground crew by the walkout including Jersey City, Hoboken and other territory in the metropolitan district. Wagons of the companies are moving in Manhattan only through specially guarded streets and avenues designated by the police. It was reported this morning that the department store drivers would be called out today in aid of the express men.

The National Civic Federation looked over the evidence brought about a view of possible bringing about an amicable agreement between the expressmen and the various companies affected.

John Mitchell, a member of the executive council, came to this city on an early train and went at once to the office of the federation. There he held a long conference with several of the federation officers, discussing at length the strike troubles.

Mr. Mitchell stated that he was not conversant enough with the question at stake to comment in any way at present.

In a Fall River Home Was Narrowly Averted

FALL RIVER, Nov. 1.—A triple tragedy was narrowly averted in a tenement at 207 John street yesterday when James Powers, of 449 4th street was arrested, charged with assault and battery on his wife Mary and murderous assault on his brother-in-law, Michael Donovan.

Powers was convicted a short time ago of assault on his wife and sentenced to the house of correction. Since then she has not been living with him.

Yesterday morning, it is alleged, Powers stood at the corner of John and Morgan streets to intercept his wife on her way to work in the mill, and as she attempted to pass him he struck her. There were several persons near at the time and Powers ran off when he saw them.

Mrs. Powers was not able to go to the mill and returned home. The attention of the police was called to the case and they went searching for Powers. He had eluded the police, and about 11 o'clock started for the home of his wife at 207 John street.

Just as the officers reached the house they heard a revolver shot.

Rushing into the tenement the policeman saw Powers and Michael Donovan in tight embrace. Over in a corner stood Mrs. Powers, while two neighbors were on the verge of collapse in another corner. Powers, right hand gripped a revolver in his right hand and Donovan was struggling with him for possession of it. Prompt action was necessary and Officer Heffernan clubbed Powers into submission.

It was learned by the police that Powers entered the tenement and shouting to his wife told her to throw up her hands. At the same time giving a similar command to his brother-in-law. In another instant the possible tragedy was averted, for Powers turned his head enough to allow Donovan to jump upon him and the struggle for the revolver ensued, ending with the arrival of the police.

The police then took Powers to the police station where he was held. His wife first, then his brother-in-law and then shoot himself. An examination of the revolver showed that one cartridge had been exploded and the other four chambers were filled.

A WORLD'S RECORD

BEIMONT PARK, L. I., Nov. 1.—America's first international aviation meet closed last night with a world record for altitude made by Ralph Johnstone of the Wright camp, flying a special Wright machine constructed for high climbing.

Johnstone's height as announced unofficially when he came down at dark was 9714 feet. "The best previous record was 9156 feet, made at Moulton, France, a few weeks ago," by Henry Myndall, a Hollander. Flying a Farmington biplane, Johnstone won his high flight a special prize of $15000. The machine in which Johnstone made his record was brought to this meet by the Wright brothers for the purpose which was accomplished yesterday. It is much smaller than any of the regulation Wright machines, having only 180 square feet of wing surface. Its engine was a 30 horse power, four cylinder, and its special climbing ability was due in a large degree to extra long wing tips.

The Wright brothers had figured on correlating this record and prize and at the proper moment trotted out their little machine and their best climber went after the record and brought it down in the most matter of fact manner imaginable. Johnstone ascended at 3.31, one minute after the bomb had gone off for the special altitude contest. He was dressed for cold climbing, his costume consisting of long rubber leggings, leather coat below the hips, a leather cap coming well down to the back of the neck, a leather mask that covered his face, except for eyes, nose, and yellow glass goggles.

Last Words of Instruction
When Johnstone had climbed into his seat, Wright had a last word with him, giving him instructions on the control of the machine, in which Johnstone had never been before.

The young man listened attentively to his master, touched a lever, a switch and a few wires and was ready to start. The propeller had been started. Wilbur Wright, dressed like his brother in ministerial black and a derby, came up and spoke to the young aviator, shouting a few words of farewell counsel.

Before the brothers stepped aside, Johnstone waved his hand in signal, the men at the tail of the machine let go their hold and the little climber started up.

Johnstone flew toward the south, going over the grandstand. At a height of about 500 feet he began to turn, and thenceforward he went up and up in steady spirals for half an hour, his machine at last appearing a mere fleck of white and silver against the pale blue of a cloudless sky.

Finally, the crowd on the ground completely lost track of the machine and turned its attention to other matters. There was enough to engage its attention. Following Johnstone by a few minutes young J. Armstrong Drexel of Philadelphia ascended in his Bleriot monoplane also out for the grand prize in altitude. He also spiraled up into the blue until he was a smudge of dun brown on the sky. Then he, too, was forgotten.

In the rose glow of twilight Johnstone came down in a swift descent that made the crowd about the field gasp. It seemed as if he were dropping headlong to earth. But he was coming in graceful, short spirals. This ended with a steep volplane to the field, where he alighted as easily as if he had been up only five minutes.

Biting Cold
An official automobile dashed across the field and came back with Johnstone's barograph. Only a glance at it was needed to show that the plucky young driver had brought in altitude record.

Johnstone had been in the air an hour and a half. On being interviewed, he said he had found it easy climbing for the first mile and a half. He had met very little wind and hardly any swirls. After he had passed an altitude of 8,000 feet, he indicated on a small aneroid barometer he was strapped to his wrist, he had very hard work getting higher, owing to the rarity of the atmosphere and the diminished lifting power of his planes.

He kept on going until he found that his gasoline was running low, and guessing on how much he would need to take him to earth, at last turned downward. As he had never before been in one of the small machines he came down in moderate spirals until near the earth. At that he was but three minutes in descending a mile.

He said his worst experience in the flight was with the cold. In spite of his armor it was biting. He had no trouble in breathing at the high altitude, but he was perfectly numb when the machine reached the ground, and hardly able to walk for a few minutes after alighting.

Drexel Forced to Descend
After Johnstone's return many anxious eyes were turned up to the evening sky in quest of a first glimpse of Drexel. One the old a string of red cotton lights were burning, and in their ghastly glare the dark wings of the gliding monoplane could at last be seen, continuing in a circle.

Drexel's barograph showed an altitude attained of 8370 feet, a height that a few months ago would have constituted a world's record, and a figure far in excess of that credited to the young man's flight at Lancaster, Scotland, a few months ago.

Drexel on alighting said his greatest trouble was from nausea. "I was knocked about up there," a frightened manner," he said, "and that with the thin air made me sick. So I had to descend."

Mr. Harry Dufrough has gone to New York and New Jersey for a two weeks' vacation.

GENERAL ALARM

Caused $800 Loss

HAVERHILL, Nov. 1.—A loss of $800 was caused by fire on Pilling street, the most thickly populated section of the city, late yesterday afternoon. Every available piece of apparatus in the city was called out and the firemen worked for an hour before the flames were under control. The house where the fire was situated on the summit of Mt. Washington and the flames could be seen for miles. Neither Rose Bernstein nor the Stapham, occupants of the house, could account for the origin of the fire, which started in the attic and swept down through the building, gutting the upper story, while the lower floor was badly damaged by water and smoke.

While returning from the fire several firemen on a ladder truck narrowly escaped injury, a job team was in collision with the truck on Currier st. No damage resulted except a pole being broken.

JUDGE BALDWIN

Sends Tart Reply to Roosevelt's
Letter on Labor Legislation

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—Judge Simeon E. Baldwin, democratic nominee for governor, sent a letter yesterday to former President Roosevelt in reply to the recent letter of the latter, relating to Judge Baldwin's stand on certain labor legislation. The letter is dated at New Haven, Oct. 31, and is in part as follows:

"I have received your two answers (both undated) to my letter of Oct. 24, one written before you received it, and the other written after you had read it."

"Apparently you have misunderstood the point of my communication. In that, I referred to the fact that in a public address in New Hampshire you had charged me with 'holding a certain view of a point of law. I then stated that I did not hold that view and never had, and requested that you retract the charge."

"In your first undated letter, you state that your recollection of a certain passage in your address is that you mentioned that the democratic candidate for governor of Connecticut occupied a retrogressive attitude as to the rights of legislative bodies to interfere with what you regard as the utterly misallied liberty of laboring men and women to contract for the performance of work under conditions which jeopardized their welfare and their lives and limbs; and that the republican party, on the contrary, stood for what you regard as the only proper progressive attitude, which is that it is not competent for the state to interfere with the freedom of a man, who may be driven by dire need to accept any employment, in spite of the conditions imposed upon his acceptance, to bind himself or be bound in any way by any action of his, not to be compensated, if his wealth is damaged, or if he loses life or limb in that occupation."

"You then remark that I said in my letter to you of Oct. 24, as printed, that the view which you thus stated as that of the republican party would be opposed to the settled principles of law, and that no competent lawyer could or would take it, and that to ascribe such a position to me was calumnious."

How to Stop Drinking

It was formerly customary for the habitual drinker to take the pledge regularly, sometimes once a year, and sometimes in every fit of remorse that followed his debauches, and then—break it.

But now it is gradually dawning on the world that pledges do not stop drunkenness. The nervous system of the habitual drinker is diseased and he must have treatment that will cure this condition. which this same fellow servant rule was relied upon. We applied it, as we were bound to do but with the observation that it was too freely established as law, by a multitude of decisions, to be now reversed or seriously modified by any exercise of the power vested in courts."

"In order to emphasize this intimation that the rule was followed because it was settled law, a note was appended to the opinion, signed by the initials of the justice who wrote it, containing these statements, among others: 'But the evil (of the co-employee rule) is too deep seated to be remedied by judicial action; it needs radical treatment through wise legislation.'"

"No change having been made since then by the legislation of Connecticut, the rule was necessarily applied in the Hoxie case. Subsequently, and on account of that decision, the federal law was altered so as to make it, in terms, applicable to actions in the state courts."

"Hoping that this letter may remove any misunderstanding of my request, and that you will conclude, that, under the circumstances, it is not an unreasonable one, I am

TAMMANY HALL

BRUNT OF AN ATTACK BY COL. ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Theodore Roosevelt swept almost from end to end of Manhattan last night, delivering nine speeches in behalf of Henry H. Stimson, the republican nominee for governor. At the nine stops, he spoke fifteen minutes each, following close on the train of Mr. Stimson, who had preceded him with an equal number of brief campaign talks. Both made Tammany Hall the brunt of attack.

In his first address, in the heart of the east side, Mr. Stimson flung an answer to the democratic charge of republican responsibility for the high cost of living.

"I understand," he said, "that our opponents are placarding the east side with stories of the high cost of living and attributing the increased price to the republican party. The cost of living is governed by causes not altogether political, but by the laws of supply and demand. The workmen of London, Paris and Berlin are having the same complaint about high prices as in this country."

Continuing Mr. Stimson reviewed his record as a procurer of law-breaking corporations while United States district attorney. He concluded this phase of the address with an attack on John A. Dix, his opponent and asked the question: "What has Mr. Dix ever done in the way of striking down monopoly?" Just before Col. Roosevelt entered the hall amid a burst of cheers, Mr. Stimson concluded:

"I hear they are telling the people of the east side that Theodore Roosevelt does not care for the people of the east side and their sufferings from the high cost of living. Have they forgotten what he did for the people in the coal strike; in the matter of advocating safety appliances for labor; in the prosecution of the big corporations; for the compensation laws to protect the workingman and to bring him proper compensation when he is injured? I repudiate as false any such attack on him."

Col. Roosevelt was introduced as the "greatest citizen in the world."

"After an opening thrust at Tammany Hall, he said: 'I ask for the support of the men of the east side because we are fighting your fight. We are trying to shape conditions so that every decent man can have the opportunity to show the stuff that is in him, so that any oppressed man may come here and have the chance to bring up himself, and those dependent upon him, under fair and honest treatment.'"

"Tammany Hall is making its appeal to all those wealthy men who seek special privileges, to those wealthy men who try to work their men unjustly, and who are seeking to get advantages to which they are not entitled. We are fighting the worst alliance between crooked politics and crooked business that this state has seen since the days of Tweed."

At the Murray Hill lyceum, 34th street and 2d avenue, Col. Roosevelt said:

"I have not an element of power except the belief of a number of my fellow citizens that I stand for what is decent and straight, and that I want to bring nearer the day when there will be honesty and fair dealing between man and man. My power vanishes when my fellow citizens cease to believe in what is straight and honest. I can fight for you but I cannot gain the victory for you. I can point out the way but you've got to do the fighting yourself. Now is your opportunity to take advantage of it."

Henry W. Taft also spoke at this meeting. The brother of the president said in part: "We cannot be so blind to the fact that some of our republican friends in this city are threatening to vote for Dix in order to eliminate somebody who is not himself running for any office. They seek to defeat the republican state ticket as a means of injuring Mr. Roosevelt's political future. But the consequences of such a defeat would be so far-reaching that they ought to be regarded by every thoughtful republican with the gravest concern because of its effect upon the result of the presidential election in this state in 1912."

At the other meetings Col. Roosevelt was greeted enthusiastically. He attacked Dix and Tammany Hall, praised Stimson, and pleaded for good government and a continuation of the state's progressive policies. The colonel's voice became hoarse before his tour was over, but he stuck it out to the end.

JUDGE PARKER

ADDRESSED DEMOCRATIC RALLY IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—Judge Alton B. Parker of New York came to this city last night to address a democratic rally. Philip Troup, son of the late Alexander Troupe, presided and in introducing the chief speaker, referred to a visit of Judge Parker to Connecticut during the 1904 campaign, when he made the charge that a trust fund was collecting funds from trusts to be turned over to the republican campaign committee for use in New York. Mr. Troup said that Judge Parker was vindicated after election. In his speech after dealing with the trust issue and the increased cost of living, Judge Parker discussed the subject of campaign contributions, referring from correspondence between the late E. H. Harriman and Col. Roosevelt, then president, to support his contention that corporate interests in contributing to campaign funds of the republican party expect to be paid through favorable schedules in the tariff. Mr. Parker made a plea for a federal statute which will compel publicity of campaign contributions before election and a law which will stop any president or public officer from demanding from corporations which are partially under public control, contributions to political parties.

TALKS AGAIN ON THE EIGHT HOUR BILL

BROCKTON, Nov. 1.—The sum and substance of the labor legislation in which Governor Eben S. Draper has been intimately concerned, during his two years in office was related to a large gathering of Brockton voters last night by the governor himself at a rally in Canton hall. Governor Draper explained in full his stand on the eight hour bill which he declared was unnecessary in view of the existing eight hour law. He said he had signed some 25 bills affecting the best interests of labor.

Judge Robert C. Harris discussed protection and the tariff while Congressman G. P. Lawrence declared Massachusetts had the best all round laws of any state in the Union.

The committee also voted to recommend a loan of $5000 for a new auto patrol wagon for the police department and $2000 for the purchase of an automobile for the chief of the fire department.

Heads of departments were on hand to explain their wants. The committee received the order for a loan of $25,000 for a new stable for the health department to next year's government. The sum of $500 for fire alarm boxes at Cashin street and Princeton boulevard and Fourth avenue and Moody street was recommended.

John J. Mullaney, chairman of the board of police, was before the committee to speak of the question of a new auto police patrol for which $5000 had been asked. Mr. Mullaney allowed that an automobile was necessary in order to bring the department right up to date. He said that in the capture of criminals he believed an automobile to be practically indispensable. He said that the horses were getting old and that the department would have to have new horses if the automobile was not forthcoming. He assured the committee that the police department would live within its appropriation with the exception of the amount asked for the purchase of the auto patrol. He believed that in order to properly cover the Highlands, South Lowell and other long distance points an automobile was necessary.

A joint order to borrow $13,000 for two auto patrol wagons and an automobile for the chief, also $300 for two alarm boxes was taken up.

Chief Hosmer's Views

Chief Hosmer said that the auto combinations were required to bring the department up to the required efficiency. He said it was cheaper to buy automobile apparatus than to build new houses. As to an auto for himself, Mr. Hosmer said he wanted something to get him to a fire before it is all out.

"The auto gets to a fire now," he said, "while I am looking up street." He allowed that the purchase of automobile apparatus would be a good investment for the city. In fact, he said, the automobiles were necessary in order to give the Highland and Oakland districts the proper protection. The combination wagons are for High and Branch street engine houses.

Mr. Hosmer thought the automobiles would work all right in the snow. "I think they will go where horses can't go," he said.

Mr. Hosmer said it would be impossible to get the apparatus this year, and in view of that fact Alderman Dexter suggested that perhaps it would be as well to let the matter go over to the first of the year and have the appropriation made at that time.

As to the fire boxes, Mr. Hosmer said they had been petitioned for and he believed they were needed.

The chief also spoke about the boiler in the Central fire station. The state inspector recommended that a new boiler be installed. Mr. Hosmer said that if anything went wrong with the boiler the fire alarm system would be put out of commission. The present boiler is 35 years old.

Members of the park commission were present to discuss the question of a loan of $10,000 for the development of Shedd park.

E. W. Bowditch, landscape architect of Boston, explained the plans that he prepared for Shedd park. He explained how the $10,000 could be expended to best advantage as a starter for the development of the grounds.

Mr. Bowditch said if the money was forthcoming he would make the pond this winter so that the children and others could use it for skating purposes.

Mr. Hosmer said that the purchase of automobiles would mean that the

Hon. John E. Drury

Hon. John E. Drury of the park commission said that Judge Pickman had covered the ground pretty thoroughly and there wasn't much that he could add. Mr. Drury spoke of Fort Hill as a beauty spot. He said there had been more or less criticism as to the money expended at Fort Hill, but the people of Lowell, he said, get a great deal of enjoyment there and the beauty of the place excites the admiration of visitors. Mr. Drury said that while Fort Hill is a beauty spot and commands a splendid view of the city and surroundings it is but a beauty spot and a resting place, but Shedd park will be a place to rest, to sport and to admire.

He told the committee members that by helping along the development of the park by recommending the appropriation asked for they were offering an incentive to others of a philanthropic spirit to do as Mr. Shedd has done. "It strikes me," he said, "that you as representatives of the people can wisely recommend the appropriation asked for."

Supt. Dow

Inspector James Dow of the lands and buildings department was called in and asked relative to the boiler question at the Central fire station. Mr. Dow said that a new boiler was necessary. He also broke the sad news to the committee that he needed about $1500 to bridge over his department for the year, over and above the $900 required for the boiler.

After Mr. Dow had been excused the committee got down to business. The first up was the proposed expenditure of $25,000 for a new stable for the board of health. It was voted to refer the matter to next year's city council.

Then came the question of recommending $5000 for the purchase of an auto patrol for the police department and on motion of Councilman Planagan, the recommendation was voted.

As to the automobile for fire department, Councilman Planagan thought the matter ought to go over to next year's government. He said the machines could not be delivered this winter.

Mr. Planagan said that the purchase of automobiles would mean that the Oaklands would have to go without a fire house and he said there should be a house there. Mr. Planagan moved that it be referred to next year's government. "I am opposed to borrowing any more money this year," he said.

Appropriations Recommended

Councilman Jewett moved that $2000 be allowed for an automobile for Chief Hosmer. It was so voted, Planagan voting against.

Alderman Dexter moved that the committee recommend the adoption of the order for $10,000 for developing Shedd park.

Mr. Shedd has made a magnificent gift to the city, and it seems to me that we ought to show our appreciation," said Alderman Dexter.

The motion became a unanimous vote.

It was voted to draw up an order recommending $300 for a new boiler at the fire station in Middle street.

The question of voting $500 for two new fire alarm boxes came up.

Alderman Smith J. Adams of the fire department committee was present and he informed the committee that the protection of life and property in the vicinity of Cashin street and the Princeton boulevard, and Fourth avenue and Moody street demanded the installation of the two alarms. He said the residents of these localities were remote from any fire alarm at the present time.

The committee voted to recommend the $500.

The committee briefly went over the year's loans and estimated revenues as compared with receipts.

The revenues for moth work did not come up to expectations, the estimate being $5000, while only $1228.19 received up to Oct. 1. It was stated that less work had been done on private property this year than has been the case heretofore.

The total estimated revenues for the year amounted to $411,245, whereas only $240,186.14 had been turned in up to Oct. 1.

The loans to Oct. 1 amounted to $165,400, as follows: Paying streets, $68,000; sewers, $50,000; buildings, $10,000; bridges, $10,000; Hale's brook improvements, $20,400.

FOR SHORTER DAY

Mr. Carroll Defends the Eight Hour Bill

The following letter from William J. Carroll disavows the expediency and justice of reducing the hours of labor in order that money may be overworked and that it may have an opportunity to work. Mr. Carroll argues in favor of the eight hour bill vetoed by Governor Draper.

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 31, 1910.

Dear Sir: A friend of mine, who is an independent in politics annually from Jan. 1st to Sept. 1st inclusive, and a militant republican for the rest of the year, finds cause for considerable comfort in Governor Draper's veto of what he terms "the so-called eight hour bill."

The other day in discussing the matter, he said: "It is up to every sensible man, whether he be a laborer or a capitalist, to stand up in the side of this particular question."

As I seemed to be more or less accurately described by the term "sensible man," I jumped right up in the count, but on second thought, said: "But wait a moment, let us be sure which is the right side, before we proceed to an enumeration."

"Well," says my friend, "the mere fact that an organized body of men demands a law, is no guarantee that it is a demand fit to be granted. In this case it certainly was not. The demand was outrageous."

This took me somewhat by surprise, for I have seen many things upon which my friend has been right, and more than the faculty with which he is apt little Latin phrases in his discussion, it is the impregnability of his logic. So it was with some misgivings that I said, "Perfectly true, but neither demand nor fact prove that the demand is not fit to be granted—in fact is no evidence one way or the other and is, as you yourself may say, argumentum ad hominem. Your conclusion that the demand was outrageous could not be founded upon the fact that it must have been drawn from other facts which you have not seen fit to disclose."

"However," I continued, "I will admit without further argument that if the demand is outrageous, it is not fit to be granted and you may count me as against it, but I am not quite convinced as yet that such is the case."

Taking no notice of my remarks, my independent friend proceeded: "No wonder the governor refused to sign any such bill! If he hadn't vetoed it, the supreme court would presumably have declared it unconstitutional when it was tested, and therefore null and void."

"But, my dear sir," I objected, "you must see as a logician that this is the argumentum ad verendum." Seeing that he didn't like my Latin, I hastened to say by way of conclusion, "Of course if all laws which are unconstitutional are outrageous, and if unconstitutional laws can be no question but that they are outrageous."

But in this particular case there are two objections either of which must prove fatal to the argument, 1st, the proposed law is clearly not unconstitutional, never having been so declared by competent authority, and 2nd, many proposed laws which have been declared unconstitutional are certainly not outrageous, a good example of which is the late lamented income tax law.

With a thinly veiled expression of either pity or contempt for my stupid friend, my friend arose to his feet, and drew from his pocket a small American flag which had hitherto been in the inner left hand pocket of his "tail-coat," but a short distance from his heart, his face alight with patriotic fire and his voice tremulous with emotion, all the while waving the flag, he moved to the front of the hall, and declared as follows to wit:

"The free right of a free-born American workingman to work even a few minutes overtime if he himself wanted to do it, and if necessary or convenient made it desirable, was sought to be denied him."

I feel no shame in confessing that at the time, I failed to notice that this was an exceptionally fine example of the well known material fallacy, argumentum ad populum, and, to use a slang phrase, I fell for it.

The light of day seemed to fade away, the room and all my surroundings vanished into nothingness and I seemed to be borne by invisible hands to times and scenes long since passed and gone. There passed in rapid review before me those mighty events leading up to the establishment of the American nation. I beheld the gradual colonization of the new world, the struggle against Indian and without representation, the Boston tea party, the declaration of independence, the crisis of Valley Forge, Washington crossing the Delaware with the cold cakes of ice on every side threatening to overwhelm Yorktown, victory! 1812. The constitutional struggle in congress culminating in the war for the preservation of the Union and the abolition of chattel slavery. The great industrial development and the prosperity of our glorious country and its glorious inhabitants, the free-born American workingman! The sovereign voting king whose right to work overtime is now sought to be denied him. My patriotism was aroused, my heart was touched, several tears sprang to my eyes and I wept. I cried, "Denial! Outrageous! Count me against it. Count me against it. I came to with a start. I was alone; my friend had left in triumph."

But the memory of his last words haunted me, particularly those referring to the free-born American workingman's right to work overtime, and I kept asking myself over and over again if he really had any such right—and has he even the right to work?

If so how does he acquire such right, what are its limits and what incidental rights go with it in order to make it effective?

The conclusion I arrived at was: The free-born American workingman and every other man, has the right to work.

2. This right is a natural right acquired by birth, the same as the right to breathe the air, and for the same reason, viz: life itself depends upon the right.

Upon this earth food, clothing and shelter are absolutely necessary to the maintenance of life. These may be obtained only by the application of human labor to the resources of Nature and when such application is made may be obtained in beautiful abundance. As the only object in performing labor is the securing of these necessities of life above referred to, it follows that if by the invention and adoption of improved methods of production and distribution, such as machinery, railroads, etc., the human labor required is lessened, the advancement thus derived should redound to the benefit of the workers in the form of shorter hours of labor. But unfortunately, as industry is now carried on the result of improved methods of production and distribution is this: Those who are in control of the machinery of production and distribution, (which includes mills, mines, railroads, steamship lines, telegraph and telephone systems, etc.) finding that the work of the world can be done by employing only part of those who are willing and able to work, are able through the competition of the unemployed, to force the employed through fear of losing their jobs, in other words their means of life, to accept smaller wages and work longer hours than they would in the absence of such competition. The unemployed is the sword of Damocles which hangs over the head of the employed.

The right to work necessarily carries with it the right to the opportunity to work, for without such opportunity the right to work is meaningless and is of no value whatever.

There can be no question that the soundest considerations of public policy demand that every individual have the opportunity to expend his labor power in producing either directly that which he requires for his maintenance or something else which society needs and is willing to accept in exchange for such requisites.

Lack of this opportunity constitutes all the difference between the efficient, industrious, producing and useful members of society, and the tramp, pauper and criminal, for by the continued denial of the opportunity to work the best citizen may become in

HELD IN $10,000

Quincy Man Was Charged With Embezzlement of $7600

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Harold B. Faxon, a prominent yachtsman of Quincy ten years ago, who suddenly gave up his position as paying teller of the People's National bank of Roxbury, in the fall of 1903, returned yesterday from Goldfield, Nev., in custody of a United States marshal and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with the embezzlement of $7600 of the funds of the bank. Faxon tried to regain the little fortune alleged to have been lost through stock speculations by hunting gold in the west under another name when he was discovered and placed under arrest on the old indictment on Oct. 18th last.

Judge Dodge held him in $10,000 for trial, and Faxon went to jail in default of bail.

Faxon was a nephew of the late Henry Faxon, the temperance advocate, and for several years was secretary of the Quincy Yacht club. It was stated at the time of the arrest in Goldfield that Faxon's wife had obtained a divorce within the past two years but this was denied today by the United States marshal who brought the prisoner on from the west.

SCOTT MAY DIE HAND INJURED

Littleton Youth Probably Man Was Thrown From Shot Himself a Train

LITTLETON, Nov. 1.—John Scott, a youth of 20, was found dying near the home of Miss Alice Stone, a high school girl, yesterday. There were three bullet wounds in his body, one near his eye, another in the side of the head, and the third in the abdomen. Scott called on Miss Stone last night but finding a young man at the house before him departed and is believed to have shot himself. He was taken to the Grouton hospital, where it is said he could not survive.

Arthur Peltier, aged 24 years, residing at 9 Hancock avenue, was thrown from a train in the vicinity of Middlesex Village shortly before three o'clock yesterday afternoon and had his right hand badly crushed.

The ambulance was summoned and the young man was taken to the Lowell hospital, where at the time of going to press it was stated that it might be necessary to amputate two fingers and a thumb.

Peltier was not an employee of the road and it is thought that he was stealing a ride when the accident occurred.

DAN O'LEARY INSPECTOR McCALL

VETERAN PEDESTRIAN IS AT ST. LOUIS WELL KNOWN MONTREAL OFFICER IS DEAD

Dan O'Leary, the veteran pedestrian has turned up in St. Louis, Mo., where he has been "showing them" as only he can.

The St. Louis Republic of recent date had the following:

Dan O'Leary, the veteran pedestrian, and five of his friends yesterday started on a walk from St. Louis to Edwardsville and return, but gave it up after getting to Collinsville on their way back. The jaunt was started with the intention of walking forty-five miles without stopping except for lunch. The agreement was if any man weakened he should pay the car fare of the bunch on the return and besides should buy a dinner for the six.

The men started from the west end of Eads bridge at 7 o'clock, and the trip to Edwardsville, via Collinsville, twenty-four miles, was made in five hours and thirty minutes. After arriving at Edwardsville at 12:30 o'clock they stopped for lunch and started back. When they got to Collinsville twelve miles on the return journey, John J. Dempsey of Springfield, Ill., stopped and declared he could walk no farther.

The members of the party, all of whom wore rubber heels excepting Dempsey, were: Dan O'Leary of Chicago; James C. Gennings of Memphis, Tenn.; H. C. Daniels of Chicago; John J. Dempsey of Springfield, Ill.; Charles Berry of Bloomington, Ill.; and C. L. Valenwright of East St. Louis. They met by appointment on a wagon that each could walk the other down.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY THE ANGE-GARDIEN SOCIETY

The Ange-Gardien sodality recently elected the following officers: President, Arthur Lamoureux; first vice president, Arthur Bernier; second vice president, Leon Vignani; secretary, Pamphile Morin; sacristan, Arthur Desloges; advisers, Joseph Dussault, Rodolphe Lalime; standard bearers, Henri Bergeron and Eugene Mailloux.

Rev. Fr. Denizot, O. M. I., has been appointed by Rev. Fr. Watelle, superior of the parish, spiritual director of the sodality in place of Rev. Fr. Ouellette, O. M. I., whose duties claim his attention elsewhere. The sodality counts 530 youths in its ranks.

QUEEN WILHELMINA TO RAISE GOATS IN ALABAMA

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 1.—According to Francis L. Robbins, president of the Alabama Portland Cement and Coal company, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland is going to raise Angora goats in this state. The queen is interested in the company and has suggested that 14,000 acres be set aside for the raising of goats. "Angora goats will be raised on the hillside of the rough part of our property and hogs and cattle on the other parts not adapted to the raising of corn and tobacco," said President Robbins. "We will pay special attention to the goats, as they are becoming rapidly an article of great value, not only for their pelts, but for their flesh. We have found that thousands of these animals were slaughtered for food in Chicago last year. We will ship our goats to Chicago. In the meantime we will be taking out the coal from under our land and building cement mills at other points."

PASTOR OBJECTS

To Minister Johnson's Letter to Foss

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—"He is a republican politician who is trying to put Mr. Foss in a hole."

This was the emphatic statement of Rev. Walter Calley at the close of the Baptist ministers' conference in Tremont Temple yesterday noon in reference to Rev. Herbert S. Johnson's action in writing to Eugene N. Foss and making public the latter's reply relative to the bar and bottle bill.

"I am a republican myself and I want to see fair play," said Mr. Calley, who asked Mr. Johnson why he did not query Gov. Draper on the same point.

"I know where the governor stands," replied Mr. Johnson.

"Have you written him a letter?" "There is no need of it,"

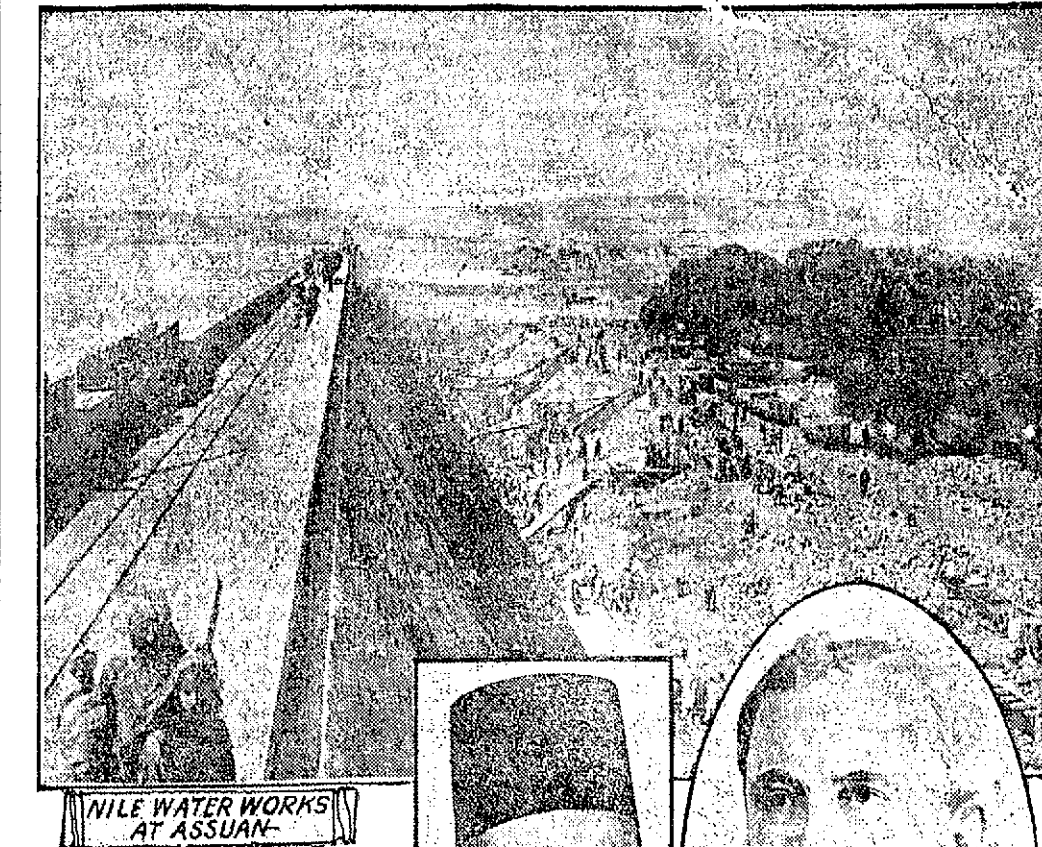

"Why don't you do so and then put the governor on record publicly?"

"There is no need of it," replied Rev. Mr. Johnson. "I am working for the bar and bottle bill and know Gov. Draper's attitude."

The conference, however, did not go on record as endorsing any bill or any person. In his address Mr. Johnson attributed the political shelving of Ex-Speaker John N. Cole of Andover and Ex-Speaker Charles D. B. Plisk of Brighton to their attitude on liquor questions. He did not call Mr. Cole by name, but said afterward that he was the man to whom he referred.

Rev. Mr. Calley is the minister of the Jamaica Plain Baptist church, which Mr. Foss attends.

ENGLAND IS RUSHING TROOPS TO EGYPT IN FEAR OF SUDAN UPRISING

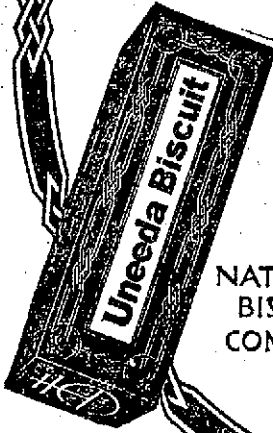

NILE WATER WORKS AT ASSUAN

LONDON, Nov. 1.—In a desperate effort to put the British force in Egypt on a war footing with the greatest possible speed all officers of Egyptian regiments are hurrying to rejoin their commands. Their leave was canceled by an order issued a week ago. The war office makes no attempt to conceal its fear of an uprising in Egypt and the Sudan during the coming winter. Last year's unrest represented little but political agitation, but in the last six months the situation has taken a more serious turn, and the general impression is that a Mohammedan "holy war" will be precipitated soon, and this will be the signal for widespread native outbreaks. Many of the British troops have been ordered to various points along the Nile. Sir Reginald Wingate, in charge of the British forces in Egypt, is in daily communication with the war department.

NO. CHELMSFORD

HALLOWE'EN PARTY BY ST. JOHN'S LADIES' AUXILIARY

A very delightful Halloween party was held last night in St. John's hall by the members of the St. John's Ladies' Auxiliary. The affair was for the members only and it is unnecessary to say that it was most enjoyable. The evening was spent pleasantly in the usual tricks and games to make everyone happy. The prize for the best Ghost story was awarded to Miss Belle Valentine. A literary and musical entertainment was given. Songs were rendered by Misses Hannah Cummings, Mary Valentine, Rena Welch and Anna Callahan. Readings by Lillian Welch and Mrs. Fred Gaudette, after which dancing was enjoyed. Miss Rose McTeague of Lawrence, a former officer of the society, was present as a guest. Esther Pope was the accompanist of the evening. The affair was in charge of Alice Twohey, Maud O'Neill, and Loretta Ward.

The feast of All Saints was observed in St. John's church this morning, two masses being celebrated, one at 6 o'clock and the second at 7:30 by Rev. Fr. Doherty, the pastor. Rev. Fr. Schofield, celebrating the masses at St. Catherine's church, Graniteville. This evening at 7:30 rosary and benediction of the blessed sacrament will be given.

BOSTON HERALD TRANSFER

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—The receivers for the Boston Herald, John Norrie and C. F. Ward, last night announced that the formal transfer of the Boston Herald to its new owners, the Boston Herald, Incorporated, was completed yesterday and that the newspaper would be issued under the new management today.

There were several good games played on the local alleys last night, although none of the scores was very high.

In the Electric Light league the Construction team took all three points from the Inspectors, Mahan of the winning team being high man.

The Butler Vets and Wameests were opponents in the Minor league, the former team winning three points.

O'Brien of the losing team was high man with a triple of 282.

Temporary Heat Quickly

Did you ever stop to think of the many ways in which a perfect oil heater is of value? If you want to sleep with your window open in winter, you can get sufficient heat from an oil heater while you undress at night, and then turn it off. Apply a match in the morning, when you get out of bed, and you have heat while you dress. Those who have to eat an early breakfast before the stove is radiating heat can get immediate warmth from an oil heater, and then turn it off.

The girl who practices on the piano in a cold room in the morning can have warmth from an oil heater while she plays, and then turn it off.

The member of the family who has to walk the floor on a cold winter's night with a restless baby can get temporary heat with an oil heater, and then turn it off. The

CARNEGIE HEROS CUT OUT CLIQUES

Awards Were Made to 58 Who Stirring Talk by E. S. Crandon Performed Heroic Work to Sons of the Revolution

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1.—The Carnegie hero fund commission last night made 58 awards—the largest number ever handed down. There were 29 bronze medals, 30 silver medals and 40,250 dispensed of in the award yesterday. The pensions in yesterday's awards total $10,380 per year. The awards stretch from southern California to the Pacific coast.

Thirteen took part in the rescue work at the ill-fated Cherry, Ill., mine disaster Nov. 13, 1908, are among those recognized as heroes by the commission, while heroes of several mine disasters in the hard coal region of Pennsylvania are also remembered.

There are two awards of interest to the Atlantic coast. Lester M. Kilroe, the mother of F. E. Kilroe, a 20 year old lad of Waterbury, Conn., who lost his life at Middleboro, Mass., June 10, 1910, trying to save George H. Massicotte from drowning, is given a silver medal, $150 to liquidate indebtedness and $30 per month until further notice not to exceed five years. Of Kilroe's act, the hero commission says:

"Frederick Kilroe and a brother, who was older, and another young man, in a 16 foot rowboat went out 50 feet from shore, with Massicotte, hanging in the water from the stern of the boat. Frederick's brother was only an ordinary swimmer and the other occupants of the boat could not swim. Massicotte was cautioned to keep a hold on the boat and then Frederick and his brother dived overboard and began to swim about.

Story of Kilroe's Heroism

"Massicotte left the boat unmolested and was 30 feet south of it, struggling desperately to keep up, when Frederick's brother, who was ahead of the boat, saw him and shouted to Frederick to look after him. Frederick noticed about 30 feet south of Massicotte, and he immediately swam to him. Massicotte grabbed him by the face and they went under together.

"Frederick quickly came up, followed by Massicotte. Frederick shouted to the others to bring the boat. His brother had swam to the boat, but in his anxiety to get to Massicotte had lost an ear and could not propel the boat against the wind with the single ear.

Then Frederick swam behind Massicotte and grasping him by the back of the neck started to push him toward shore. He had progressed but a few feet when Massicotte twisted about and grasped him by the shoulders and both went under for the second time. In a few seconds Frederick reappeared, his face flushed.

"Massicotte did not come up and Frederick started swimming feebly toward the boat, which was now about 100 feet north of him. His brother shouted to him to swim to shore, as it was nearer. He turned toward the boat and was taken but a few feet when he sank and was drowned. His body was recovered in about 20 minutes but all efforts at resuscitation failed. He was scratched

Boys' Mother Gets Pension

Adam J. Bopp, aged 23, of Middleboro, Mass., lost his life May 22, 1910, trying to save John Gallagher, Boston telegrapher from drowning in Lake Assawompsett. His mother, Elizabeth D. Bopp, is awarded a silver medal and death benefits in the sum of $1000 to be applied to the liquidation of her indebtedness. Of Bopp's heroic act the hero commission says:

"After casting the painter of his boat to the occupants of a passing boat, Gallagher attempted to jump into the water and fell into the lake. He started to swim, but the sailboat, but at the urging of its occupants turned toward the rowboat, the painter of which had been dropped. The wind kept the rowboat beyond his reach and he called for help.

"A young man jumped from the sailboat, swam to the rowboat and taking the painter of it in his teeth swam toward Gallagher. Becoming exhausted within about 20 feet of Gallagher he stopped swimming and clung to the rowboat. A motor boat sped past Gallagher and a man at the bow of it made a grab for him, but missed.

Middleboro Man's Act

"Bopp arrived in his motorboat and as he ran past Gallagher made an unsuccessful effort to grasp him. A moment later Gallagher went under and inquired where Gallagher had disappeared. The spot was pointed out to him and running his boat to it he shut off the power, stood up and peered into the water. In a moment he cried that he could see Gallagher and then dived overboard.

"He soon came up, holding Gallagher at his left side and started swimming toward his boat, which had drifted about 20 feet away. He had gone but four or five strokes when Gallagher whirled about and caught him by the throat and they went under. They rose in a few moments, Gallagher still holding to Bopp.

"A motor boat was run past them and a man attempted to grab them but failed. Another motorboat swung past and a rope was thrown which struck Bopp's hand but to which he paid no attention. In a second or two Bopp and Gallagher sank and were drowned. Their bodies were recovered after dynamite had been used. Witnesses state that when they saw Bopp dive overboard they felt he was taking a great risk."

Of the rescues from death or the attempts, seven were from railroad trains or street cars, 19 from drowning, a resident of Cherry street, and a suffocation in gas producers or wells, 20 from death in mine disasters, two from fire and one from shooting.

BOY IS MISSING

Feared He Has Met With Accident

HIAVERHILL, Nov. 1.—The police are baffled over the disappearance of James Albert Pinkham, aged 18 years, a resident of Cherry street, and a light chestnut mare which the boy hired from I. E. Emery.

Last Saturday afternoon Pinkham went to the Emery stable and asked to hire a saddle horse. He was not known but presented a good appearance and the owner of the stable, who had a few animals the stable at 100 State street, off, taking a course up State street, through Vosty and up Main. Not a trace of him has been secured since then.

When the horse was not returned the stableman reported the matter to the police, giving a description of the horse and youth to the officers. The parents of the lad also called at police headquarters and reported their son as missing.

Pinkham has been in Haverhill about two years, having come here with his family from Haverhill, Me. He lived in Cherry street and since he has been here, so far as the police know, has been a model young man. His parents assert he never before remained away from home over night and they fear that some serious accident has befallen him.

The police don't know what to make of the case. From their investigations they have found the habits of young Pinkham to have been of the best. They are disinclined to believe the accident theory, for the reason that had anything of the sort taken place they would have been likely to have heard of it.

The boy is 18 years old, 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, has light hair, blue eyes, smooth face and wore a dark gray suit, blue flannel shirt, tie, and a blue cap. His horse was sleek and he wore low cut put-on shoes. When he left he had no record.

A surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Barry, 21 Franklin street, in behalf of their daughter Lorretta, when a gathering of her many friends presented her with a bracelet. Master Charles Grand making the presentation speech after which a musical program was carried out as follows: Piano solos, Miss Evelyn Barry, Miss Dora Ward and Miss Grace Knowles; duet, Miss Annie Gill and Master Leo Ward; quartet, Masters James McEvoy, Arthur Flinders, John Dinneen and Leo Ward; violin solo, Miss Blanche Stoddard; song, Master Carl Moore with Master Victor Sanborn accompanist; Miss Jennie Gill and Master Brennan gave a recitation, after which many games were played and refreshments were served.

The members of Old Middlesex chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, held a delightful social gathering at the Vesper-Country club with a large attendance.

The guest of the evening and the principal speaker was Edward S. Crandon of Cambridge, vice president of the state organization, who gave an informal talk that made a deep impression.

An excellent dinner was served by Supt. Clough, and 59 members and guests assembled at the tables. Hibbard's orchestra played popular airs during the repast and the diners joined in the choruses. President Horace S. Bacon presided and introduced as the speaker of the evening Vice President Crandon, who said that his purpose in speaking was to arouse the real spirit of '76 in his hearers. In plain language he indicated that there was need for the sons of those who fought shoulder to shoulder in the Revolution to forget the artificial barriers of caste, to eliminate the inordinate habit of the mad chase for gold, and "get together." To uphold the democracy of the first ideals of this nation rather than the developing aristocracy of caste the speaker declared was the duty of the Sons of the American Revolution. An organization that developed its fraternal spirit and eliminated cliques and caste was bound to thrive.

HORACE S. BACON
President

The trouble with hereditary societies and the great trouble with Massachusetts and the Puritans, he said, "was the prejudice and cold-blooded, holler-than-thou sufficiency."

Starting with this scheme, the speaker spoke forcibly of the lessons to be drawn from incidents of the Revolutionary war, interspersing his remarks with spicy anecdotes. He showed how the idea of the rights of man had been started in Holland, had been transplanted in America, and from thence to America, and that this was now enjoying the benefits of the American Revolution. In conclusion, he urged the importance of maintaining these benefits, which had been handed down from generation to generation, and one of the organizations calculated to combat successfully the tendencies of modern times was the Sons

HORSE LAMENESS

Dr. Daniels Tells How to Treat It

In health, the weight of the body of the horse is supported by the equal distribution upon the four legs and changes, by regular action and movements from right to left and back again without friction or loss of equilibrium but if the right leg becomes in any way weakened or impaired it seeks relief by resting on the left, the greater weight of the body being thrown to that side and the body will settle to the left. Therefore, lameness on the right side, the horse drops to the left, while should the left leg show lameness, by the same rule the drop will be to the right.

Now to properly examine a horse for lameness have an assistant lead the horse by halter onto a good hard road if possible (have no blanket or harness to interfere) look at the animal from in front, each side and behind, from him in all gait possible, as he approaches or recedes, passes by, turns about and watch closely the dipping motion from side to side. The head, shoulder and hip will tell you much, the head dropping on the side which causes the greatest weight of body, to the right when the left fore leg and vice versa when the right is affected. In the hind quarters the hip will act as the head as we may say when the horse trots and drops to one side, look for the lame spot on the other side. Now that we have determined that the horse is lame on one side or in a certain leg, does not solve the problem by any means. The hardest part is to come. Where in the particular or suspected leg is the lame spot? This is often the trying question even to the practiced veterinarian. Of course, there are many cases where the exterior evidence is conclusive but in many and we may say the majority of cases the exact region is obscure. Of course, we have the chance to observe all the outlines, the temperature, tenderness to touch, swellings, etc. and all these are helps along the line. Still haste makes waste. Conclusions must not be too hasty. Has the foot been examined? The foot is the most sensitive part of the limb, the part most liable to injury many times the seat of injury located elsewhere, is later, possibly too much so, found to be in the foot.

HITCHCOCK TO STAY

Postmaster General Will Remain in the Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Postmaster General Hitchcock will remain in the cabinet.

This statement is made on authority. President Taft is very much pleased with Mr. Hitchcock's work in reducing the postal deficit. The president desires to secure economical administration of the government and he is not going to dispense with the services of a valuable assistant, as Mr. Hitchcock.

In the future, however, Mr. Hitchcock will devote more of his time to the business of his department and less to politics.

This naturally follows the president's policy of extending the civil service as far as practicable over postmasters and other government employees. Mr. Taft will recommend in his annual message that second class and third class postmasters be put under the classified service.

If congress approves this recommendation several thousand postmasters will be removed from politics. This meets with the entire approval of Mr. Hitchcock, who believes that the postal service should be taken out of politics.

The recommendation regarding second class and third class postmasters is regarded by Mr. Taft as the beginning of the extension of the classified civil service over all postmasters, collectors of customs and internal revenue and other local appropriations, which will result in an enormous reduction of the expenses of the government.

Opposition to civil service protection for these officials is expected from

What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as recommended in D. D. D., can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it, and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Because—we know that it gives instant relief to that torturing itch.

Because—it cleanses, soothes and heals the skin.

Because—it enables Nature to repair the ravages of disease.

Because—the records of ten years of complete cures of Eczema, Psoriasis, and most serious cases show that D. D. D. is today recognized as the absolutely reliable Eczema Cure.

Drop into our store today, just to talk over your case with us.

PEARY TO BE ASSIGNED

Commander Peary's leave of absence in the navy is almost expired, and now the problem of placing him in the service is to be solved. There are many officials in the navy who do not believe that Peary's proofs of his discovery are authentic. Indeed it is the belief of many that the North Pole will never be properly explored until the aviators get there in dirigibles specially prepared for use in the Arctic zone.

BILLERICA'S COMMENDABLE EXAMPLE

That is a very commendable custom followed by the Talbot mill company of North Billerica in offering prizes in competition for the most beautiful premises kept by the tenants of the company. This and the work along similar lines by the Village Improvement association explains why Billerica is one of the most beautiful towns in the state, especially in the summer time when the flower gardens, the window and porch displays are in full bloom. In this matter of home beautification Billerica sets an example worthy of emulation by other towns.

INDUSTRIAL CAMP FOR LAZY HUSBANDS

That is a very good suggestion made by James P. Ramsay, probation officer of Middlesex county, in reference to the best method of dealing with non-support cases. He favors the establishment of a state industrial camp to which delinquent husbands might be sent and compelled to work for their families at a reasonable rate of wages. He would not send these men to prison to mingle with thieves and criminals of all kinds and in all probability to suffer by the association. This is not the only good suggestion made by Mr. Ramsay in his paper and in various other public statements some of which have been published in The Sun.

STUMPING FOR HER HUSBAND

Down at Salem Mr. Franklin H. Wentworth, who is a candidate for the legislature, is assisted in his canvass by his wife who is reported to be a much better speaker than he. Mr. Wentworth is a socialist and his wife on the stump pleads for his election on the ground that he will fight for the socialistic method of "abolishing poverty." As a theory it is beautiful to contemplate but there is a vast majority of people in this world who still believe that "the poor you will always have with you."

Mrs. Wentworth's personal influence will assist her husband, but it remains to be seen whether it will bring him victory.

OUR STATE EXPENDITURES

One of the things that will militate against the reelection of Governor Draper is the fact that during the present year the state expenditures have mounted higher than ever before and apparently higher than the demands of public necessity require.

The state appropriation for the year 1900, under Governor Crane, was $7,176,100, and in 1905, $9,619,715.88. In 1908, under Governor Guild, the total expenditure was $12,244,673.35.

The appropriation for the present year was $14,046,010.28, all of which and perhaps more will be spent by the close of the year.

This great increase in the state expenditures has caused the state tax rate to be higher, and there is little likelihood of a change for the better unless the administration be placed in democratic hands.

With Eugene N. Foss as governor the people would look for a reduction of expenses, and they would not be disappointed.

WILL MASSACHUSETTS FOLLOW MAINE?

With election day just a week ahead the unclassified voters will have to make up their minds very soon as to what candidates they will support. All over the country there appears to be a revulsion of feeling against the republican party, and one that is likely to bring about the defeat of many republican candidates. Indeed it is freely predicted that the next national house will have a democratic majority. Whether that prediction shall or shall not be verified depends entirely upon the voters.

This tendency to down the republican candidates results from the disappointment at the manner in which the tariff was revised, the discontent over the high cost of living and the necessity of a vigorous protest against existing conditions.

The state of Maine has spoken, and it is an old saying that as goes Maine so goes the union. The state of Massachusetts should be ready to follow the example of Maine in this respect in order to hasten the desired reforms and lighten the burdens that weigh heavily upon the masses of this country.

TRYING TO FASTEN CHARGES ON FOSS

An effort is being made by certain republicans to make it appear that the bar and bottle law will not be enforced if Mr. Foss be elected. When interrogated on this point Mr. Foss merely replied that he would enforce this as well as all other laws on the statute book. Yet some people call that evasion. People may differ with Mr. Foss on public questions, but we do not believe that any can justly charge him with evasion. He is not afraid to answer any question put to him, whether in regard to the tariff, the bar and bottle law or something else.

Another charge and an old one is being flaunted in the press and on large billboards in an effort to defeat Mr. Foss. It is the charge that he wrote a letter to the governor against the bill to limit the day's work by state, county, city and town employees to eight hours. Mr. Foss asserts that a petition remonstrating against the proposed passage of the law was presented to him for signature. He signed it and now the petition with the Foss signature attached is being published broadcast as an original and genuine appeal from Mr. Foss to Governor Draper. The alleged facsimile has no date, which is one proof that it was not a genuine letter written by Mr. Foss as alleged, for no letter of the kind is without date. On the other hand no petition circulated for signatures has a date.

SEEN AND HEARD

It is said that President Taft considered this the best poker story he had ever heard.

A former governor of Idaho was playing euchre with Isaac Isaacson. "If I was playing poker," says Isaacson, "I'd bet $10 on this hand."

"Well," says the governor, "if you will give me a queen I'll get you $100 on my hand."

Isaacson gave the governor a queen, meantime snuffing patronizingly on the four kings which he held. When the betting was over Isaacson laid down his four kings and reached for the money.

"Softly," admonished the governor, revealing four aces and pocketing the stakes. Isaacson gazed sorrowfully at the statesman, then asked:

"Say, governor, I don't mind the money, but I wish you would tell me what in— you wanted of that queen?"

This story was told to the president as being the game bluff ascribed as being played by a certain politician.

A farmer was asked to assist at the funeral of his neighbor's third wife, and as he had attended the funeral of the two others, his wife was surprised when he declined the invitation. On being pressed to give his reason, he said, with some hesitation: "You, say, M'arriage, it makes a chap feel a bit awkward to be always accepting other folks' civilities when he never has anything of the same sort of his own to ask them back to."

A boy in a shop was one day swinging his hammer rather languidly when the boss, with angry looks, accosted him.

"Now, then, my lad," said the boss, snatching the hammer away, "when I see a man that takes his hammer by the end of the handle, like this, and strikes fine, hard blows—bang, bang—like that, why I pay that man anywhere from $17 a week up."

"But," resumed the boss, "when a man takes his hammer by the middle, this way, and strikes gentle—tap, tap—like this, he only gets nine a week, and he's the first to be laid off when we get slack."

The boss, with a meaning look, then extended the hammer to the boy, believing that he had driven home his lesson rather neatly.

But the boy stepped back.

"Would you mind showin' me now."

The boy stepped back.

RATS AND PUFFS: THE STYLE

Women who cover their heads with masses of false hair will in time have diseased scalps. Rats and puffs are denounced by doctors as unhygienic dust and germ-catchers. They exclude the air from the scalp, and the pressure on the delicate network of veins soon results in the loss of hair. A good thing to shampoo the head with is a neutral soap, combined with Glycerine, White Oil, Coconut Oil and Salicylic Acid. These are the ingredients Birc's Head Wash is made of. It removes every trace of dandruff and scales from the scalp and leaves the hair soft and glossy. 25c and 50c at drug and department stores.

THE FORBIDDEN LURE

(Fanny Stearns, Davis, in Harper's)

"Leave all and follow—follow!"

Lure of the sun at dawn.

Lure of a wind-paced hollow.

Lure of the stars at midnight.

Lure of the brave old singing.

Brave perished in the night; Of dreams like sea-fog clinging.

To boughs the night sifts through:

"Leave all and follow—follow!"

The sun goes up the day.

Flickers at the church.

Blossoms that blow away.

What would you, luring luring.

When I must hide as these moorings.

My heart will break her moorings.

And die in reef-hung foam!

Oh, I must never listen.

Call not outside my door.

Green leaves, you must not glisten.

Oh, Beauty, wandering Beauty.

Don't by speak not. For see,

By bed and board stands Duty.

To snatch my dreams from me!

PEOPLE OF NOTE

A series of twelve historic and symbolic windows in English painted glass, designed by Edward P. Sperry, of the Decorative Glass company, are to be placed in the First Parish church edifice in Plymouth, built some fifteen years ago, is on the site of the church built by the Pilgrims. The subjects include the destruction of the Pilgrim Press at Leyden at the desire of James II, in order to arrest the circulation of the tracts printed by William Brewster; the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth and the treaty with Massachusetts; the town meeting called to consider the letter written by Oldham and Lyford, who came over on the Fortune, and who were put on trial for treason, etc. The historic compositions are to be flanked by symbolic panels representing such motives as Truth, Light, Courage, Peace, Justice and Faith. There will also be a brass tablet which contains copies of the handwriting of William Bradford, the second governor, upon which is engraved the compact drafted by him. All of the windows will be erected in the vestibule of the church.

Charles J. Hughes, Jr., of Denver, United States senator from Colorado, is returning from a trip to California and the Hawaiian Islands in a physical condition to alarm his friends. He was sent away to rest, and the trip does not appear to have yielded the results hoped for.

A new thing in the way of aviation records has been thought out by the New York Sun. It is the total distance an aviator has fallen during his career in the clouds. Charles K. Hamilton is supposed to hold the record for his combined falls total more than 16,000 feet.

Under the headline "C'est la Vie," the Paris Rappel says: "When King Manuel was a visitor in Paris he showed his appreciation of municipal hospitality by presenting his portrait, with autographic dedication, to several members of the ministry. A few days after his departure these pictures, neatly framed, could be seen hanging in the state offices. Then came the revolution. On the first day there was a great sale of the portraits, but the pictures were put in less conspicuous places. A day later the result could be foreseen and the pictures received another push to the rear, and on the third day, when all was over, they disappeared. In two weeks they will probably be replaced by portraits of President Roosevelt."

Chancellor Strong of the Kansas state university said the other day that in his opinion "dramatics and social excesses" distract the student body more than football ever did. Football is a passing interest, lasting only a few months, and has the value of physical training. The men and women, on the other hand, who are anxious for social honors and who spend too much time in social diversions, are the ones who are most likely to take the low grades at the end of the term.

Ottawa (Kan.) Herald agrees with Dr. Strong. "Let 'em play football," it says. "They'll be better off, if they escape being crippled, and it is about as well to be crippled for life physically as mentally."

Rear Admiral W. S. Cowles, U. S. N. (retired), brother-in-law of ex-President Roosevelt, is a candidate for the general assembly of Connecticut.

Henry George, Jr., son of the noted single tax exponent, has been nominated for congress by the democrats of the seventeenth district of New York.

William L. Cundiff, Speaker Cannon's democratic opponent in the eighteenth Illinois district, has never before been a candidate for any public office.

STEAMER LOST

Part of the Crew Was

Rescued

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—A wireless dispatch received in New York today told of the wreck of the steamship Santa Maria and the rescue of part of the crew. The message, dated on board the Mallory liner Denver, at sea, said that the Denver had on board twenty-four men of the crew of the Santa Maria, which was wrecked on the Rebecca Reef during the recent hurricane. It added that the men boarded the Denver near Sand Key light, Florida, early in the evening of October 27, from the schooner Lily White.

The Santa Maria was a small freighter sailing from New York to West Indian ports.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The Times will print today a cable message signed by Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the erstwhile Arctic explorer. It is a message of congratulation to Walter Wellman, sent through the London correspondent of the Times and is as follows:

"Acting upon your offer to transmit a message from me to Mr. Wellman, I hereby send him my heartfelt congratulations for his wonderful initial success. If he crosses the Atlantic he will have gained an object of great use to mankind and the conquest of the pole."

RECORDS BROKEN

At Athletic Meet in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Four thousand athletic enthusiasts went to the Madison Square Garden last night to witness 16 of the 22 track and field events on the two-night program of the National Indoor championships of the Amateur Athletic union. Two records were broken. In the 300 yard run Melvin W. Sheppard, after winning his semi-final heat, became ill and was unable to compete in the final. Sheppard started later in the thousand yards run as the feature of the evening, but after going about 500 yards was compelled to quit, his rival, H. Gilling, winning the event in 2 minutes 20 seconds.

The first record broken during the evening was in the 55 pound weight for height. In this event Con Walsh of the New York A. C. established a new American record of 16 feet, 2 3/16 inches. The old figures were 16 feet, 2 1/2 inches.

The second record to go was in the final event of the evening—the pole vault for distance—in which Platt Adams of the New York A. C. broke the old record of 28 feet, made by Martin Sheridan in 1907 by 2 1/2 inches.

The two mile race was a duel between Jack Almon of the Irish-American A. C. and his club mate, Tom Collins. Almon won after a grueling contest. The point score last night stands: Senior events New York A. C. 43; Irish-American A. C. 34.

Juniors, Pastime A. C. 19; New York A. C. 10.

Summaries:

300 yards run won by L. B. Dorland, Pastime A. C. Time 34 1/2 seconds.

Standing high jump (junior) won by B. W. Adams, N. Y. A. C. (6 feet).

580 yards run (junior) won by C. Weather, N. Y. A. C. Time 2:02 3/4.

Standing broad jump won by Ray C. Ewry, N. Y. A. C. 10 feet 10 1/4 inches.

One mile walk (junior) won by A. P. Hunt, Pastime A. C. Time 7 minutes 4 3/5 seconds.

LADIES' NIGHT

OBSERVED BY KNIGHTS OF MALL

TA AT HIGHLAND HALL

A well attended and enjoyable ladies' night was held last night in Highland hall under the auspices of Lowell Commandery, Knights of Malta. While it was not a Halloween party there were many features peculiar to Halloween introduced during the evening.

The hall was lighted with Jack-o'-lanterns and when the orchestra played the opening number for dancing there was a ghost march, nearly every person in line being concealed in white.

Then followed a two-step when the merry dancers threw their ghostly gowns aside. The remainder of the evening was spent in whist and dancing. Refreshments were served during the evening and dancing was enjoyed till midnight.

The success of the affair was due to the efforts of the following officers: Reception committee: J. Walter Bowers, chairman; Jesse W. Chapman, Herbert B. Elliott, Henry A. Wisby, Russell McDonald, John A. Lamberton, Elmer D. Robinson, Hiram Merrill, Wm. H. Saunders.

Marions: Mrs. J. Walter Bowers, Mrs. Jesse W. Chapman, Mrs. Wm. H. Saunders, Mrs. Herbert B. Elliott, Mrs. Elmer D. Robinson, Mrs. Henry A. Wisby, Mrs. Hiram Merrill, Mrs. John A. Lamberton, Mrs. Russell McDonald.

Floor marshal, Herbert B. Elliott. Aids, Wm. H. Saunders, Elmer D. Robinson, Jesse W. Chapman.

The officers of Lowell commandery are: Sir knight commander, J. W. Bowers; generalissimo, Henry A. Wisby; captain general, Albert G. Cheney; prelate, J. E. Noel; recorder, Wm.

No clumsy pan to spill dust and dirt on the kitchen floor.

The Glenwood Ash Chute

solves the problem. It is located just beneath the grate and connected by a sheet iron pipe straight down through the kitchen floor to ash barrel in cellar. No part is in sight. Not a particle of dust can escape. Just slide the damper once each day and drop the ashes directly into the ash barrel. This is only one of the splendid improvements of the new plan.

Hubby (who has had a drop)—Why don't you fly yourself?
Wife—Oh, I have, dear!
Hubby—Have you? Well, I don't think you'll be any the worse for another flutter.

WHAT ONE MAY SOON HEAR.
"Skilium has got back from Europe."
"So? Did he kill his wife before he left the other side?"

EIGHT MORE TRIALS LEFT.

Tabby: "I wonder what that is?"

"Well, I declare!"

"Who's got hold of my tail?"

"Wow!"

"Never touched me!"

"But I should think that such strong coffee as that would be awful bad for the nerves."

COULDN'T BELIEVE HIS EYES.

The professor was doing out and had drunk several glasses of port. He did not know this wine's extraordinary strength, and in all innocence he took too much. When he rose to leave the table his legs, to his dismay, tottered and the room seemed to sway slightly.

The professor got to the parlor in safety. He sat down in the most distant corner, but soon his young hostess, leading a maid who carried her two beautiful twin babies, came to him for his approbation.

The professor sat up very erect. He gazed at the twins glassily. Then he articulated carefully, in a hoarse, click voice, "What a bonny little child!"

UTTERLY UNSELFISH.

Mistress—Do you think his love for you is unselfish?
Maid—Perfectly, m'm. Only last night he let me sit so long on his knee that he walked lame for ten minutes.

A SINISTER HOPE.

A contemporary informs us in regard to ladies' dress that the train is coming into vogue again. We are sorry to hear this, and we hope men will put their foot down on it.

THE ANSWER.

The Orator—I ask yer, Wat is this life we 'old so dear? Soon I'll be lying with me forefathers.
The Voice—An' givin' them points at the game too!

ALL IN GOOD TIME.

Seven-year-old William had become the proud possessor of a pet pig and insisted upon having all the care of it himself. After a few weeks, as the pig did not seem to thrive, his father said to him:
"William, I'm afraid you are not feeding your pig enough. It does not seem to be fattening at all."
"I don't want him to fatten yet," William replied knowingly. "I'm waiting until he gets to be as long as I want him; then I'll begin to widen him out."

THE GOLF BALL.

WHY SHE DID IT.

"Why did she marry Fiddleback?"
"Because she was in love with another man, and the man was in love with another girl, and the girl was in love with Fiddleback. It was the only way she could get even with the other girl, you see."

KNEW HER BUSINESS.

"That farmer thought he would fool me when he put a doorknob and a china egg in my nest!"

INFORMATION FOR THE VICAR.

"The Vicar—I haven't noticed little Willie in Sunday school lately, Mrs. Brown."
Mrs. Brown—No, sir, 'e bin an' taken a positive dislike to the new curate. He be summat dreadful the way 'e do go on about 'im.

ADAPTABLE.

Labor Exchange Clerk—What are you?
Seedy Applicant—I used to be a roller flag waggoner, but am open to take up any post that promises an equal amount of responsibility and danger.

THE EVERY HOUR ALARM.

Funny Man (off duty)—To enable commuters to do their sleeping on the train.

SUSPICION CONFIRMED.

"Jim, did that clock strike 10 or 11?"
"Yea, sah."
"Yea what, you black rascal?"
"It struck 10 or 11."

THREE OF CRACK DISTANCE RUNNERS ENTERED IN TWENTY MILE TEAM RACE

HOLMER SVANBERG ST. YVES

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—If the plans of the promoters do not fall professional foot racing will receive a big boom this winter. Many races are scheduled, and more are to come. Recently a new national professional foot running circuit was formed. The new athletic organization is called the Cash Prize League. The object of the league is to revive professional athletics in this country. While reviving

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES

Many Were Held by Various Societies Last Evening

Hallowe'en parties were in order last night and without exaggeration there must have been several hundred. Some were on a small scale while others were elaborate. In some instances a general invitation was sent out to friends to attend the festivities, while in other cases family parties were held primarily for the benefit of the children.

Oxford Bible Class
The members of the Oxford Bible class of the Highland M. E. church were entertained in a delightful manner last night by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Titus at their residence, 448 Stevens street. The interior of the house was decorated in a very artistic manner, the decorations being in keeping with Hallowe'en.

There were the usual Hallowe'en games, and musical numbers were given by Miss Bertha Chapman and Fred Timmons. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Carrie F. Leighton, Miss Eleanor Harding and Mrs. W. M. Wilder. Before the guests departed, they extended a vote of thanks to the host and hostess for their entertainment.

Lowell Hospital Nurses
The nurses of the Lowell hospital gave a real old fashioned Hallowe'en party to about 60 of their friends at the hospital last evening. There was dancing, to say nothing of the usual list of Hallowe'en games, and the evening proved a very pleasant one for all.

The rooms were handsomely and elaborately decorated in keeping with the event, autumn leaves and jack-o'-lanterns playing an important part in the scheme of decorations. Refreshments were served.

Miss Bertha E. Collins of Belleville, Ont., presided at the piano, assisted by Mr. Woodcock of Lawrence.

Entertained Young Friends
A very pretty Hallowe'en party was held last night at 30 Third street when Miss Pearl Louise Heston entertained a number of her friends. The house was beautifully decorated with Jack-o'-lanterns, pumpkins, etc. and during the course of the evening Hallowe'en games were played, an entertainment program was carried out and refreshments were served.

Among those present were: Miss Beatrice Neal, Miss Edna Cheney, Master Harold Gale, Master Raymond Blusson, Miss Gladys Penecek, Master Aubrey Hunt, Master Roy Courtney and Master Charles Sleeper. Among those who assisted the little hostess in entertaining her guests was her mother, Mrs. Harry C. Hawthorne and Mr. Richard Courtney.

Carps Dism Club
A very pretty Hallowe'en party was held in Merrimack hall last night under the auspices of the members of the Carps Dism club. The interior of the hall was decorated in a manner in keeping with the occasion. While the affair was a Hallowe'en party, dancing to music furnished by the Imperial that game, it is hoped that the movement will at the same time tend to purify the amateur ranks. The promoters expect to have all the crack runners of America and Europe to compete on the circuit. The first big contest of the season will be a twenty mile international team race to be held in Madison Square garden, Nov. 1. The event will bring together crack runners representing America, Sweden, orchestra was the feature of the evening. The officers of the party were: Elliot F. Wood, John L. McDonough, Ernest P. Parsons, John Neeson, John J. Kelley, William Maxwell, James T. Riley, William Queenan, Howard Wood, Henry P. Dole, Joseph McConnoy, Robert Breckenridge, Edward McAvoy, Joseph Webster, Arthur J. Dolan and Misses Mary Burns, Anna A. Conley, Madeline F. Flanders, Kittle Conley, Lulu A. Hart, May E. Hart, Josephine G. Gormley, Lilla Hobbs, A. H. Lynch, Katherine Minahan, Anna J. Roche, Helena W. Roche, Catherine Foxan, Marietta Shea, Agnes V. Tully and Anna Doran.

Miss Jacques Entertained
Miss Marie Jacques entertained a number of her friends at a Hallowe'en party at her home, 35 Wameet street, last night. The interior of the house was decorated in an appropriate manner and Hallowe'en games were played. During the course of the evening an entertainment program including musical and literary numbers was carried out.

In the Hallowe'en games Miss R. La Jeunesse and Mr. Chapdelaine were among the prize winners, as was P. Marshall. An informal entertainment was given in which the Misses Carpenter, La Jeunesse, Curtin, Foley and Jacques assisted. Miss E. Lachour was the pianist of the evening. Mr. Chapdelaine and R. La Jeunesse gave a delightful duet number. Refreshments were served.

Pleasant Hallowe'en Party
The residence of Mrs. P. S. Kennesson, 90 Chestnut street, was the scene of a delightful Hallowe'en party last night by the young people of the First Trinitarian church. The affair was given for those over 16 years of age and was under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E. The committee in charge consisted of the Misses Lillian Joyce, Helen Wood and Edna Benning.

POT AND KETTLE
OFFICERS CHOSEN BY THE CLUB
LAST SUNDAY
The members of the Pot and Kettle club met in regular session Sunday afternoon at the home of Daniel Murphy in Marsh street and besides the meeting an excellent roast pig dinner was served and an entertainment program carried out.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing term during the business meeting:

President, Frank McMahon; vice president, Daniel Murphy; secretary and treasurer, Michael Miskela; financial secretary, John Quirk; steward, Frank Burns; warden, Thomas O'Brien; conductor, James McMahon.

Italy, Finland, Canada and France. The cracks entered in the race are Holmer and Quaal, Ijungsstrom and Svanberg, St. Yves and Larque, Meadows and Woods, Kollonahon and Malori and Vandro, The Holmer-Quaal and Ijungsstrom-Svanberg teams are favorites for the race. Henri St. Yves, the French Marathoner, also has many followers, although his teammate is making his initial start as a professional.

O'KELLY IS GAME

Ryan's Pupil Put up a East Bout

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Con O'Kelly, Tommy Ryan's pupil, and looked to be the eventual opponent of Jack Johnson, last night boxed 10 rounds with Hank Griffin of California, a colored man. O'Kelly was punished in the first part of the bout but came back strong and by sheer weight reclaimed the honors of the go.

The colored man showed better ring generalship and experience and landed more often. In the third round he sent the big fellow to the floor with a wallop over the right eye. The Celt was game, though, and rushed Griffin in the final stages. The bout ended with both men going fast.

EASY FOR ALGER
NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 1.—George Alger of Cambridge won an easy victory over Eddie Mack of Boston at the Pastime A. C. last evening.

Alger was to meet Billy Dixon of Boston, but Mack was selected as a substitute. He was not in condition, while Alger was ready for a hard battle.

Alger led all the way. In the third round with a right overhead punch he had Mack on his knees several times, and once he failed to get up in time to go on, but Alger was willing to take a chance and Mack finished the round.

Twice in the fourth round Alger had Mack resting for a count of five, and finally disposed of him without having taken any punishment himself to speak of.

There were three preliminaries. In the first Laviole of this city was given the decision in a four-round go with Jimmy Voke. Kid Doyle of this city worried Buck Connors of Fall River, but the referee called it a draw, which was also the decision when Homer Charpentier and Billy Barrett, both of Fall River, boxed four rounds.

VICTORY FOR BURNS
NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Frankie Burns earned a victory over Tommy Houck in their 12-round bout at the Olympic A. C. last night.

Burns started out at a rapid clip and while Houck had the better of several of the early rounds the terrific speed of the little Jerseyman told in the long run. Blow after blow to the face, jaw and body in the sixth, seventh, eighth and tenth rounds weakened Houck.

LEWIS STAYED THROUGH
GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Willie Jones of Brooklyn bested Johnny Lewis of Philadelphia last night. Lewis was substituted forONEY Langley, who, owing to an accident, was unable to meet Jones. Lewis stayed the full 10 rounds, Jones lacking the punch to put him out. He landed blows at will, but none were effective.

GAVE CLEVER EXHIBITION
ALBANY, Nov. 1.—Billy Ryan of Syracuse and Paul Dorsey of Albany last night put up one of the cleverest boxing exhibitions ever given here. They met in a 10-round go before the Knickerbocker A. C. and it was a clever draw. They fought at 130 pounds. Ryan was in danger in the seventh and eighth rounds but his ring generalship saved him. He made a dash in the last half minute of the 10th round.

ROLL OF $11,000

Was Found on Suspected Absconders

ACAPULCO, Mex., Nov. 1.—From the description given by a detective agency, it is believed that two of the men who were arrested on their arrival here on the schooner Kate, Saturday, are Wilson B. Evans, absconding teller of the Farmers & Merchants' Bank of Los Angeles, and H. Hamberg, an alleged accomplice.

It is said that $11,000 has been recovered.

The matter of the arrests of the men has been taken up by the government with Washington direct.

The Kate came into port to take on a supply of gasoline. Three passengers giving the names of Harry Ham, O. Carlson and Dan Archer, were taken into custody as suspects on the theory that they might have been implicated in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building. The sum of $11,000 was found in the boat.

The captain, Swan Engstiehl, and Adolphsen, the engineer, were placed under guard. The captain said that he had been engaged to take the schooner from San Francisco to the Galapagos Islands, off the coast of Peru and Ecuador.

The police yesterday examined the prisoners in the light of description furnished by a private detective agency of Evans and Hamberg and it is believed that the identification was sufficient.

"Five hundred and thirteen orders of 2546 bulbs were sent in by 125 children and sales of 4611 bulbs were made to outside parties. The total receipts were $104.39 and the expenditure for bulbs $95.96, leaving a balance of $8.44. The total number of bulbs sold was 6359.

"The flowers were very good and the display last spring in the school was very attractive.

"An effort was made to have as many bulbs in bloom as possible at the time of the exhibition and, with the assistance of the teachers, fair results were obtained.

"The judges for awarding the prizes were Ernest Wheeler and Rev. J. Harold Dale, for all the schools other than the Talbot, and Rev. Charles H. Williams and Mrs. George Whiteside and Mrs. George Colson for the latter.

"Circulars were also distributed in March, 1910, offering flower seeds and gladiolus bulbs at one cent each for the bulb and one cent for packet of seed, and orders were received for 1728 packets from 151 children.

"The seed and bulbs for the summer competition were purchased of the Home Gardening Association, Cleveland, Ohio.

"The same prizes were offered as last year, for best kept premises, vines, window and porch boxes, flower gardens, and vegetable gardens. Thirty-six entered this competition. The names of the prize winners for the competition will be given out by the chairman of the board of judges, Rev. J. Harold Dale. The names of the board of judges are Rev. J. Harold Dale, Rev. Charles H. Williams, Mrs. Frederic S. Clark, Mrs. Sidney A. Bull.

"The committee, finding that the annual meeting of the association would be late in October, sent out the circulars to the schools and the orders for fall bulbs have been taken for 4665, which we hope to soon place in the schools.

"The committee wishes to thank the judges for their time and the valuable assistance they have given this committee and we hope that they will continue with the work."

The report is signed by the committee: Ivory M. Hanson, chairman; Frederic S. Clark, Rev. Charles H. Williams, Dr. C. E. Hosmer, Mrs. George Whiteside, Mrs. B. F. Harding.

Rally at Old Boston & Maine Depot This Evening

Messrs. Foss and Cassidy Will Address Two Rallies Here on Thursday—Col. Carmichael Enthusiastically Received in Lawrence

Candidate Kieley of Lynn, the democratic senatorial nominee in the seventh senatorial district, made his first public appearance in Lowell this noon at a noon-day rally at the Carbridge shop cars in Lawrence street and made a most favorable impression upon a large gathering of workmen.

Mr. Kieley, who is a forceful speaker, impressed upon his audience the fact that his candidacy this year is no forlorn hope, but that he could be elected provided he received the full democratic strength of the district.

He discussed in an able manner the issues of the campaign and was cheered at the conclusion of his remarks.

This evening he will speak with others at a big rally to be held at the old Boston & Maine depot (indoor) and on Thursday will hold a noon-day rally at the plant of the American Hide & Leather company in Perry street.

Thursday Night's Rally

As it has been found impossible to engage Associate hall for Thursday evening, two rallies will be held, one in the Matthews hall in Dutton street and the other in Lincoln hall in Gorham street. At both of these Messrs. Foss and Cassidy will speak, and among the other speakers will be Col. Carmichael, Hon. Fisher H. Pearson, and others.

Col. Carmichael in Lawrence

Col. Carmichael had a lengthy conference with Paul Hannegan, the officers of the Lawrence city committee and other prominent democrats of that city yesterday afternoon, returning to Lowell last evening. Colonel Carmichael was given assurance that he would receive the full democratic strength of that city and he replied that in the event of receiving the full vote of Lawrence he would be elected.

This noon Col. Carmichael addressed a noonday rally at the gates of the Arlington mills. The noonday rally is a new idea in Lawrence and attracted an enthusiastic audience of 1000 work-

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Police measures today were more comprehensive than ever for the preservation of order in the strike of several thousand express company employees which has practically tied up express traffic through this city for several years past and has been accompanied by serious rioting. Police officers and special guards swarmed about the danger points at express company offices and stables where hundreds of strikebreakers have been gathered and the city authorities were prepared they said, to give wagons sent out all needed protection.

Possible results were looked for today from the conference held by Governor Port of New Jersey late yesterday with representatives of the strikers in Jersey City and later with company officials in Manhattan. It was stated that the New Jersey executive made known to the company officials what the strikers demands were. While no official statement on the result of the conference could be had it was understood that all but one of the companies were willing to consider the chief demand of the strikers—recognition of their union.

Companies represented at the conference, it was said, were the United States, Adams, American, Wells Fargo and National. Practically all the express lines of the city are now involved, the ground covered by the walkout including Jersey City, Hoboken and other territory in the metropolitan district. Wagons of the companies are moved in Manhattan only through specially guarded streets and avenues designated by the police. It was reported this morning that the department store drivers would be called out today in aid of the express men.

The National Civic Federation looked over the strike situation today with a view of possibly bringing about an amicable agreement between the expressmen and the various companies affected.

John Mitchell, a member of the executive council, came to this city on an early train and went at once to the offices of the federation. There he held a long conference with several of the federation officers, discussing at length the strike troubles.

Mr. Mitchell stated that he was not conversant enough with the question at stake to comment in any way at present.

Some time ago the board of charities received a communication from Inspector Roche of the district police, calling attention to the fact that an engineer employed at the Chelmsford Street hospital was working more than eight hours a day and that the statute providing for an eight hour day applied to the engineer in question.

The board decided to get the opinion of the city solicitor in the matter and in his letter asking for an opinion the chairman of the board, Dr. James J. McCarthy, suggested to City Solicitor Duncan that the statute in this particular case was a bit ambiguous, and to this the city solicitor agreed.

Mr. Duncan, however, is of the opinion that the engineer at the Chelmsford Street hospital is not exempt from the provisions of the law. His opinion is as follows:

Office of City Solicitor,
Lowell, Mass., Nov. 1, 1910.

Gentlemen: I have your communication of Oct. 26th, asking for a construction of Section 39 of Chapter 514 of the Acts of 1909, and its application to the engineer at the Lowell Chelmsford Street hospital.

Section 37 of said chapter provides that "eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen and mechanics, now or hereafter employed by or on behalf of the commonwealth, or of any county therein, or of any city or town which prior to the 28th day of June in the year 1907 had accepted the provisions of Section 29 of Chapter 196 of the Revised Laws."

Said section further provides that "engineers" shall be considered "mechanics" within the meaning of the section.

By Section 29 of said chapter the provisions of Section 37 do "not apply to persons employed in any state, county or municipal institution, on the farm, or in the care of the grounds, in the stable, in the domestic or kitchen and dining room service, or in store-rooms or offices."

A first glance at the exceptions enumerated in this last section might make it appear that persons employed in state, county or municipal institutions in any capacity were excepted from the provisions of Section 37, and that the expressions "on the farm" or "in the care of the grounds," etc. referred to additional instances where the statute was not to apply. But my interpretation is, that these latter expressions are merely put in to restrict and modify those which precede them. In other words, to indicate clearly how far the non-application of the "eight hour law" is to extend in reference to public institutions.

I am therefore of the opinion that, since engineers are not among those employees specifically referred to in Section 39 as excepted from the provisions of the law, they must be employed in conformance therewith.

This covers the case of the person referred to in your communication.

Very truly yours,
Wm. W. Duncan,
City Solicitor.

CAPT. McDONALD Searching for Heirs of Cyrus Baldwin

Capt. M. Eugene McDonald, inspector of claims in the office of the city solicitor, is searching for the heirs of Cyrus Baldwin who, in 1812, gave for educational purposes the land on which was built the old Middlesex Village school. The old school has been abandoned and the city wants to sell it, but before doing so the heirs of Cyrus Baldwin must be consulted.

When Mr. Baldwin gave the land to the city there was a provision in the deed of gift to the effect that a school house should be built there within a year and that if the schoolhouse should be destroyed by fire, tempest or other casualty, or if the school should be transferred the land would revert to the heirs. Now it is up to the city to find the heirs and ascertain if they are willing to sign a release.

WALEs IS GUILTY

Convicted of Assaulting and Robbing Young Woman

WORCESTER, Nov. 1.—After 17 hours of deliberation, a jury in the Worcester county superior court today returned a verdict of guilty against William R. Wales, a night watchman of Clinton, who was charged with assault and robbery on Miss Catherine A. Kelly, also of Clinton, last September.

Miss Kelly, who was employed in a Worcester department store, was returning to her home in Clinton late at night on Sept. 2 last, when she was attacked by a man who felled her with an iron bar. The young woman's skull was fractured and the bones of one of her hands were broken. Just before becoming unconscious she obtained a look at her assailant and later positively identified Wales as the man who attacked her. The assault was followed by the robbery of two dollars.

For several weeks Miss Kelly was at the point of death in the Clinton hospital, but eventually recovered. Previous to her arrest Wales had borne a good reputation.

It was expected that sentence would be imposed later in the day.

TRAIL OF BURGLARIES

Police Say That Boy Admitted Twelve Breaks

MONTEPELIER, Vt., Nov. 1.—A trail of 12 burglaries, beginning Oct. 27 at Perkinsville and extending to Roxbury, where a break was made last night, was brought to an end yesterday afternoon when Sheriff Tracey arrested a boy of 16 years, who is said to have confessed to all the breaks.

The boy gives his name as Herbert Gladstone Wood, and up to the time he commenced his career was helping on a farm at Baltimore and then at Proctorville. His work showed that he was not a professional, but the officers were surprised when the arrest was made to find they had been on the trail of so young a burglar and one apparently not over bright.

The list of burglaries to which he has confessed includes four at Proctorville, three at Evansville, two at Wells River, two at Perkinsville, and one at Roxbury. He was not particular about what he broke into but took dwelling houses, stores, railroad stations and postoffices indiscriminately, using in every case the crudest means of gaining entrance. His booty ranged all the way from cash, revolvers, clothing, shoes, watches, stamps, down to popcorn and in value probably amounts to not more than $200.

The two postoffice breaks were at Proctorville and Evansville and for these the boy may get a long sentence.

The numerous breaks about the state were brought to the attention of W. Morgan of the Boston detective firm of Wood & Morgan on the track of the burglar. Step by step Mr. Morgan traced him until he learned that he had a sister in Montpelier. This made Morgan think that he would sooner or later land here and so he came Saturday for a conference with Sheriff Tracey. It was impossible to find anyone here by the name of Gladstone, so Mr. Morgan went back to Baltimore and dug out the fact that the fellow's real name was Wood, which made it easy to locate two sisters of his in Barre.

Meanwhile Sheriff Baldwin of Wells River had got into the case, on account of the two breaks in his town, and when Wood arrived here yesterday and tried to dispose of some of the property stolen in Wells River, word was quickly sent to Sheriff Tracey and with the description he had the boy was soon behind the bars. When arrested Wood had with him a revolver stolen at the Evansville postoffice and carried an electric searchlight.

He took his arrest coolly and seemed

Settled Out of Court During Trial

The case of Marr vs. Boston & Northern street railroad, which went to trial in the superior court yesterday morning and which was to have been concluded today, was settled out of court last evening and at the opening of the session this morning upon agreement of counsel a verdict for the defendant was ordered. Pratt & Devine were counsel for the plaintiff, and Trull & Wier for the defendant company.

The plaintiff in this case was Simon D. Marr of Lowell, aged 75 years, and he claimed that he was injured by falling from a car at the junction of Bridge and First streets on May 8, 1909. At that time he was working as a carriage painter. He was returning to his home in Lowell on Saturday night. He claims that when the car was nearing Bridge street he told the conductor that he wished to get off at Bridge street. Shortly afterward the conductor called out "Bridge street" and he went out to the platform and held on to the rail. The car was all the time slowing down and he stood there waiting for it to stop. When it was apparently about to come to a full stop, it suddenly started up again, and he was unable to keep his balance and hold on. He was thrown to the ground, striking on his head.

There was some testimony that the car had come to a full stop before the plaintiff was thrown.

The defense claimed that the car had not come to a full stop, but was moving when Mr. Marr attempted to get off.

The case of Peck vs. Dryer, to recover for an alleged assault, then went to trial. Lawyer Hanel for the plaintiff and Pratt & Devine for the defendant.

PRESENTED WATCH

MISS SADIE FLANAGAN SURPRISED BY HER FRIENDS

A very enjoyable Halloween party was held at the home of Miss Sadie Flanagan on Appleton street last evening. The house was decorated for the occasion with the national colors and corn husks, while jack-o'-lanterns and pumpkins were everywhere in evidence.

Lively indeed were the spirits of the young people as they started the merry-making, and soon was the competition for prizes offered in "Snap the Apple" and other well known Halloween games. Even the older folks present forgot themselves for the time being and entered into the games with as much enthusiasm and vigor as that shown by the younger people. Everything was carried out in "Ye Old Fashioned Way."

In the midst of the festivities Mr. Leo Robitaille stepped forward and in a most speech presented Miss Sadie Flanagan with a handsome gold watch and pin in behalf of her many friends. Miss Flanagan although almost overcome with surprise thanked her guests for the unexpected gift and wished them a very pleasant evening. A fine musical program was then carried out which included piano selections by Miss Bessie Robitaille and Miss Kathleen Kneafsey and vocal solos by Miss Harriet Moran, Miss Claire Howe, Miss Annie Flanagan and others. Refreshments were served.

MILK PRODUCERS

Charged With Violating Pure Food Law

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 1.—In the United States court this morning proceedings were brought on information by District Attorney Holt of Nashua against eleven New Hampshire milk producers in the violation of the pure food law in the shipping of milk containing deleterious and noxious matter to the Boston market. Each entered a plea of not guilty and Judge Edgar Aldrich imposed a fine of $10 without costs.

PRICE OF COAL INCREASED

The price of coal took a jump today. It was announced that the local dealers have been obliged to advance the cost of coal to 38 per ton.

DEATHS

McEVoy—Mary Louise McEvoy, aged 22 years, died today at her late home, 109 Powell street. She was the daughter of Patrick H. and Bridget A. McEvoy and, besides her parents, she is survived by two sisters, Catherine and Grace.

RAILROADS LEASED

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 1.—A contract was signed today by the minister of public works and a syndicate of Paris bankers giving the latter a lease of the federal railroads in the state of Bahia and providing for the construction of extensions of the lines.

The Frenchmen secured control of 130 miles of road. The cost of the extensions is estimated at $35,000,000, payable in federal bonds.

DELIGHTFUL PARTY

A delightful Halloween party was held last evening at Mr. A. M. Lewis' bungalow, Island Pond, Pelham, N. H. The company left Lowell in a wagonette early in the evening and arriving at the bungalow the party at once became interested in finding out what their fate was to be. They were also pleasantly entertained by Miss Elsie M. Grant and Miss Bessie M. Johnson, both of whom presided at the piano. Before the return trip, a bountiful supper was served, and everybody reported a most enjoyable time.

TAKES A HAND IN NEW YORK CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—President Taft's interest in the republican state campaign was shown today by his cabinet officer, James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, and of his secretary, Chas. G. Norton. Mr. Wilson left this afternoon to deliver three or four campaign speeches through the state. Mr. Norton, it was said, was here primarily to see the city's budget exhibit, but he held conferences with both Henry L. Stimson, the republican candidate for governor and Ezra P. Prentice, chairman of the republican state committee. Secretary Wilson said that he did not know much about the local state issues but he added:

"I take it for granted that Roosevelt will carry things as usual."

"If the house of representatives is

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS

Miss Bertha Dalton of 15 Lamb street entertained a number of friends at a delightful Halloween party at her home last evening. There were games appropriate to the evening. There were piano solos by Mr. Leo Pratt; vocal selections by Miss Annie Gaylor, Mr. Roarke and Mr. Dalton. Refreshments were served.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the undersigned, take this means of expressing our sincere thanks to our many kind relatives, neighbors and friends who, by their many acts of kindness, words of consolation and beautiful floral offerings helped to lighten the burden of sorrow in the death of our beloved son and brother, Thomas E. Tighe. We are especially grateful to the members of the Lowell police department and the members of the C. Y. M. L. of St. Patrick's parish. Their kindness will always be remembered and appreciated by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Tighe and Family.

YOUTH ARRESTED

Is Charged With Being a Tramp

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 1.—A well dressed youth of 20 years, who gave his name as George Snorison and who said that his home was at Grand Rapids, Mich., was brought before the district court today to answer to the charge of being a tramp. Snorison said that he had a good home at Grand Rapids, which he left a short time ago, coming east to Providence, R. I., where he stayed for a time with an aunt, Al Providence, he said. He met two Harvard students from Michigan and came with them to Cambridge in the expectation that they would find him employment as a chauffeur. He was unable to obtain work and his Harvard friends, he said, helped him out to the extent of three dollars in cash and a check for five dollars. It was while he was trying to cash the check that he was arrested. He had not applied to his parents for assistance, he said, because he did not wish them to know of his financial straits.

Judge Almy continued the case until Saturday for investigation.

6 O'CLOCK A WORLD'S RECORD

Johnstone in Airship Attained Altitude of 9714 Feet

BEAUMONT PARK, L. I., Nov. 1.—America's first international aviation meet closed last night with a world's record for altitude, made by Ralph Johnstone of the Wright camp, flying a special Wright machine constructed for high climbing.

Johnstone's height as announced unofficially when he came down at dark was 9714 feet. The best previous record was 9188 feet, made at Mourmelon, France, a few weeks ago, by Henry Myadmond, a Hollander, flying a Farman biplane. Johnstone won by his high flight a special prize of $5000. The machine in which Johnstone made his record was brought to this meet by the Wright brothers for the purpose which was accomplished yesterday. It is much smaller than any of the regulation Wright machines, having only 180 square feet of wing surface. Its engine was a 20-horsepower, four cylinder, and its special climbing ability was due in a large degree to extra long wing tips.

The Wright brothers had prize and on carrying this record and figure and at the proper moment trotted out their little machine and their best climber went after the record and brought it down in the most matter of fact manner imaginable.

Johnstone ascended at 3.31, one minute after the bomb had gone off for the special altitude contest. He was dressed for cold climbing, his costume consisting of long rubber leggings, leather coat below the hips, a leather cap coming well down to the back of the neck, a leather mask that covered his face, except for eyebrows, and yellow glass goggles.

When Johnstone had climbed into his seat, Orville Wright had a last word with him, giving him instructions on the control of the machine, in which Johnstone had never been before.

The young man listened attentively to his master, touched a lever, a switch and a few wires and was ready to start. After the propeller had been started Wilbur Wright, arrayed like his brother in ministerial black and a derby, came up and spoke to the young aviator, shouting a few words of farewell counsel.

Before the brothers stepped aside, Orville waved his hand in signal, the men at the tail of the machine let go their hold and the little climber started up.

Johnstone flew toward the south, going over the grandstand. At a height of about 500 feet he began to turn, and thereupon he went up and up, in the spiral, for half an hour, his machine at last opening mere flecks of white and silver against the pale blue of a cloudless sky.

Finally, the crowd on the ground completely lost track of the machine and turned its attention to other matters.

There was enough to engage its attention. Following Johnstone, in a few minutes, young J. Armstrong Drexel of Philadelphia ascended in his Blériot monoplane, also out for the grand prize in altitude. He also spiraled up into the blue until he was a smudge of dark brown on the sky. Then he, too, was forgotten.

In the race play of the swift Johnstone came down in a swift descent that made the crowd about the field gasp. It seemed as if he were dropping headlong to earth. But he was not. Practiced eyes saw that he was coming in graceful, short spirals. This ended with a steep volplane to the field, where he alighted as easily as if he had been up only five minutes.

Biting Cold
An official automobile dashed across the field and came back with Johnstone's barograph. Only a glance at it was needed to show that the plucky young driver had brought to America the great honor of a world's altitude record.

Johnstone had been in the air an hour and a half. On being interviewed, he said he had found it easy climbing for the first mile and a half. He had met very little wind and had only a few clouds. He had passed an altitude of 8,800 feet, as indicated on a small aneroid barometer he wore strapped to his wrist, he had very hard work getting higher, owing to the rarity of the atmosphere and the diminished lifting power of his planes.

He kept on going until he found that his gasoline was running low, and guessing on how much he would need to take him to earth, at last turned downward. As he had never been in one of the small machines before he did not know enough about his air steed to let it coast freely, so he came down in moderate spirals until near the earth. At that he was but three minutes in descending a mile.

He said his worst experience in the flight was with the cold. In spite of his armor it was biting. He had no trouble in breathing at the high altitude, but he was perfectly numb when the machine reached the ground.

and hardly able to walk for a few minutes after alighting.

Drexel Forced to Descend
After Johnstone's return many anxious eyes were turned up to the evening sky in quest of first glimpses of Drexel. One the field a string of red cotton lights were burning, and in their ghostly glare the dark wings of the gliding monoplane could at last be seen, coming down in a circle.

Drexel's barograph showed an altitude attained of 8370 feet, a height of a few months ago would have constituted a world's record, and a figure far in excess of that credited to the young man's flight at Lanark, Scot., a few months ago.

Drexel on alighting said his greatest trouble was from nausea. "I was knocked about up there in a frightful manner," he said, "and that with the thin air made me sick. So I had to descend."

DENOUNCES NEW POLYGAMY
SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 1.—The president of the quorum of the twelve apostles of the Mormon church, Francis Lyman, yesterday denounced before his congregation the new polygamy which has been openly charged against the Mormon church and never been denied. Apostle Lyman is next in succession in the church to President Joseph Smith.

The manifesto against polygamy given to the church is quite as binding as any written revelation and we are bound by it," said Apostle Lyman. "We doubted the constitutionality of the laws against the practice but they have been tested and sustained in the courts and we must obey them. This skulduggery must cease. Some men and women have got into the fashion of having visions and dreams about this, but let me assure you that all such manifestations come from the devil."

JUDGE STEVENS
SAYS BEER AND CIGARETS WERE RESPONSIBLE FOR FIRE

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Beer and cigarettes as causes for fire were pointed out by Judge J. P. Stevens in the case of Maurice O'Keefe in the superior criminal court yesterday.

"When I was district attorney," said Judge Stevens, "I knew a case where a hard cider got barns burned up. There was a man charged, like this defendant, with burning. He liked hard cider, and as soon as he got some he would make straightway for the nearest barn and set fire to it. Now, this man O'Keefe drank beer instead of hard cider."

"Yes, and smoked cigarettes," chimed in State Police Commissioner Cyrus Smith, whom the judge was addressing.

"Yes, beer and cigarettes, that did it," replied the judge.

Then he sent Maurice O'Keefe, 28 years old, of 15 Shepley street, Brighton, to state prison for three to five years. O'Keefe was convicted of burning the stable of Amos J. Ford, at 22 Snow street, Brighton, on the evening of Aug. 27. The loss was $30,000. Officer Smith said O'Keefe told him he had also set fire to his own house, and to the stable of his uncle, Michael O'Keefe.

TO BE DEPORTED
Boy Has Relatives in This City

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—The Cymric of the White Star line sailed from Charlestown at 10 this morning for Queenstown and Liverpool, with 23 saloon passengers and 150 steerage.

In the steerage will be several aliens who are deported and some of the cases are particularly pathetic. Delta Murphy came here from Ireland on the Cymric to join her sister, but the sister died here. When the sad news was broken to the girl she wept bitterly and said she preferred to return to her old home. She will take back with her the effects of her dead sister.

James O'Keefe, aged 18, will be sent back to Ireland because he was judged to be mentally impaired. The boy's relatives reside in Lowell and sent for the boy to complete the family circle. When the Cymric arrived last week they were all on the pier to welcome him. The boy's mother pleaded for the release of the boy but the law in such cases is inexorable.

One of the crew of the British steamer Riplingham, which arrived here a few days ago after an exciting experience in the tropical hurricane, will return to their homes in England on the steamer. They were all suffering with malaria contracted in Mexico, and while they have practically recovered, it was thought best to send them back to England, as the steamer is going back to Mexico and they are in no condition to stand another attack of the disease.

The owners of the Riplingham will defray the expense and the arrangements for their passage on the Cymric general. Their names are: Thomas O'Neil, Alfred Hernandez and John O'Neil, sailors; Philip S. Cleghorn, deckhand; John G. Nelson, Joseph Thompson, John Johnson, John Stafford and James Hackett, stowmen.

The Cymric shipment of apples will probably be the largest sent from here this season. It is expected she will carry over 25,000 barrels. She will also have 147,000 bushels of wheat, 300 tons of flour, 150 tons of provisions, 100 tons of lumber, 20 tons of hay, 40 tons of cattle and one refrigerator of frozen goods.

FUNERALS

HEBERT—The funeral of Alfred Hebert took place yesterday from his home, 6 Arthur avenue, with solemn funeral services at 8 o'clock at St. Jean Baptiste church. Rev. Frs. Watelle, Berneche and Queltette, O.M.I., officiated. The choir sang Perreault's mass, Dr. Calise directing, and Arthur J. Martel playing the organ. The bearers were Marcel, Solomon, and Joseph Hebert, Eugene and Telephone Boudreau and Napoleon St. Amund. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery and the grave, Berneche officiated at the grave. Undertaker Joseph Albert had charge.

COUILLARD—The funeral of Miss Adele Couillard took place yesterday from her home, 784 Moody street, with solemn funeral services at St. Jean Baptiste church. Rev. Frs. Brullard, Gratton and Amyot, O.M.I., officiated. The choir sang Perreault's mass, Dr. Calise directing, and Arthur J. Martel playing the organ. The bearers were Edouard, Clement, Emile and Napoleon Gaudet, Paul Desilets and Bernard Fortin. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery and the grave, Berneche officiated at the grave. Undertaker Joseph Albert had charge.

GROUX—The funeral of Lillian Alice Groux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Groux, took place yesterday from her home, 156 Riverside street, and was largely attended. Solemn funeral services were held at St. Jean Baptiste church, Rev. Frs. Baron, Gratton and Racette, O.M.I., officiated. The choir sang Perreault's mass, with Dr. Calise directing and Arthur J. Martel playing the organ. The children of Mary Sodre were represented by Misses Donald, Parent, Marie, Anne, Ouellette, Laura, Pauline, Alice, Morchand, Lea, Renier and Anna Desrosiers. The Third Order was represented by Misses Alice Gellins, Marie Rose Racette, Yvonne Gauthier, and Lucie Queltette. The bearers were Leo and Arthur Groux, Thane, Racette, Blanchette, Armand Marchand and Joseph and Henri Bisillon.

Among the floral tributes was a wreath on base from Mrs. Marchand and the Misses Beaumont and a large cross on pedestal from the following associates of deceased's father on the jury of the superior civil court now in session: H. Bailey, Alton Lovejoy, John Hager, Thomas Barnes, Christopher Byrne, Wm. C. Bacon, E. C. Baldwin, Charles Adams, Wm. B. Gray, Edwin A. Bingham, Jr., Francis Pagan, Henry Jenkins, Luther Ford, Wm. A. Hickey, Walter C. Gordon, E. F. Linahan, Jr., Henry A. Balon, Dwight R. Bean, Charles H. Cutler, Willis W. Fairbank, Wm. E. Condit, Edwin R. Plint, Frank E. Haddock, Benjamin F. Hatch, Jeremiah Flynn, Francis H. Creed, Lewis B. Call, Robert W. Forest, James E. Fulton, Luther Blackie. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, and Rev. Fr. Berneche officiated at the grave. Undertaker Joseph Albert had charge.

SMITH—Miss Laura King Smith died at the Groton hospital on Saturday evening, the 29th, three days following her birthday anniversary.

She is survived by two brothers, Norman, of a Boston, Danforth; Fred of Providence, and a half-sister, Mrs. Addie Kittredge, of Ashmont. Funeral services were held in the ladies' parlor of the Congregational church, on Monday, Rev. G. M. Howe officiating, and the singing of the hymns, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and "Softly and Sweetly," completed the service.

Burial was in the family lot in Groton cemetery. There were choice flowers in abundance.

THOMPSON—The funeral of Dorothy Thompson, daughter of Daken and Lizzie Thompson, took place Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the residence, 87 Thornehill street, Rev. E. V. Bigelow conducted the services. Burial was in the Edson cemetery under the direction of J. A. Weinbeck.

FRACKLETON—The funeral of James Frackleton took place Monday morning at 10 o'clock from the residence, 33 Williams street, Haverhill, Mass. Rev. Paul J. Lux was the officiating clergyman. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. Burial was in the Edson cemetery under the direction of J. A. Weinbeck.

HARRIS—The funeral of Mrs. Abbie S. Harris, took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her residence, 33 Smith street. The services were conducted by Rev. Julius P. West, pastor of the Highland M. E. church. Services were also held by the James A. Garfield Woman's Relief corps. 23. Appropriate selections were sung by Mrs. Hattie Whitney. The bearers were Daniel W. Parker, Herbert H. Russell, George A. Cheney and William A. Smith. Burial was in the Edson cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George W. Itteley. The following is a list of the floral offerings: Sprays, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. MacDonald, Eliot Bible class, Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Lamson, Mrs. Oke, Mrs. Dunfee, Mr. and Mrs. George Skuner, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Russell, Mrs. Ada Robinson, Grand F. Dameron, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Parker and Mrs. Frederick, wreaths, Mr. F. B. Davis and family and the Central club; baskets, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lawrence and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stearns, and a mound from the James A. Garfield Woman's Relief Corps No. 33.

FUNERAL NOTICE

ROACHE—The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary A. Roache, will take place tomorrow morning from her residence, 33 East Main street, at 10 o'clock. Mass of requiem will be sung in St. Patrick's church at 10 o'clock. Funeral will be in charge of P. H. Savage.

SCARLET FEVER

ONE CASE REPORTED TO BOARD OF HEALTH

One case of scarlet fever and one case of diphtheria were reported at the office of the board of health this forenoon. No new cases of typhoid have been reported within the last few days.

ROOSEVELT'S CAMPAIGN TRIP

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Theodore Roosevelt arrived in Rochester early today on the last day of his campaign in New York state. After spending an hour here he left on a special train for a day's trip of speechmaking. He will reach Buffalo at 6 o'clock. He will leave Buffalo at the conclusion of the morning, reaching New York tomorrow morning.

INCREASE IN WAGES

HAVERTHILL, Nov. 1.—An increase of wages is announced for the operatives of the F. M. Hodgdon shoe factory. As a result of representations made to their employer an agreement has been reached whereby the outside cutters who are day hands will receive $1.65 a week. The piece cutters have been granted an increase of from one to two cents on almost every pattern.

CALLER A DRAW

Battling Nelson Has Lost His Steam

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Battling Nelson in a 15 round draw with Antonio LaGrave here last night proved himself unable to come back. He displayed his old-time boxing tactics and kept after LaGrave from the start, but was not quite good enough. Several times the Duce had the local boy worried, but he could not gather the force to send home a knockout punch. LaGrave was nervous at first. For three or four rounds it looked as though the old champion was going to have an easy time of it. Driving in straight lefts, varied now and then with the old right cross, which helped him to the title, Nelson drove his man around the ring.

After three or four rounds of this LaGrave steadied down and fought back. He showed little science, but was rugged and game while his opponent stayed off defeat which threatened him as far along as the twelfth round. The Battler showed no little cleverness in blocking, but this was offset by his wildness. He missed time and again with his right cross to the jaw. In his last round LaGrave stood up without flinching to get-and-take and slugging him that brought the crowd to its feet. The men were hammering away without evidence of distress when the clang came.

CARBONI ALIVE

Medium Said That He Was Dead

LYNN, Nov. 1.—At the Lynn police station yesterday, a letter was received from a medium in Edgewood, E. J., who declared that Michael Carboni, the Watch and Ward detective who disappeared last week, had been murdered. As Carboni appeared in Lynn yesterday the police will not dredge for his body as advised.

Carboni had been a leading witness in a number of police cases which have been tried in the Lynn court recently.

In the letter which was signed by Mrs. F. A. Hall, the writer declared that Carboni had been murdered by one of the 40 thieves of Boston. She declared that his ghost had appeared to her and had told her how-and-take and slugging him that brought the crowd to its feet. The ghost, she declared, said that the body was taken in an automobile and thrown into a pond in Lynn.

Carboni, agent for the Watch and Ward society, whose disappearance Oct. 22 caused fears of foul play because of his exposure of Captain Seelye, has got back to his home, 211 Endicott street, with a story of having lain unconscious in a New York lodging house after being dragged in a Boston hotel. Recovering from the drug he wired his wife and she went at once to New York and brought him home.

PICKETING SQUAD

New Phase of Garment Workers Strike

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—A new phase of the strike of the garment workers today was the inauguration of a systematic picketing squad, according to rule of the women and girls. The women's trade union league has compiled a set of rules for girl pickets and before the striking girls or the society women who were to come out in full force today were allowed on the picket line they first had to attend the "picket school."

Legal talent was consulted and the rules were written so as to keep the pickets within the letter of the law. At least 15,000 of the 40,000 persons now on strike are girls and women.

The rules are as follows: Don't walk in groups of more than two. Don't stand in front of the shop. Don't stop the person you wish to speak to; walk alongside of him. Don't put your hand on the person you are speaking to. This may be construed as a "technical assault." You are to use "business" language or no language at all. No cursing or use of abusive language of any kind. Please, persuade, appeal, but do not threaten. If a policeman arrests you and you are sure that you have committed no offence take down his number and give it to your union officers.

INDIAN LANDS

To be Opened to Public Entry Today

KALISPEL, Mont., Nov. 1.—The fireworks to mark the opening of the last Flathead Indian lands to public entry today were primed at noon yesterday when the first claimant took his station at the public office door. He kept his vigil there all night in company with several others who arrived later. Some exciting incidents were expected today for many hired horses and had them made ready in relays. Others chartered gasoline launches and left last night and ploughed their way up the west shore of the lake in the darkness. Crowds reached Smith's early on regular boats this morning.

LOST THEIR CHANCES

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho, Nov. 1.—Shivering in miners' tents, some without shelter and little bedding, approximately 1,000 "sooners" squatted on land in the Coeur D'Alene reservation last night waiting the signal opening the unlocated tracts to general settlement at noon today. Following the recent land drawing all who drew lucky numbers and did not file, lost their chances.

ADMIRAL BARRIEM COMMANDS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Rear Admiral W. D. Barriem assumed command of the Pacific cruiser fleet today relieving Rear Admiral Giles B. Harber, who is leaving for Honolulu next Monday. The cruiser West Virginia becomes the flagship of the fleet, succeeding the California, which has been delegated to the north Pacific division. The second division, command of which has been assigned to Rear Admiral Chauncey Thomas.

BADLY BURNED

Hull Woman Not Expected to Live

HULL, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Thomas M. Paine, aged 58, of Atlantic avenue, Groton Hill, this town, was severely burned in her home last night, and it is feared she cannot recover. Her husband also was badly burned while trying to aid her.

Mr. and Mrs. Paine are among the oldest residents of this town. They have seven grown up children, four daughters and three sons, who do not live at home.

Mr. Paine sleeps upstairs in their little home, and Mrs. Paine sleeps in a chamber on the first floor. As usual, they retired early. At 6.30 Mr. Paine heard his wife crying for help. He ran downstairs in his night clothing and found her in the bed, which was a mass of flames. He attempted to extinguish the flames and in doing so was severely burned about the legs, arms and hands.

Mr. Paine was driving by the Paine house at the time and he saw smoke coming out of the door and heard cries for help. Paine went inside and found Mrs. Paine fighting to save his wife's life. Paine went to her aid and called in neighbors, and the flames were extinguished before they had spread to the house.

Mrs. Paine was shockingly burned from the hips to the shoulders. She was taken to Massachusetts General hospital.

Before Mrs. Paine became unconscious she said she got out of bed to get a glass of water and in doing so lit the kerosene lamp. The lamp was found burning and it had not exploded. It was thought that after she lit the lamp she unwittingly threw the match into the bed clothes, which smoldered and burst into flames shortly after Mrs. Paine got back into bed.

In his early days Mr. Paine was captain of the Red Jackets, a company of volunteer firemen of Charles-town which ran with a handiuh. He is well known among the veteran firemen's organizations of the country.

HAS RESIGNED

Viscount Morley Gives Up Office

LONDON, Nov. 1.—It is stated that Viscount Morley has resigned the office of secretary of state for India and the fact that he declines information on the subject is accepted as confirmation of the report of his retirement. The viscount is in his 73d year and it is known that he has for some time desired to vacate his post because of his advanced years and ill health.

The Earl of Crewe is mentioned as likely to succeed Viscount Morley.

BOSTON HERALD

WAS TURNED OVER TO NEW HANDS TODAY

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—The Boston Herald passed today into new hands after a four months' receivership and the new owners of the property, of which Morton G. Plant of New York is the largest, have relinquished the control to a board of trustees. Those now in charge are Richard Olney, Major Henry Lee Higginson, Robert M. Burdett and Henry S. Howe. Robert Lincoln O'Brien, a newspaperman of national reputation, is the editor, and J. Wells Farley, a young lawyer, and a famous Harvard football player of ten years ago, is its counsel and treasurer. The trustees are all well known men. Richard Olney is a former secretary of state, Major Higginson is a well known banker, John H. Holmes was the manager of the Herald at the height of its prosperity, and Robert Burdett is the head of the largest firm in New England, while Henry S. Howe is a prominent Boston commission merchant. It is stated that these five men can make no profit out of the enterprise, their services being secured only by an appeal to their civic pride. It is also announced that the paper will not be made "business" voluminous, either week days or Sundays. The work is to go forward, not by resorting to sensational methods or needless experimentation, but by supporting in the interests of the public, sane and progressive policies without regard to their origin.

$1,000,000 LOSS

6000 Bales of Cotton Were Burned

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Nov. 1.—Several large cotton sheds and 6,000 bales of cotton were burned today. The loss is about $1,000,000.

PRES. JORDAN

ASCIBES CAUSE FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 1.—The high cost of living which we are feeling now is partly due to the outcome of the Russo-Japanese war," declared David Starr Jordan, president of the Leland Stanford, Jr., university, in a speech last night on "International Peace."

"The whole world helps to pay the penalty of any war. Governments are now ruled by their capitalists. The drain of war in life and blood has lowered the quality of the race and has placed the notions under hands to the inevitable empire of wealth than can ever be paid. Every grain of power is staggering under the weight of the interest charges alone."

KING ALFONSO

DECLINES TO ASSUME PLENARY POWERS

MADRID, Nov. 1.—The recent statement of the Dileto Universal, the ministerial organ, that King Alfonso would decline to assume plenary powers in the settlement of the boundary dispute between Ecuador and Peru and would propose that the parties invest themselves with the qualities of a friendly arbitrator is considered official.

A TRIPLE TRAGEDY

In a Fall River Home Was Narrowly Averted

FALL RIVER, Nov. 1.—A triple tragedy was narrowly averted in a tenement at 207 John street yesterday when James Powers of 449 4th street was arrested, charged with assault and battery on his wife, Mary, and murderous assault on his brother-in-law, Michael Donovan.

Powers was convicted a short time ago of assault on his wife and sentenced to the house of correction. Since then she has not been living with him.

Yesterday morning it is alleged, Powers stood at the corner of John and Morgan streets to intercept his wife on her way to work in the mill, and as she attempted to pass him he struck her. There were several persons near at the time and Powers ran off when he saw them.

Mrs. Powers was not able to go to the mill and returned home. The attention of the police was called to the case and they went searching for Powers. He had eluded the police and about 11 o'clock started for the home of his wife at 207 John street.

Just as the officers reached the house they heard a revolver shot.

Rushing into the tenement the policeman saw Powers and Michael Donovan in tight embrace. Over in a corner stood Mrs. Powers, while two neighbors were on the verge of collapse in another corner. Powers' right hand gripped a revolver, the police say, and Donovan was struggling with him for possession of it. Prompt action was necessary and Officer Heffernan clubbed Powers into submission.

It was learned by the police that Powers entered the tenement and, shouting to his wife, told her to throw up her hands, at the same time giving a similar command to his brother-in-law. In another instant the possible tragedy was averted, for Powers turned his head enough to allow Donovan to jump upon him and the struggle for the revolver ensued, ending with the arrival of the police.

At the station, however, Powers told the police that he intended to kill his wife first, then his brother-in-law and then shoot himself. An examination of the revolver showed that one cartridge had been exploded and the other four chambers were filled.

WANTS $100,000 MAN HAD A ROLL

To Fight "White Slave" But Refused to Support Traffic

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Asking for an endowment fund of $100,000 and suggesting that the first piece to inaugurate a campaign against the "white slave" traffic is in the nation's capital, the nineteen social reformers who left Chicago in September for a social purity campaign through the west, south and north, returned yesterday and made a report to the American Purity Federation.

The members of the delegation visited all the principal cities of western Canada as well as St. Paul, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Seattle, Tacoma, San Francisco, Houston, Texas, New Orleans, Memphis and Washington. They report that they found conditions much worse in the west than in Chicago, but not one of the delegation was willing to admit that Chicago had been slandered.

Congressman J. R. Mann, author of the "white slave" act, said that while all men were sorry for the vicious conditions which prevail in certain localities, yet the aim of efficient legislation was to secure the enactment of effective laws and not to engage in the wholesale expression of sentimentality. "When President Taft signed the 'white slave' bill he said to me: 'Now that you have the law, lose no time in arresting and imprisoning the men who engage in the traffic,' said J. R. Mann. 'The president said that these men were the vilest of all criminals and that it was now up to the people to catch them and prosecute them.'"

Tracy appeared before the court last week on a similar complaint, and the court after learning the circumstances in connection with the case, ordered Tracy to pay $5 a week to his wife, the first payment to be made last Saturday.

Tracy failed to comply with the order of the court and as a result a writ was issued for his arrest and yesterday he was taken into custody and when searched at the police station it was found that he had $164 in his possession.

the matter was brought into court this morning and it was explained to Judge Hadley that Tracy had considerable money in his possession and refused to give any of it to his wife the court ordered that Tracy be fined $100, the money to be paid to the wife.

MEN ARE ARMED

Searching for Gang That Kidnapped Girl

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 1.—Armed men are in pursuit of desperadoes who kidnapped Grace Rolph from a ranch near Chicom on Wednesday. Miss Rolph is a daughter of Dr. B. T. Rolph of Pender, Neb. A few details of the kidnapping were contained in a telegram received at the American embassy last night from Consul Miller of Tampico. The consul reported that Segundo Salero and Leandro Mendonza, desperado men, robbed a safe, kidnapped the girl and fled.

Dr. Rolph, accompanied by friends, are now in pursuit. The kidnappers joined friends with whom they are headed for Huasteca, Vera Cruz. Consul Miller has asked that parties be sent to aid the pursuit of the situation is serious. He says that a clash is probable.

The fate of the young girl is in doubt.

LARCENY CHARGE

FATHER AND SON ARE HELD AT BRIGHTON

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Benjamin Shatz, 48 years old, and Charles Shatz, 20 years old, father and son, were arrested yesterday afternoon by Capt. McLaughlin and Inspectors McAuliffe on larceny charges, following complaints by Benjamin S. Gabley of Barnet, Vt., John D. Neylin of Hardwick, and Harry A. Gilmore of Westboro, all cattle dealers. Cash bail in $250 was furnished by the father's brother for each of the men.

The larcenies are said to have occurred at the Brighton stockyards on Sept. 21, 26 and 27. On the first date the father is said to have purchased two head of cattle from Gabley, valued at $122.50. The agreement, the police say, was that the cattle were not to be taken until they were paid for. The father Shatz is alleged to have violated the agreement by going to the pen and claiming the cattle.

The day that Gabley lost his cattle the father came to the stockyards and the brother for each of the men. The father Shatz is alleged to have violated the agreement by going to the pen and claiming the cattle.

FOR SHEDD PARK

Appropriations Committee Recommends Expenditure of $10,000

Judge Pickman Says a Skating Rink Will be Provided—Fire Chief's Auto and Auto Police Patrol Provided For—Other Matters

The committee on appropriations, at a meeting held in the mayor's reception room at city hall last night, voted to recommend a loan of $10,000 to start the work of developing Shedd park. The committee also voted to recommend a loan of $5000 for a new auto patrol wagon for the police department and $2000 for the purchase of an automobile for the chief of the fire department.

Heads of departments were on hand to explain their wants. The committee referred the order for a loan of $25,000 for a new stable for the health department and $2000 for the purchase of an auto police patrol for which $5000 had been asked. Mr. Mullane allowed that an automobile was necessary in order to bring the department right up to date. He said that in the capture of criminals he believed an automobile to be practically indispensable. He said that the horses were getting old and that the department would have to have new horses if the automobile was not forthcoming. He assured the committee that the police department would live within its appropriation with the exception of the amount asked for the purchase of the auto patrol. He believed that in order to properly cover the Highlands, South Lowell and other long distance points an automobile was necessary.

A joint order to borrow $13,000 for two auto combination wagons and an automobile for the chief, also $500 for two alarm boxes was taken up.

Chief Hosmer's Views

Chief Hosmer said that the auto combinations were required to bring the department up to the required efficiency. He said that it was cheaper to buy automobile apparatus than to build new houses. As to an auto for himself, Mr. Hosmer said he wanted something to get him to a fire before it is all out.

"The auto gets to a fire now," he said, "while I am looking up street."

He allowed that the purchase of automobile apparatus would be a good investment for the city. In fact, he said, the automobiles were necessary in order to give the Highland and Oakland districts the proper protection. The combination wagons are for High and Branch street engine houses.

Mr. Hosmer thought the automobiles would work all right in the snow. "I think they will go where horses can't go," he said.

Mr. Hosmer said it would be impossible to get the apparatus this year, and in view of that fact Alderman Dexter suggested that perhaps it would be as well to let the matter go over to the first of the year and have the appropriation made at that time.

As to the fire boxes, Mr. Hosmer said they had been petitioned for and he believed they were needed.

The chief also spoke about the boiler in the Central fire station. The state inspector recommended that a new boiler be installed. Mr. Hosmer said that if anything went wrong with the boiler the fire alarm system would be put out of commission. The present boiler is 35 years old.

Members of the park commission were present to discuss the question of a loan of $10,000 for the development of Shedd park.

E. W. Bowditch, landscape architect of Boston, explained the plans that he prepared for Shedd park. He explained how the $10,000 could be expended to best advantage as a starter for the development of the grounds.

Bowditch said if the money was forthcoming he would make the pond this winter so that the children and others could use it for skating purposes.

Judge Pickman Promises Skating Park

Judge Pickman said he thought the public approval of the action of the council in accepting the gift. He said Mr. Shedd and his family were pleased with the graceful acceptance of the gift. Mr. Pickman commented on the utterances in the press relative to the gift and its acceptance and said that such general expression of satisfaction was unusual.

"Let us look after all classes," said Mr. Pickman, "and provide pleasure and entertainment for those who are not in a position to seek rest or entertainment at the mountains or the seashore during the summer months. I want to see the pond ready for skating this winter."

Hon. John E. Drury

Hon. John E. Drury of the park commission said that Judge Pickman had covered the ground pretty thoroughly and there wasn't much that he could add. Mr. Drury spoke of Fort Hill as a beauty spot. He said there had been more or less criticism as to the money expended at Fort Hill, but the people of Lowell, he said, get a great deal of enjoyment there and the beauty of the place excites the admiration of visitors. Mr. Drury said that while Fort Hill is a beauty spot and commands a splendid view of the city and surroundings, it is but a beauty spot and a resting place, but Shedd park will be a place to rest, to sport and to admire.

He told the committee members that by helping along the development of the park by recommending the appropriation asked for they were offering an incentive to others of a philanthropic spirit to do as Mr. Shedd has done. "It strikes me," he said, "that you as representatives of the people can wisely recommend the appropriation asked for."

Supt. Dow

Inspector James Dow of the lands and buildings department was called in and asked relative to the boiler question at the Central fire station. Mr. Dow said that a new boiler was necessary. He also broke the sad news to the committee that he needed about $1500 to bridge over his department for the year, over and above the $900 required for the boiler.

After Mr. Dow had been excused the committee got down to business. The first up was the proposed expenditure of $25,000 for a new stable for the board of health. It was voted to refer the matter to next year's city council.

Then came the question of recommending $5000 for the purchase of an auto patrol for the police department and on motion of Councilman Flanagan the recommendation was voted.

As to the automobiles for the fire department, Councilman Flanagan thought the matter ought to go over to next year's government. He said the machines could not be delivered this winter.

Mr. Flanagan said that the purchase of automobiles would mean that the Oaklands would have to go without a fire house and he said there should be a house there. Mr. Flanagan moved that it be referred to next year's government. "I am opposed to borrowing any more money this year," he said.

Appropriations Recommended

Councilman Jewett moved that $2000 be allowed for an automobile for Chief Hosmer. It was so voted, Flanagan voting against.

Alderman Dexter moved that the committee recommend the adoption of the order for $10,000 for developing Shedd park.

"Mr. Shedd has made a magnificent gift to the city, and it seems to me that we ought to show our appreciation," said Alderman Dexter.

The motion became a unanimous vote.

It was voted to draw up an order recommending $900 for a new boiler at the fire station in Middle street.

The question of voting $500 for two new fire alarm boxes came up.

Alderman Smith J. Adams of the fire department committee was present and he informed the committee that the protection of life and property in the vicinity of Cashin street and the Princeton boulevard, and Fourth avenue and Moody street demanded the installation of the two alarms. He said residents of these localities were remote from any fire alarm at the present time.

The committee voted to recommend the $500.

The committee briefly went over the year's loans and estimated revenues as compared with receipts.

The revenue for month work did not come up to expectations, the estimate being $5000, with only $1228.10 received up to Oct. 1. It was stated that less work had been done on private property this year than has been the case heretofore.

The total estimated revenues for the year amounted to $41,245, whereas only $26,138.14 had been turned in up to Oct. 1.

The loans to Oct. 1 amounted to $158,400, as follows: Paving streets, $28,000; sewers, $50,000; buildings, $10,000; bridges, $10,000; Hale's brook improvements, $20,400.

FOR SHORTER DAY

Mr. Carroll Defends the Eight Hour Bill

The following letter from William J. Carroll discusses the expediency and in order that those may be overworked and that all may have an opportunity to work. Mr. Carroll argues in favor of the eight hour bill vetoed by Governor Draper.

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 31, 1910.

Dear Sir: A friend of mine, who is an independent in politics annually from Jan. 1st to Sept. 1st inclusive, and a militant republican for the rest of the year, finds cause for considerable comfort in Governor Draper's veto of what he terms "the so-called eight hour bill."

The other day in discussing the matter, he said, "It is up to every sensible man, whether he be a labor union member or not, to stand up in his place and be counted for the right side of this particular question."

As I seemed to be more or less accurately described by the term, "sensible man," I jumped right up to be counted, but on second thought, said: "But wait a moment, let us be sure just which is the right side, before we proceed with the enumeration."

"Well, says my friend, 'the mere fact that an organized body of men demands a law, is no guarantee that it is a demand fit to be granted. In this case it certainly was not. The demand was outrageous.'"

This took me somewhat by surprise, for if there is any one thing upon which my friend prides himself more than the facility with which he uses apt little Latin phrases in his discussion, it is the imprugnability of his logic. So it was with some misgivings that I said, "Perfectly true, but neither does the same fact prove that the demand was not fit to be granted—in fact is no evidence one way or the other and is, as you yourself would say, argumentum ad hominem. Your conclusion that the demand was outrageous could not be founded on the fact stated but must have been drawn from other facts which you have not seen fit to disclose."

"However," I continued, "I will admit without further argument that if the demand is outrageous, it is not fit to be granted and you may count me as against it, but I am not convinced as yet that such is the case."

Taking no notice of my remarks, my independent friend proceeded: "No wonder the governor refused to sign any such bill. If he hadn't vetoed it, the supreme court would presumably have declared it unconstitutional when it was tested, and therefore null and void."

"But, my dear sir," I objected, "you must see as a logician that this is the argumentum ad verecundiam." Seeing that he didn't like my Latin, I hastened to say by way of conciliation, "Of course all laws which are unconstitutional are outrageous, and if the law under consideration is unconstitutional, there can be no question but that it is outrageous."

But in this particular case there are two objections either of which must prove fatal to the argument. 1st, the proposed law is clearly not unconstitutional, never having been so declared by competent authority, and 2nd, many proposed laws which have been declared unconstitutional are certainly not outrageous, a good example of which is the late lamented income tax law.

With a thinly veiled expression of either pity or contempt for my stupidity, my friend arose to his feet, and drawing forth a small American flag which had hitherto reposed in the inner left hand pocket of his waistcoat, he held it aloft with patriotic fire and his voice tremulous with emotion, all the while waving the flag, like the little drummer boy in the moving picture of the battle of Gettysburg, he declaimed as follows, to wit: "The free right of a free-born American workman to work even a few minutes overtime if he himself wanted to do it, and if necessity or convenience made it desirable, was sought to be denied him."

I feel no shame in confessing that at the time, I failed to notice that this was an exceptionally fine example of the well known material fallacy, argumentum ad populum, and, to use a slang phrase, I fell for it.

The light of day seemed to fade away, the room and all my surroundings vanished into nothingness and I seemed to be borne by invisible hands to times and scenes long since passed and gone. There passed in rapid review before me those mighty events leading up to the establishment of the American nation, I beheld the gradual colonization of the new world, the struggle against taxation without representation, the Boston tea party, the declaration of independence, the crossing of Valley Forge, Washington crossing the Delaware with the cold cakes of ice on every side threatening to overwhelm Yorktown, victory! 1812. The constitutional struggle in congress culminating in the war for the preservation of the Union and the abolition of chattel slavery. The great industrial development and the prosperity of our glorious country, and its glorious inhabitant, the free-born American workman! The sovereign voting king whose right to work overtime is now sought to be denied him. My patriotism was aroused, my heart was touched, several tears sprang to my eyes and I vowed, "I will defend this bill to the death!"

But the memory of his last words haunted me, particularly those referring to the free-born American working man's right to work overtime, and I kept asking myself over and over again if he really had any such right—has he even the right to work?

And if so how does he acquire such right, what are its limits and what incidental rights go with it in order to make it effective?

The conclusions I arrived at are: 1. The free-born American workman and every other man, has the right to work.

2. This right is a natural right acquired by birth, the same as the right to breathe the air, and for the same reason, viz: life itself depends upon the right.

Upon this earth food, clothing and shelter are absolutely necessary to the maintenance of life. These may be obtained only by the application of human labor to the resources of Nature and when such application is made may be obtained in bountiful supply. As the only object in performing labor is the securing of these necessities of life above referred to, it follows that if by the invention and adoption of improved methods of production and distribution, such as machinery, railroads, etc., the human labor required is lessened, the advantages thus derived should redound to the benefit of the workers in the form of shorter hours of labor. But unfortunately, as industry is now carried on the result of improved methods of production and distribution is this: Those who are in control of the machinery of production and distribution, (which includes mills, mines, railroads, steamship lines, telegraph and telephone systems, etc.) finding that the work of the world can be done by employing only part of those who are willing and able to work, are able through the competition of the unemployed, to force the employed through fear of losing their jobs, in other words their means of life, to accept smaller wages and work longer hours than they would in the absence of such competition. The unemployed is the sword of Damocles which hangs over the head of the employed.

The right to work necessarily carries with it the right to the opportunity to work, for without such opportunity the right to work is meaningless and is of no value whatever.

There can be no question that the soundest considerations of public policy demand that every individual have the opportunity to expend his labor power in producing either directly that which he requires for his maintenance or something else which society needs and is willing to accept in exchange for such requisites.

Lack of this opportunity constitutes all the difference between the efficient, industrious, producing and useful members of society, and the tramp, pauper and criminal, for by the continued denial of the opportunity to work the best citizen may become in turn tramp, pauper, criminal.

So, then, where the deprivation of the right to labor and to secure the full social value of the product of labor is attended by all the direful consequences of poverty, ignorance, disease and crime, while the opportunity to work ensures plenty, education, culture, health and virtue, are not the workers justified in using their collective law making power, delegated to their representatives to enact such laws as will ensure to them at all times the opportunity to exercise their right to work? I think it cannot be denied that they are justified.

The workers have the right to demand that the hours of labor be shortened to such extent that in doing the work of the world all may be employed.

In denying a part of the workers the right to work overtime are they being deprived of any real right? No, it is the same as denying the right of one of several shipwrecked sailors to one of all the provisions upon which the lives of himself and his companions depend.

The life of the working man depends upon his ability to secure employment.

I very simply say, to our fellow workmen let us too, earn our bread that we may not become paupers or be made criminals by being forced to steal to let us, too, live in sanitary homes and have wholesome food; let us, too, provide suitable and adequate clothing for our wives and educate our children that they may become useful members of society. Give us this opportunity to discharge our duty as free-born American workmen, to ourselves and to posterity.

Now Mr. Editor, although I make no pretensions to logic, I think that in view of these arguments if my independent friend were here, I would stand right up and say, "Conscience, the right side of this question, which is that the demand was not outrageous, but was perfectly proper, reasonable and just and should have been signed by the governor; that in vetoing it he has done that which ought to convince all working-men who were not already so convinced, that they can never hope to secure the full rights to which, as workmen, they are entitled, so long as they continue to elect to office men whose economic interests are diametrically opposed to their own."

Very truly yours,
Wm. J. Carroll.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE

George G. Rice's Wife Begins Action

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Through a motion made before Justice Bischoff in the supreme court yesterday it became known that George Graham Rice, under indictment as a result of the raid by the federal authorities on H. Shattles & Co. mining promoters, is being sued by his wife, Mrs. Frances Drake Rice, for divorce.

Mrs. Rice names Miss Bessie La Fell, an actress, as correspondent, alleging that her husband has been living with Miss La Fell in the Glenmore apartments, 35th street and 7th ave.

There had been strong remonstrances by the bride's family against the marriage, the climax to a romance which began three years ago, when Behan went to Great Barrington from this city to drive Miss Stanley's car. With wealth, her own mistress, living in a large and comfortable home, Miss Stanley followed her heart and now is a bride and on her honeymoon, which will reach across the continent to California, the trip being made by automobile.

TO ABANDON MINT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—George E. Roberts, director of the mint, said last night that the New Orleans mint would be abandoned for the present. When operations may be resumed there is not known.

"There is not enough work to keep all the mints in operation," said Mr. Roberts.

"It is with difficulty that three of the mints are kept working."

Headaches and Dizzy Spells Cured

"I am pleased to say the glasses that J. W. Grady, O. D. fitted to me are satisfactory. I feel greatly relieved. All headaches and dizzy spells have disappeared and I can see so much better. My nose piece stays on very well and I have had no trouble with it. I also wish to state that before wearing these glasses my stomach would trouble me a great deal, but since wearing them I find that I do not have any trouble with my stomach. I highly recommend J. W. # HELD IN $10,000

Quincy Man Was Charged With Embezzlement of $7600

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Harold B. Faxon, a prominent yachtsman of Quincy ten years ago, who suddenly gave up his position as paying teller of the People's National bank of Roxbury, in the fall of 1908, returned yesterday from Goldfield, Nev., in custody of a United States marshal and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with the embezzlement of $7600 of the funds of the bank. Faxon tried to regain the little fortune alleged to have been lost through stock speculations by hunting gold in the west under another name when he was discovered and placed under arrest on the old indictment on Oct. 18th last. Judge Dodge held him in $10,000 for trial and Faxon went to jail in default of bail. Faxon was a nephew of the late Henry Faxon, the temperance advocate, and for several years was secretary of the Quincy Yacht club. It was stated at the time of the arrest in Goldfield that Faxon's wife had obtained a divorce within the past two years but this was denied today by the United States marshal who brought the prisoner on from the west.

SCOTT MAY DIE HAND INJURED

Littleton Youth Probably Man Was Thrown From a Train Shot Himself

LITTLETON, Nov. 1.—John Scott, a youth of 20, was found dying near the home of Miss Alice Stone, a high school girl, yesterday. There were three bullet wounds in his body, one near his eye, another in the side of the head, and the third in the abdomen. Scott called on Miss Stone last night but finding a young man at the house before him departed and is believed to have shot himself. He was taken to the Groton hospital, where it is said he could not survive.

Arthur Peltier, aged 24 years, residing at 8 Hancock avenue, was thrown from a train in the vicinity of Middlesex Village shortly before three o'clock yesterday afternoon and had his right hand badly crushed. The ambulance was summoned and the young man was taken to the Lowell hospital, where at the time of going to press it was stated that it might be necessary to amputate two fingers and a thumb. Peltier was not an employee of the road and it is thought that he was stealing a ride when the accident occurred.

DAN O'LEARY INSPECTOR McCALL

VETERAN PEDESTRIAN IS AT ST. LOUIS WELL KNOWN MONTREAL OFFICER IS DEAD

Dan O'Leary, the veteran pedestrian, was turned up in St. Louis, Mo., where he has been "showing them" as only he can.

The St. Louis Republic of recent date had the following:

Dan O'Leary, the veteran pedestrian, and five of his friends yesterday started on a walk from St. Louis to Edwardsville and return, but gave it up after getting to Collinsville on their way back. The jaunt was started with the intention of walking forty-five miles without stopping except for lunch. The agreement was if any man weakened he should pay the car fare of the bunch on the return and besides should buy a dinner for the six.

The men started from the west end of Bada bridge at 7 o'clock, and the trip to Edwardsville, via Collinsville, twenty-four miles, was made in five hours and thirty minutes. After arriving at Edwardsville at 12.30 o'clock they stopped for lunch and started back. When they got to Collinsville twelve miles on the return journey, John J. Dempsey of Springfield, Ill., stopped and declared he could walk no farther.

The members of the party, all of whom wore rubber heels excepting Dempsey, were: Dan O'Leary of Chicago; James C. Jennings of Memphis, Tenn.; H. C. Daniels of Chicago; John J. Dempsey of Springfield, Ill.; Charles Berry of Bloomington, Ill.; and C. E. Wainwright of West St. Louis. They met by appointment on a wagon that each could walk the other down.

PATRICK FORD WELL KNOWN LAWRENCE MAN DIED SUDDENLY

Temporary Heat Quickly

Did you ever stop to think of the many ways in which a perfect oil heater is of value? If you want to sleep with your window open in winter, you can get sufficient heat from an oil heater while you undress at night, and then turn it off. Apply a match in the morning, when you get out of bed, and you have heat while you dress.

Those who have to eat an early breakfast before the stove is radiating heat can get immediate warmth from an oil heater, and then turn it off.

The girl who practices on the piano in a cold room in the morning can have warmth from an oil heater while she plays, and then turn it off.

The member of the family who has to walk the floor on a cold winter's night with a restless baby can get temporary heat with an oil heater, and then turn it off. The

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER Absolutely smokeless and odorless

Is invaluable in its capacity of quickly giving heat. Apply a match and it is immediately at work. It will burn for nine hours without refilling. It is safe, smokeless and odorless. It has a damper top and a cool handle. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the tank. It has an automatic-looking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be cleaned in an instant.

QUEEN WILHELMINA TO RAISE GOATS IN ALABAMA

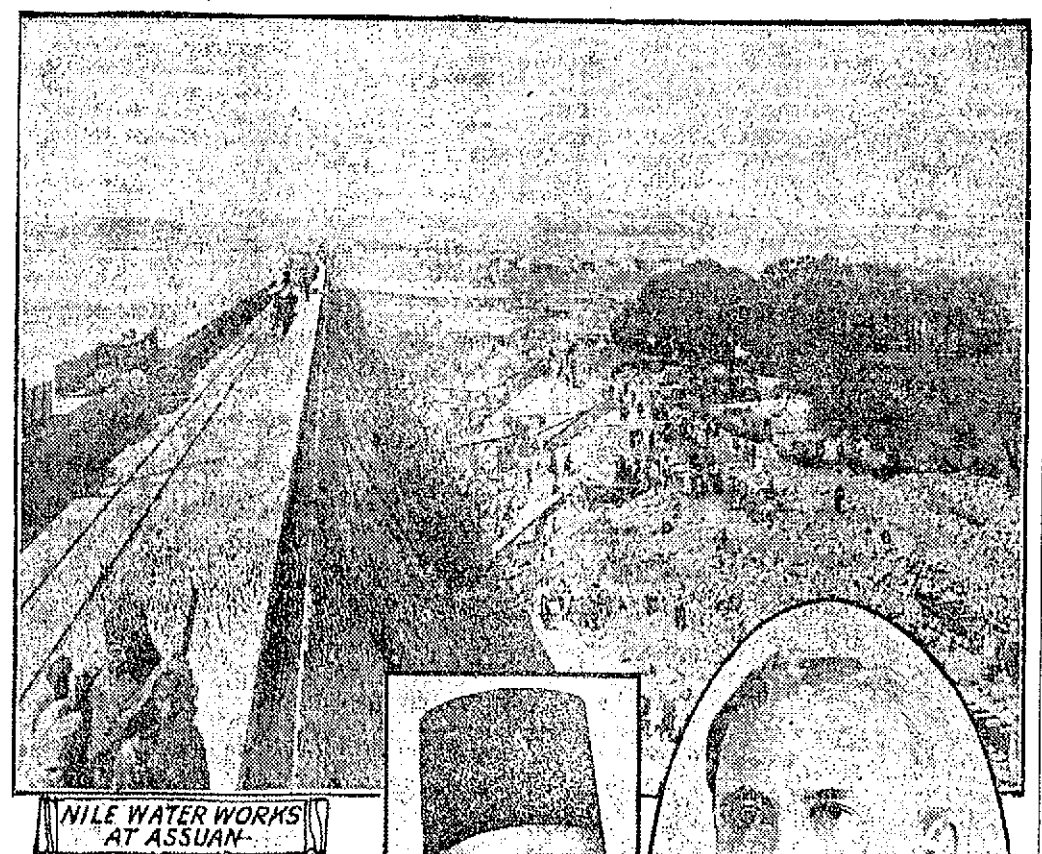

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 1.—According to Francis L. Robbins, president of the Alabama Portland Cement and Coal company, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland is going to raise Angora goats in this state. The queen is interested in the company and has suggested that 14,000 acres be set aside for the raising of goats. "Angora goats will be raised on the hillsides of the rough part of our property and hogs and cattle on the other parts not adapted to the raising of corn and tobacco," said President Robbins. "We will pay special attention to the goats, Mr. Foss in a hole."

ENGLAND IS RUSHING TROOPS TO EGYPT IN FEAR OF SUDAN UPRISING

NILE WATER WORKS AT ASSUAN

LONDON, Nov. 1.—In a desperate effort to put the British force in Egypt on a war footing with the greatest possible speed all officers of Egyptian regiments are hurrying to rejoin their commands. Their leave was canceled by an order issued a week ago. The war office makes no attempt to conceal its fear of an uprising in Egypt and the Sudan during the coming winter. Last year's unrest represented little but political agitation, but in the last six months the situation has taken a more serious turn, and the general impression is that a Mohammedan "holy war" will be proclaimed soon, and this will be the signal for widespread native outbreaks. Many of the English troops have been ordered to various points along the Nile. Sir Reginald Wingate, in charge of the English forces in Egypt, is in daily communication with the war department.

NO. CHELMSFORD HALLOWE'EN PARTY BY ST. JOHN'S LADIES' AUXILIARY

A very delightful Halloween party was held last night in St. John's hall by the members of the St. John's Ladies' Auxiliary. The affair was for the members only and it is unnecessary to say that it was most enjoyable. The evening was spent pleasantly in the usual tricks and games to make everyone happy. The prize for the best Ghost story was awarded to Miss Belle Valentine. A literary and musical entertainment was given. Songs were rendered by Misses Hannah Cummings, Mary Valentine, Rena Welch and Nina Callahan. Readings by Lillian Welch and Mrs. Fred Gaudette, after which dancing was enjoyed. Miss Rose McTeague of Lawrence, a former officer of the society, was present as a guest. Esther Pope was the accompanist of the evening. The affair was in charge of Alice Twohey, Maud O'Neill, and Loretta Ward.

The feast of All Saints was observed in St. John's church this morning, two masses being celebrated, one at 5 o'clock and the second at 7.30 by Rev. Fr. Doherty, the pastor. Rev. Fr. Schofield, celebrating the masses at St. Catherine's church, Graniteville. This evening at 7.30 rosary and benediction of the blessed sacrament will be given.

CARNEGIE HEROES CUT OUT CLIQUES

Awards Were Made to 58 Who Performed Heroic Work

PITTSBURG, Nov. 1.—The Carnegie hero fund commission last night made 58 awards—the largest number ever handed down. There were 23 bronze medals; 30 silver medals and $40,250 disposed of in the award yesterday. The pensions in yesterday's awards total $10,380 per year. The awards stretch from southern California to the Pacific coast.

There were two awards of interest to the Atlantic coast. Louise M. Kilroe, the mother of F. E. Kilroe, a 20 year old lad from Waterbury, Conn., who lost his life at Middlebury, Conn., June 10, 1910, trying to save George H. Massicotte from drowning, is given a silver medal, $150 to reimburse indebtedness and $30 per month until further notice, not to exceed five years. Of Kilroe's act, the hero commission says:

"Frederick Kilroe and a brother, who was older, and another young man in a 16 foot rowboat went out 50 feet from shore, with Massicotte, hanging in the water from the stern of the boat. Frederick's brother was only an ordinary swimmer and the other occupants of the boat could not swim. Massicotte was cautioned to keep a hold on the boat and then Frederick and his brother dived overboard and began to swim about.

Story of Kilroe's Heroism

"Massicotte left the boat unmolested and was 30 feet south of it, struggling desperately to keep up, when Frederick's brother, who was ahead of the boat, saw him and shouted to Frederick to look after him. Frederick was about 80 feet south of Massicotte, and he immediately swam to him. Massicotte grabbed him by the face and they went under together.

"Frederick quickly came up, followed by Massicotte. Frederick shouted to the others to bring the boat. His brother had swum to the boat but in his anxiety to get to Massicotte had lost an oar and could not propel the boat against the wind with the single oar.

"Then Frederick swam behind Massicotte and grasping him by the back of the neck started to push him toward shore. He had progressed but a few feet when Massicotte twisted about and grasped him by the shoulders and both went under for the second time. In a few seconds Frederick reappeared, his face flushed.

"Massicotte did come up and Frederick started swimming feebly toward the boat, which was now about 100 feet north of him. His brother shouted to him to swim to shore, as it was nearer. He turned toward the boat, but had taken but a few strokes when he sank and was drowned. His body was recovered in about 20 minutes but all efforts at resuscitation failed. He was scratched

Stirring Talk by E. S. Crandon to Sons of the Revolution

The members of Old Middlesex chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, held a delightful social gathering at the Vesper-Country club with a large attendance. The guest of the evening and the principal speaker was Edward S. Crandon of Cambridge, vice president of the state organization, who gave an informal talk that made a deep impression.

An excellent dinner was served by Supt. Clough, and 59 members and guests assembled at the tables. Hibbard's orchestra played popular airs during the repast, and the diners joined in the choruses. President Horace S. Bacon presided and introduced as the speaker of the evening Vice President Crandon, who said that his purpose in speaking was to arouse the real spirit of '76 in his hearers. In plain language he indicated that there was need for the sons of those who fought shoulder to shoulder in the Revolution to forget the artificial barriers of caste, to eliminate the inordinate habit of the mad chase for gold, and "get together." To uphold the democracy of the first ideals of this nation rather than the developed aristocracy of caste the speaker declared was the duty of the Sons of the American Revolution. An organization that developed its formal spirit and eliminated cliques and caste was bound to thrive.

President

"The trouble with hereditary societies and the great trouble with old Massachusetts and the Puritans," he said, "was the prejudice and cold-blooded, holier-than-thou sufficiency." Starting with this theme, the speaker spoke forcibly of the lessons to be drawn from incidents of the Revolutionary war, interspersing his remarks with spicy anecdotes. He showed how the idea of the rights of man had been started in Holland, had been transplanted in England, and from thence to America, and that this nation was now enjoying the benefits of the suffering and privations of the earlier centuries. In conclusion, he urged the importance of maintaining these benefits which had been handed down from generation to generation, and one of the organizations calculated to combat successfully the tendencies of modern times was the Sons of the American Revolution. After Mr. Crandon's address, Harry G. Pollard, chairman of the entertainment committee, was called upon, and he in turn introduced an entertainer, S. Thompson Blood of Concord. Mr. Blood gave a number of recitations that were exceedingly funny, using wigs and beards and spectacles to enhance the make-up of the characters.

Those present were: Horace S. Bacon, Edwin S. Crandon, Dr. Moses Greeley Parker, Dr. James B. Field, Charles H. Conant, Rev. Allan Conant, Ferrin R. Dr. Ransom A. Greene, Dr. Clarence B. Livingston, James F. Savage, Sec. Ralph H. Shaw, Howard W. Foster, John Trull, F. H. Safford, Edward W. Clark, William H. Choate, Edson K. Humphrey, Harry G. Pollard, Herbert C. Tull, Frank L. ## HORSE LAMENESS

In health, the weight of the body of the horse is supported by the equal distribution upon the four legs and changes by regular action and movements from right to left and back again without friction or loss of equilibrium but if the right leg becomes in any way weakened or impaired it seeks relief by resting on the left, the greater weight of the body being thrown to that side and the body will settle to the left. Therefore, lameness on the right side, the horse drops to the left, while should the left leg show lameness, by the same rule the drop will be to the right.

Now to properly examine a horse for lameness have an assistant lead the horse by holding onto a good hard road if possible (have no blanket or harness to interfere) look at the animal from in front, each side and behind, watch him in all gaits possible, as he approaches or recedes, passes by, turns about and watch closely the dipping motion from side to side. The head, shoulders and hind will tell you much, the head drooping on the side which causes the greatest weight of body, to the right when in the left fore leg and vice versa when in the right is affected. If in the hind quarters the hip will act as does the head so we say when the horse trots and drops to one side look for the lame spot on the other side. Now that we have determined that the horse is lame on one side or in a certain leg, does not solve the problem by any means. The hardest part is to come. Where in the particular or suspected leg is the lame spot? This is often the trying question even to the practiced veterinary. Of course, there are many cases where the exterior evidence is conclusive but in many and we may say the majority of cases the exact region is obscure. Of course, we have the chance to observe all the outlines, the temperature, tenderness to touch, swelling, etc. and all these are helps along the line. Still haste makes waste. Conclusions must not be too hasty. Has the foot been examined? The foot is the most sensitive part of the limb, the part most liable to injury, many times the seat of injury located elsewhere, is later, possibly too much so, found to be in the foot.

Dr. A. C. Daniels

MAYOR CAHILL

NAMES MEMBERS OF INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL COMMISSION

LAWRENCE, Nov. 1.—Mayor Cahill last night appointed Max Trumpold, Michael J. Keleher, Henri Liebert and John H. Oldroyd members of the industrial school commission, and the aldermen confirmed the selections. They succeed the late W. H. Sumnerby and Bernard A. Otto, Edward Inglo and David Sullivan, the city solicitor having ruled that the three latter were not legally members of the board as their appointment by ex-Mayor White had not been confirmed by the lower branch.

The mayor was authorized to negotiate a loan of $100,000 to meet current expenses.

ADDRESSED Y. W. C. A.

"Sectin" things, was the subject of a lecture by Robert Arthur Elwood, the board walk preacher of the Atlantic City, before the Y. W. C. A. members and others last night. He said that the successful man, the educated man, is not necessarily the man who has been through college, but the one who from boyhood has had the faculty of "sectin" things.

HITCHCOCK TO STAY

Postmaster General Will Remain in the Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Postmaster General Hitchcock will remain in the cabinet.

This statement is made on authority of President Taft's yesterday's announcement. Taft is very pleased with Mr. Hitchcock's work in reducing the postal deficit. The president desires to secure economical administration of the government and he is not going to dispense with the services of so valuable an assistant as Mr. Hitchcock.

In the future, however, Mr. Hitchcock will devote more of his time to the business of his department and less to politics. This naturally follows the president's policy of extending the civil service as far as practicable over postmasters and other government employees. Mr. Taft will recommend in his annual message that second class and third class postmasters be put under the classified service.

If congress approves this recommendation several thousand postmasters will be removed from politics. This meets with the entire approval of Mr. Hitchcock, who believes that the postal service should be taken out of politics.

The recommendation regarding second class and third class postmasters is regarded by Mr. Taft as the beginning of the extension of the classified civil service over all postmasters, collectors of customs and internal revenue and other local appropriations, which will result in an enormous reduction of the expenses of the government.

Opposition to civil service protection for these officials is expected from congressmen, but Mr. Taft hopes that congressmen will agree with him that patronage does more harm than good. Another reform in the postal service which the president and postmaster general hope to accomplish shortly is a change in the rates on second class mail matter and the reduction of letter postage to one cent.

The president will ask congress next December to authorize a special rate on advertising matter contained in newspapers. The newspaper rate of one cent a pound is regarded as satisfactory, as newspapers are said to pay their way. The average circulation radius of newspapers is 300 miles, while that of magazines is 1100 miles.

What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D., can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Because—We know that it gives instant relief to that torturing itch. Because—D. D. D. starts the cure at the foundation of the trouble. Because—it cleanses, soothes and heals the skin. Because—it enables Nature to repair the ravages of disease.

Because—The records of ten years of complete cures of thousands of the most serious cases show that D. D. D. is today recognized as the absolutely reliable Eczema Cure. Drop into our store today, just to talk over your case with us. C. E. Sherburne, Falls & Burkinshaw, Hall & Lyon.

PEARY TO BE ASSIGNED

Commander Peary's leave of absence in the navy is almost expired, and now the problem of placing him in the service is to be solved. There are many officials in the navy who do not believe that Peary's proofs of his discovery are authentic. Indeed it is the belief of many that the North Pole will never be properly explored until the aviators get there in dirigibles specially prepared for use in the Arctic zone.

BILLERICA'S COMMENDABLE EXAMPLE

That is a very commendable custom followed by the Talbot mill company of North Billerica in offering prizes in competition for the most beautiful premises kept by the tenants of the company. This and the work along similar lines by the Village Improvement association explains why Billerica is one of the most beautiful towns in the state, especially in the summer time when the flower gardens, the window and porch displays are in full bloom. In this matter of home beautification Billerica sets an example worthy of emulation by other towns.

INDUSTRIAL CAMP FOR LAZY HUSBANDS

That is a very good suggestion made by James P. Ramsay, probation officer of Middlesex county, in reference to the best method of dealing with non-support cases. He favors the establishment of a state industrial camp to which delinquent husbands might be sent and compelled to work for their families at a reasonable rate of wages. He would not send these men to prison to mingle with thieves and criminals of all kinds and in all probability to suffer by the association. This is not the only good suggestion made by Mr. Ramsay in his paper and in various other public statements some of which have been published in The Sun.

STUMPING FOR HER HUSBAND

Down at Salem Mr. Franklin H. Wentworth, who is a candidate for the legislature, is assisted in his canvass by his wife who is reported to be a much better speaker than he. Mr. Wentworth is a socialist and his wife on the stump pleads for his election on the ground that he will fight for the socialistic method of "abolishing poverty." As a theory it is beautiful to contemplate but there is a vast majority of people in this world who still believe that "the poor will always have with you."

Mrs. Wentworth's personal influence will assist her husband, but it remains to be seen whether it will bring him victory.

OUR STATE EXPENDITURES

One of the things that will militate against the reelection of Governor Draper is the fact that during the present year the state expenditures have mounted higher than ever before and apparently higher than the demands of public necessity require.

The state appropriation for the year 1900, under Governor Crane, was $7,176,160, and in 1905, $9,619,715.88. In 1908, under Governor Guild, the total expenditure was $12,244,673.35.

The appropriation for the present year was $14,046,010.28, all of which and perhaps more will be spent by the close of the year.

This great increase in the state expenditures has caused the state tax rate to be higher, and there is little likelihood of a change for the better unless the administration be placed in democratic hands.

With Eugene N. Foss as governor the people would look for a reduction of expenses, and they would not be disappointed.

WILL MASSACHUSETTS FOLLOW MAINE?

With election day just a week ahead the unclassd voters will have to make up their minds very soon as to what candidates they will support. All over the country there appears to be a revulsion of feeling against the republican party, and one that is likely to bring about the defeat of many republican candidates. Indeed it is freely predicted that the next national house will have a democratic majority. Whether that prediction shall or shall not be verified depends entirely upon the voters.

This tendency to down the republican candidates results from the disappointment at the manner in which the tariff was revised, the discontent over the high cost of living and the necessity of a vigorous protest against existing conditions.

The state of Maine has spoken, and it is an old saying that as goes Maine so goes the union. The state of Massachusetts should be ready to follow the example of Maine in this respect in order to hasten the desired reforms and lighten the burdens that weigh heavily upon the masses of this country.

TRYING TO FASTEN CHARGES ON FOSS

An effort is being made by certain republicans to make it appear that the bar and bottle law will not be enforced if Mr. Foss be elected. When interrogated on this point Mr. Foss merely replied that he would enforce this as well as all other laws on the statute book. Yet some people call that evasion. People may differ with Mr. Foss on public questions, but we do not believe that any can justly charge him with evasion. He is not afraid to answer any question put to him, whether in regard to the tariff, the bar and bottle law or something else.

Another charge and an old one is being flung in the press and on large billboards in an effort to defeat Mr. Foss. It is the charge that he wrote a letter to the governor asking the bill to limit the day's work by state, county, city and town employees to eight hours. Mr. Foss asserts that a petition remonstrating against the proposed passage of the law was presented to him for signature. He signed it and now the petition with the Foss signature attached is being published broadest as an original and genuine appeal from Mr. Foss to Governor Draper. The alleged facsimile has no date, which is one proof that it was not a genuine letter written by Mr. Foss as alleged, for no letter of the kind is without date. On the other hand no petition circulated for signatures has a date.

SEEN AND HEARD

It is said that President Taft considered this the best poker story he had ever heard:
A former governor of Idaho was playing euchre with Isaac Isaacson. "If I was playing poker," says Isaacson, "I'd bet $10 on this hand."
"What?" said the governor. "If you will give me a queen I'll get you $100 on my hand."
Isaacson gave the governor a queen, meantime smiling patronizingly on the two kings which he held. When the betting was over Isaacson laid down his four kings and reached for the money.
"Softly!" admonished the governor, revealing four aces and pocketing the stakes. Isaacson gazed sorrowfully at the statesman, then asked:
"Say, governor, I don't mind the money, but I wish you would tell me what a man you wanted of that queen?"
"This story was told to the president as illustrating the game of bluff ascribed as being played by a certain politician.

A farmer was asked to assist at the funeral of his neighbor's third wife, and, as he had attended the funeral of the two others, his wife was surprised when he declined the invitation. On being pressed to give his reason, he said, with some hesitation: "You, see, Mirandy, it makes a chap feel a bit awkward to be always accepting other folks' civilities when he never has anything of the same sort of his own to ask them back to."

A boy in a shop was one day swinging his hammer rather languidly when the boss, with angry looks, accosted him.

"Now, then, my lad," said the boss, snatching the hammer away. "When I see a man that takes his hammer by the end of the handle, like this, and strikes fine, hard blows—bang, bang—like that, why I pay that man anywhere from $17 a week up."

"But," resumed the boss, "when a man takes his hammer by the middle, like this, and strikes gentle—tap, tap—like this, he only gets nine a week, and he's the first to be laid off when we get slack."

The boss, with a meaning look, then extended the hammer to the boy, believing that he had driven home his lesson rather neatly.

But the boy stepped back.

RATS AND PUFFS THE STYLE

Women who cover their heads with masses of false hair will in time have diseased scalps. Rats and puffs are denounced by doctors as unhygienic dust and germ-catchers. They exclude the air from the scalp, and the veins soon route in the loss of hair. A good thing to shampoo the head with is a neutral soap, combined with Glycerin, White of Eggs, Coconut Oil and Salicylic Acid. These are the ingredients Birt's Head Wash is made of. It removes every trace of dandruff and scales from the scalp and leaves the hair soft and glossy. 25c and 50c at drug and department stores.

THE FORBIDDEN LURE

(Fanny Stearns Davis, in Harper's)
"Leave all and follow—follow!"
Lure of the sun at dawn,
Lure of a wind-jacked hollow,
Lure of the stars withdrawn;
Lure of the brave old singing,
Brave perished minstrels knew;
Of dreams like sea-fog clinging
To boughs the night sifts through:
"Leave all and follow—follow!"
The sun goes up the day;
Picketing wings of dawn;
Blossoms that blow away—
What would you, luring luring,
When I must hide at home?
My heart will break her mooring
And die in reef-flung foam!
Oh, I must never listen;
Call not outside my door.
Green leaves, you must not glisten
Like water, any more.
Oh, beauty, waning beauty,
Pass by, speak not, for see,
My bed and board stands duty
To snatch my dreams from me!

PEOPLE OF NOTE

A series of twelve historic and symbolic windows in English painted glass, designed by Edward P. Sperry, of the Decorative Glass company, are to be placed in the First Parish church edifice in Plymouth, built some fifteen years ago, in celebration of the church built by the Pilgrims. The subjects include the destruction of the Pilgrim press at Leyden at the desire of James II, in order to arrest the circulation of the tracts printed by William Brewster; the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth and the treaty with Massasoit; the town meeting called to consider the letters written by Cotton and Lyford, who came over on the Fortune, and who were put on trial for treason, etc. The historic compositions are to be flanked by symbolic panels representing such motives as Truth, Faith, Hope, Peace, Justice and Liberty. There will also be a brass tablet, which closely copies the handwriting of William Bradford, the second governor, upon which is engraved the compact drafted by him. All of the windows will be erected in the vestibule of the church.

Charles J. Hughes, Jr., of Denver, United States senator from Colorado, is returning from a trip to California and the Hawaiian islands in a physical condition to alarm his friends. He was sent away to rest, and the trip does not appear to have yielded the results hoped for.

A new thing in the way of aviation records has been thought out by the New York Sun. It is the total distance an aviator has fallen during his flight in the clouds. Charles K. Hamilton is supposed to hold the record, for his combined falls total more than 15,000 feet.

Under the headline "C'est la Vie," the Paris Rappel says: "When King Louis was a visitor in Paris he showed his appreciation of municipal hospitality by presenting his portrait with autographic dedication, to several members of the ministry. A few days after his departure these pictures, neatly framed, could be seen hanging in the state offices. Then came the revolution. On the first day there were doubts as to the outcome, but the pictures were put in less conspicuous places. A day later the result could be foreseen and the pictures received another push to the rear, and on the third day, when all was over, they disappeared. In two weeks they will probably be replaced by portraits of President Roosevelt."

Chancellor Strong of the Kansas state university said the other day that in his opinion "dramatics and social exercises" distract the student body more than football ever did. Football is a passing interest, lasting only a few months, and has the value of physical training. The men and women, on the other hand, who are anxious for social honors and who spend too much time in social diversions, are the ones who are most likely to take the low grades at the end of the term. The Ottawa (Kan.) Herald agrees with Dr. Strong that football is the lesser evil. "Let 'em play football," it says. "They'll be better off, if they escape being crippled, and it is about as well to be crippled for life physically as mentally."

Rear Admiral W. S. Cowles, U. S. N. (retired), brother-in-law of ex-President Roosevelt, is a candidate for the general assembly of Connecticut.

Henry George, Jr., son of the noted single tax exponent, has been nominated for congress by the democrats of the seventeenth district of New York.

William L. Cundiff, Speaker Cannon's democratic opponent in the thirteenth Illinois district, has never before been a candidate for any public office.

STEAMER LOST

Rescued

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—A wireless despatch received in New York yesterday told of the wreck of the steamship Santa Maria and the rescue of part of the crew. The message, dated on board the Mallory liner Denver, at sea, said that the Denver had on board twenty-four men of the crew of the Santa Maria, which was wrecked on the Rebecca Reef during the recent hurricane. It added that the men boarded the Denver near Sand Key Light, Florida, early in the evening of October 27, from the schooner Lily White.

EXPLORER COOK

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The Times will print today a cable message signed by Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the entire Arctic explorer. It is a message of congratulation to Walter Wellman, sent through the London correspondent of the Times and is as follows:
"After long years of effort to transmit a message from me to Mr. Wellman, kindly send him my heartiest congratulations for his wonderful initial success. If he crosses the Atlantic he will have gained an object of greater importance to mankind than the conquest of the pole."

RECORDS BROKEN

At Athletic Meet in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Four thousand athletic enthusiasts went to the Madison Square Garden last night to witness 16 of the 22 track and field events on the two-night program of the National Indoor championships of the Amateur Athletic union. Two records were broken. In the 300 yard run Melvin W. Sheppard, after winning his semi-final heat, became ill and was unable to compete in the final. Sheppard started later in the thousand yards run as the feature of the evening, but after going about 500 yards was compelled to quit, his rival, H. Gissing, winning the event in 2 minutes 20 seconds.

The first record broken during the evening was in the 56 pound weight for height. In this event Goss of the New York A. C. established a new American record of 16 feet, 2 3/16 inches. The old figures were 16 feet, 3/16 inch.

The second record to go was in the final event of the evening—the pole vault for distance—in which Platt Adams of the New York A. C. broke the old record of 23 feet, made by Martin Sheridan in 1907 by 2 1/2 inches.

The two mile race was a duel between Jack Monahan of the Irish-American A. C. and his club mate, Tom Collins. Monahan won after a grueling contest. The point score last night stands: Senior citizens—New York A. C., 48; Irish-American A. C., 34.

Juniors, Pastime A. C., 19; New York A. C., 10.

LADIES' NIGHT

OBSERVED BY KNIGHTS OF MALTA AT HIGHLAND HALL

A well attended and enjoyable ladies' night was held last night in Highland hall under the auspices of Lowell Commandery, Knights of Malta. While it was not a Halloween party there were many features peculiar to Halloween introduced during the evening.

The hall was lighted with jack-o-lanterns and when the orchestra played the opening number for dancing there was a ghost march, nearly every person in line being concealed in white.

Then followed a two-step when the merry dancers threw their ghostly gowns aside. The remainder of the evening was spent in whist and dancing. Refreshments were served during the evening and dancing was enjoyed till midnight.

The success of the affair was due to the efforts of the following officers:

Reception committee: J. Walter Bowers, chairman; Jesse W. Chapman, Herbert E. Elliott, Henry A. Wisby, Russell McDonald, John A. Lamberton, Elmer D. Robinson, Hiram Merrill, Wm. J. Saunders.

Matrons: J. J. Walter Bowers, Mrs. Jesse W. Chapman, Mrs. Wm. J. Saunders, Mrs. Herbert E. Elliott, Mrs. Elmer D. Robinson, Mrs. Henry A. Wisby, Mrs. Hiram Merrill, Mrs. John A. Lamberton, Mrs. Russell McDonald, Mrs. Wm. J. Saunders, Mrs. Elmer D. Robinson, Mrs. Jesse W. Chapman.

As is already known to those who read the papers, "Billy," and the other characters are taken bodily from Ed Payne's humorous creations in The Boston Sunday Globe and are given words to say and songs to sing by clever play writers and librettists. The play is far more attractive than its title would imply and the large audience that attended the last evening was most favorably impressed. The company includes a pony ballet of young pretty and graceful girls, who sing and dance charmingly. They are eight in number and they are the youngest bunch in their line ever seen here.

As "Billy," Angus McKinnon was a hit. He can sing, dance, and paint and he does a lot of all of them. Ethel Mason helps him out and is a charming little soubrette. The other members of the cast all have a share in the general fun-making and a succession of laughs continues from curtain to curtain. Here are some of the songs in the play and the musical numbers were as follows:

Opening chorus—Rube Quartette, Farmhands; Country Maids, Maud and Summer Boarders; I'm An Artist, Billy and Summer Boarders; My Book On What To Do, Prof. Wise and Chorus; What To Do, Don't Do It, Prof. Wise and Schmart; Wait Till I'm Great, Billy and Pansy; City Edouette, cello, Summer Boarders and Farmhands; The Love Game, Maud and Chumpley; Gypsy King Am I, Count de Chicane; Way Up In An Aeroplane, Maud and Summer Boarders; Astronomy, Wise, Schmart and Chorus; Good Night Moon Man, Lullaby.

Finale—Billy's Off to Town, Billy and Company.

Opening Chorus—Photography, Photographers; A Model Maid, Chumpley, Artists; Models and Tradesmen, Artists; The Skylight and the Star, Pansy and Soubrettes; Gettin' Our Pictures Took, Hen and Jane; Let Me Be Your Moving Picture, Pansy and Soubrettes; Amateur Theatricals, Maud and Schmart; Artists In Their, Billy, Wise Schmart; Clothes, Prof. Wise and Chorus; The Play will be repeated today and tomorrow and is being given at popular prices.

NEW OPERA COMPANY

Christain Hansen, the tenor of the New Opera company which will be here on November 12th, at the Opera House, this season, creates two more roles, one in "Corisca" and the other in "Love Laughs at Locksmiths," two of the new American operas in the repertoire of the New Opera company.

Hansen, whom the Musical Courier classes as one of the greatest of the fifteen great living tenors of the world, is idolized in Berlin and is becoming popular with the American public. When he opened the Boston opera season last year he was acclaimed as a new Caruso. The critic of the Boston Herald wrote: "Hansen, the rarely gifted, has a robust voice and a strong physique, the stuff of a heroic tenor. His is a voice that is destined to be loved as few are loved."

"THE MAN ON THE BOX." Grace Livingston Furness' play, "The Man on the Box," adapted from Harold McGrath's popular novel of the same name, is a play that is certain to provoke much laughter, and its presentation by John Meehan and a special company at the Opera House on Saturday, Nov. 5, matinee and night, will surely be the signal for the assembling of all comedy lovers. Almost everybody has read McGrath's entertaining novel and can see in its lines and situations an opportunity for a highly interesting and amusing play, and Miss Furness in dramatizing the book has made the most of her material. The play has been seen on tour with Henry E. Dixey in the title role.

The play has for plot the confusion of identities that comedy writers revel in, and the ingenuity of the novelists and the playwright has resulted in a series of complicated situations that keep the audience on the alert of expectancy and mystery. The fact that the book has been so extensively read makes the theme of the play generally well known, and it is generally conceded to be one of America's best and most successful comedies.

"THE DAWN OF A TOMORROW." Another week remains previous to Gertrude Elliott's appearance as Glad in Mrs. Burnett's curious play, "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" at the Opera House. This latest play by the author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" is somewhat difficult to describe in a few words, for it is more than dainty and whimsical—it has decided dramatic and philosophical value. It combines almost all the elements that should be present in the ideal theatrical attraction in which their proper proportions, with the result that it moves the interests its auditors from start to finish. In addition it supplies its youthful star with the most delightful role she has ever had.

THEATRE VOYONS

The great trouble with household help we are told is to get them to do enough work, but in "The Amazon," one of the pictures at the Theatre Voyons today, is shown a housewife who does too much work. Another type of laugh producer is "The Prophecy" which shows how a lonely bachelor decides to marry, though regrets his decision after making a proposal to his intended. "Her First Gray Hair" is a dramatic subject, pleasing and novel, showing how an older woman stops aside that her niece may win the love of an attractive young man.

"UPON WHAT MEAT DOTI THIS OUR CAESAR FEED THAT HE HATH GROWN SO GREAT?"

He doth bestride this great nation like a colossus and other leaders walk under his huge legs and peep about forsooth to find their political graves.

HORACE WRIGHT AND RENE DIETRICH, "The Somewhat Different Singers," at Hathaway's Theatre.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Wright Huntington, one of the most popular actors who ever played in Lowell and who has a host of friends in this city, assisted by a competent company, is the stellar attraction at Hathaway's theatre this week. He appears in a comedy playlet entitled "A Vision of the Night," and in this piece has an excellent opportunity to show his ability. He is the same Wright Huntington who was at the head of the Huntington-De Deyn Stock Co., which played in this city about five years ago. He is particularly adapted for the part which he plays in the sketch.

"A Vision of the Night" includes comedy and a little pathos. A humble naval lieutenant who is a student of art and is struggling in order to make a name as an artist, while visiting in Florence, Italy, has a vision while asleep. He awakens and making a hasty pencil sketch of the vision later reproduces it in oil and succeeds in having it hung in the French salon. He sees the star of fame shining brightly when suddenly a heavily veiled woman appears in his apartment and states that the woman in the painting is a likeness of her and that her brother, a fiery Corsican, had seen the painting and is now looking for the painter. The lieutenant-painter at first believes the woman to be a crazy and decides to humor her, claiming that he never saw her before in his life. She removes her veil and he is startled to find that his painting is an exact likeness of her, but still contends that he never saw her before. It is then that she explains that the vision was nothing more nor less than reality. She and her brother were stopping at the same hotel in Florence as was the painter and she was in the habit of kissing her brother good-night. One night she became confused in the rooms and entered the room occupied by the painter and kissed him before she realized her mistake.

She explains that she is a countess and that her brother is a furious and threatens to kill the painter on sight. She advises him to flee, but he laughs the matter off. A knock comes on the door, the countess is hidden behind a screen, and when the door is opened her brother enters. He is looking for his sister; the lieutenant jolies the infuriated Corsican along, and matters are running along nicely until the screen is overturned and then nothing will satisfy the count but a duel. The count goes on for the sword, but in the meantime the painter and countess agree to marry, it having been a case of love at first sight, and when the count comes back and finds that a marriage is to take place in the near future he decides that he cannot kill his own brother-in-law, especially when the latter is to become famous and have plenty of money.

Mr. Huntington portrays the part of the lieutenant-painter in a capable manner, while Armand Cortes does justice to the part of the count and Miss Louise Gerold makes an excellent countess.

Horace Wright and Rene Dietrich are billed as "The Somewhat Different Singers," and they are somewhat different in every sense of the word. Both are possessed of excellent voices and sing songs in the dialect in a manner which is productive of great applause. Mr. Wright makes a hit in "La Donna e Mobile," while Miss Dietrich's opening numbers include several gems.

Mr. Wright's real hit, however, is in his rendition of his own original song, "My Daddy's Old Duesen," and his duet with Miss Dietrich in "Just in Love." The couple received nearly a dozen curtain calls on the latter piece. The Great Lutz and company present the world's greatest sensation in vaudeville. Lutz is armless but he can do more with his toes than the average man can do with his fingers. He plays the trombone, horns and snare and bass drums with apparent ease, drives nails in boards, removes the nails, saws and chops wood, uses a bit and stock and various other stunts, using nothing but his toes. He is an excellent marksman and after shooting holes through playing cards and knocking the cigar out of his partner's mouth and shooting glass balls, he shoots a cloak from his wife. The woman is placed in a cage and he can see it swinging to and fro he splinters buttons after button on the cloak.

Wilbert and Leland are European gymnasts who appear in a European novelty. Both men are excellent in their line and the comedy introduced adds greatly to the act. William J. Morrisey and his piano are very good. He is able to ring and dekle the "ivories" in a manner which is productive of much applause. Kessler and Lee do considerable good singing and dancing in their

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

There's a fellow playing with electricity at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. His name is Dr. McDonald and he is billed as "the electrical wizard," whatever that means. The exhibition given by Dr. McDonald, and you may call him "Doc" for short, is really wonderful. He can eat electricity, and while he has never tried it he allows that he could withstand the voltage used in the process of electrocution. He doesn't know himself why it is that he can withstand so much electricity. He likes it and if it were eatable he would eat it. In his act, Vittorio and Georgette do a novel stunt. The most of the act is carried out with two men standing on their hands.

The show comes to a conclusion with moving pictures. Performances will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week.

which is instructive and interesting, he is assisted by a young woman and she, too, is somewhat impervious to electricity. This act is the highlight at the Merrimack Square theatre this week and you ought not to miss it.

Miss Irene LaTour indulges in some very clever balancing and as a contortionist she is in a class by herself. She has two little dogs that take part in the act and they are just too cute for anything.

Morgan and West present a comedy that is a laugh getter. It is brimful of snappy things.

The Scenic Stock company presents a one-act play called "The Thief and the Rose," which tells of a burglar who is reformed in unusual way. It is an unusual and quite an interesting story. Mr. Mackey, as the burglar, covers the ground very well, and Miss Comford Marie, who appeared with the company for the first time yesterday, proved fully capable.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

You are always assured of a good show at the Academy. Capt. Dohn & Co., Europe's heavyweight balancers, have a novel act that stands alone. Walter, Mr. Sutton took every advantage of his opportunities, while Miss Comford Marie, who appeared with the company for the first time yesterday, proved fully capable.

EMPIRE THEATRE

The bill at the Empire theatre this week is one that no lover of music should miss. The feature, unusual in every way, is the Moulton House orchestra of 12 men, all thorough musicians, who give an entertainment seldom enjoyed at ten times the price. Selections are given from the works of the best composers, the composers themselves being accurately impersonated, in appearance and manner by the leader, Frederick Guillaume. The rendition is perfect, and at yesterday's performance called out most favorable comment from those whom it is difficult to please in such matters. In addition to the above, there are also Miss Ferres, the eminent contralto and pianist, in some very charming numbers, and Florence Mann, the dainty singer of illustrated songs, thereby rounding out a thoroughly enjoyable program which must be seen to be appreciated.

DIVISION 2 A. O. H.

The military organization recently formed by Division 2, A. O. H., met last night in Ithierman hall and held a well attended drill. The purpose of the formation of the company is to have it act as an escort to the division on parades. The drill proved to be a success and the manner in which the members went through the manual showed that they are very enthusiastic over the new organization.

GENERAL ALARM

Caused $800 Loss

HAVERHILL, Nov. 1.—A loss of $800 was caused by fire on Pilling street, the most thickly populated section of the city, late yesterday afternoon. Every available piece of apparatus in the city was called out and the firemen worked for an hour before the flames were under control. The house where the fire was situated on the summit of Mt. Washington and the flames could be seen for miles. Neither Rose Bernstein nor Bertha Slapham, occupants of the house, could account for the origin of the fire, which started in the attic and swept down through the building, gutting the upper story, while the lower floor was badly damaged by water and smoke. While returning from the fire several firemen on a ladder truck narrowly escaped injury, a job team was in collision with the truck on Currier sq. No damage resulted except a pole being broken.

JUDGE BALDWIN

Sends Tart Reply to Roosevelt's
Letter on Labor Legislation

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—

Judge Simon E. Baldwin, democratic nominee for governor, sent a letter yesterday to former President Roosevelt in reply to the recent letter of the latter relating to Judge Baldwin's stand on certain labor legislation. The letter is dated at New Haven, Oct. 31, and is in part as follows:

"I have received your two answers (both undated) to my letter of Oct. 24, one written before you received it, and the other written after you had read it."

"Apparently you have misunderstood the point of my communication."

"In that, I referred to the fact that, in a public address in New Hampshire you had charged me with holding a certain view of a point of law. I then stated that I did not hold that view, and never had, and requested that you retract the charge."

"In your first undated letter, you state that your recollection of a certain passage in your address is that you mentioned that the democratic candidate for governor of Connecticut occupied a retrogressive attitude as to the rights of legislative bodies to interfere with what you regard as the utterly misallied liberty of laboring men and women to contract for the performance of work under conditions which jeopardized their welfare and their lives and limbs; and that the republican party, on the contrary, stood for what you regard as the only proper progressive attitude, which is that it is not competent for the workman, who may be driven by dire need to accept any employment, in spite of the conditions imposed upon his acceptance, to bind himself or be bound in any way by any action of his, nor to be compensated, if his wealth is damaged, or if he loses life or limb in that occupation."

"You then remark that I said in my letter to you of Oct. 24, as printed, that the view which you thus stated as that of the republican party would be opposed to the settled principles of law, and that no competent lawyer could or would take it, and that to ascribe such a position to me was calculated to affect my standing as a lawyer."

"As to this, I would say that this view which you described as that of the republican party is the view which is generally taken by courts and lawyers, and was explicitly taken by me in my work on American railroad law, in a passage to which I refer you, in my letter of Oct. 24."

"I did not complain in my former letter, nor do I now, of your characterizing me as having been a 'retrogressive judge.' I am not objecting to the use of adjectives, but to misstatements of facts; misstatements, the retraction of which it is the more important to me to secure, on account of the high position which you formerly held as the first citizen of the United States."

"You have stated to public that I took the view that it was competent for the workman, when driven to accept any kind of employment, to bind himself not to be compensated, if he lost life or limb, in that occupation. I have denied that I ever took such a view. I will add that I have long been in favor of the principle of workmen's compensation acts (though not unaware of the constitutional difficulties in applying it in this country) and was nominated to the office to which you referred, by a party which called for such legislation in its platform."

"I now repeat my request, that you retract the statement of which I complain. I ask it as a matter of fairness to one to whom his reputation as a lawyer is of value, as well as in the interest of truth."

"It would seem to me that in your reference to the Hoxie case, in your second undated letter, you not only go wide of the question between us, but write under a misapprehension of the rules which govern the decision of legal actions. Let me state a few of these, as to which there is no difference of opinion among any who have made the law a political study."

"A judge in deciding a case has to pronounce on a past transaction. The only question coming before him is what were the rights of the parties at that transaction took place. This must depend on the law as it then existed."

"Most of our law is what is termed the customary or common law, and each generation the people make it, and add to it by common consent, as they go along, and so far, at least, as the courts recognize and approve it, it is authoritative and binding as if enacted by the legislature. There has been grown up a general American common law, resting upon consideration of right and justice, that have been generally accepted by the people of the United States; the rules of which necessarily governed the decision of the Hoxie case."

"The rules govern most of the transactions of daily life in every state. Perhaps an illustration may render my meaning clearer. Slavery is defined as words falsely spoken which are injurious to the reputation of another. Where is this definition to be found? Not in any statute. It has been shaped by the common law, but is just as authoritative as if it had been shaped by the legislature."

"The main question in the Hoxie case was whether a federal statute had altered the common law, as there, before administered in the state courts of Connecticut. That the fellow servant rule was part of this common law is beyond question, and has been recognized by any of the able counsel who participated in the argument. These included some of the leaders of the Connecticut bar."

"The supreme court of errors had no power to repudiate this fellow servant rule, as applicable to the case before them. It had become generally accepted as right and just in the middle of the last century by the American people. It had been recognized and applied by the supreme court of errors of Connecticut in many opinions, the first of these, written nearly fifty years ago (Barke v. Railroad, 21 Conn. 499), the court made these remarks:

"The principle relied upon by the defendants, that a master is not liable to a servant for an injury incurred by the servant through the negligence of a fellow servant, has been so generally recognized both in this country and in England that it must now be considered as settled law. Two reasons are usually assigned for the rule, first, that the employee must be supposed to have contracted with reference to the perils of the business, including those which may arise from the character and conduct of his fellow employees; and second, that public policy requires that each servant should be influenced by its operation to be not only careful of his own duties, but as watchful of his own duties over the acts of his associates."

"The business of this reasoning has been questioned by high judicial authorities. Little Miami Railroad company vs. Sawyer, 20 Ohio 435. However plausible may be the theory, it is very doubtful whether, in fact, it is ever made an examination into the condition of the machinery, the mode of conducting business or the character and habits of the operatives, for the purpose of ascertaining the extent of his risk, as an element in calculating the proper amount of his wages. A passenger in a railroad car may well be presumed to have a vivid consciousness of his risk, but it has never been understood that he contracts with reference to it when he buys his ticket, so as to be his own insurer. Again, if a principal is responsible to an employee for his own negligence, why should he not be liable for that of his agent, over whom the employee has no control and of whom he may have no knowledge?"

"With respect to consideration of policy, it is by no means certain that the public interest would not be best subserved by holding the superior, with his higher intelligence, his superior means of information and his power of selecting, directing and discharging subordinates to the strict accountability for their substandard in his service, whoever may be the sufferer from it."

"Shortly after I came upon the court, a case arose (Nolan vs. Railroad, 70 Connecticut reports, 191). In which this same fellow servant rule was relied upon. We applied it as we were bound to do but with the observation that it was too freely established as law, by a multitude of decisions, to be now reversed or seriously modified by any exercise of the power vested in courts."

"In order to emphasize this intimation that the rule was followed because it was settled law, a note was appended to our opinion, signed by the initials of the justice who wrote it, containing these statements, among others:

"But the evil (of the co-employee rule) is too deep seated to be remedied by judicial action; it needs radical treatment through wise legislation."

"No change having been made since then by the legislature of Connecticut, the rule was necessarily applied in the Hoxie case. Subsequently, and on account of that decision, the federal law was altered so as to make it, in terms, applicable to actions in the state courts."

"Hoping that this letter may remove any misunderstanding of my request, and that you will conclude, that, under the circumstances, it is not an unreasonable one, I am

(Signed) "Simon E. Baldwin."

At the other meetings Col. Roosevelt was greeted enthusiastically. He attacked Dix and Tammany Hall, attacked Stimson, and pleaded for good government and a continuation of the state's progressive policies.

The colonel's voice became hoarse before his tour was over, but he stuck it out to the end.

JUDGE PARKER

ADDRESSED DEMOCRATIC RALLY
IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—Judge Alton D. Parker of New York came to this city last night to address a democratic rally. Philip Troup, son of the late Alexander Troupe, presided, and in introducing the chief speaker, referred to a visit of Judge Parker to Connecticut during the 1904 campaign, when he made the charge that a trust magnate was collecting funds from trusts to be turned over to the republican campaign committee for use in New York. Mr. Troup said that Judge Parker was vindicated after election, in his speech after dealing with the tariff issue and the increased cost of living. Judge Parker discussed the subject of campaign contributions, reading from correspondence between the late E. H. Harriman and Col. Roosevelt, then president, to support his contention that corporate interests in contributing to campaign funds of the republican party expect to be paid through favorable schedules in the tariff. Mr. Parker made a plea for a federal statute which will compel publicity of campaign contributions before election and a law which will stop any president or public officer from demanding from corporations which are partially under public control, contributions to political parties.

Judge Parker congratulated the democrats in their nomination of Judge Baldwin for the governorship.

THREE OF CRACK DISTANCE RUNNERS ENTERED IN TWENTY MILE TEAM RACE

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—If the plans of the promoters do not fall professional foot racing will receive a big boom this winter. Many races are scheduled, and more are to come. Recently a new national professional foot running circuit was formed. The new athletic organization is called the Cosh Prize League. The object of the league is to revive professional athletics in this country. While revolving that game, it is hoped that the movement will at the same time tend to purify the amateur ranks. The promoters expect to have all the crack runners of America and Europe to compete on the circuit. The first big contest of the season will be a twenty mile international team race to be held in Madison Square garden, Nov. 4. The event will bring together crack runners representing America, Sweden, Italy, Finland, Canada and France. The cracks entered in the race are Holmer and Quaal, Lungstrom and Svanberg, St. Yves and Larque, Meadows and Woods, Kolhemainen and Maiori and Vambro. The Holmer-Quaal and Lungstrom-Svanberg teams are favorites for the race. Henri St. Yves, the French Marathonist, also has many followers, although his teammate is making his initial start as a professional.

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES Many Were Held by Various Societies Last Evening

Halloween parties were in order last night and without exaggeration there must have been several hundred. Some were on a small scale while others were elaborate. In some instances a general invitation was sent out to friends to attend the festivities, while in other cases family parties were held primarily for the benefit of the children.

Oxford Bible Class
The members of the Oxford Bible class of the Highland M. E. church were entertained in a delightful manner last night by Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Titus at their residence, 418 Stevens street. The interior of the house was decorated in a very artistic manner the decorations being in keeping with Halloween.

There were the usual Halloween games, and musical numbers were given by Miss Bertha Chapman and Fred Thoma. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Carrie F. Leighton, Miss Eleanor Harding and Mrs. W. M. Wilder. Before the guests departed, they extended a vote of thanks to the host and hostess for their entertainment.

Lowell Hospital Nurses
The nurses of the Lowell hospital gave a real old fashioned Halloween party to about 60 of their friends at the hospital last evening. There was dancing, to say nothing of the usual Halloween games, and the evening proved a very pleasant one for all.

The rooms were handsomely and elaborately decorated in keeping with the event, autumn leaves and jack-o'-lanterns playing an important part in the scheme of decorations. Refreshments were served.

Miss Bertha E. Collins of Belleville, Ont., presided at the piano, assisted by Mr. Woodcock of Lawrence.

Entertained Young Friends
A very pretty Halloween party was held last night at 30 Third street when Miss Pearl Louise Hawthorne entertained a number of her friends. The house was beautifully decorated with Jack-o'-lanterns, pumpkins, etc., and during the course of the evening Halloween games were played, an entertainment program was carried out, and refreshments were served.

Among those present were: Miss Beatrice Neal, Miss Edna Cheney, Master Harold Gale, Master Raymond Mason, Miss Gladys Peacock, Master Aubrey Hunt, Master Roy Courtney and Master Charles Sleeper. Among those who assisted the little hostess in entertaining her guests were her mother, Mrs. Harry C. Hawthorne and Mrs. Richard Courtney.

Carpe Diem Club
A very pretty Halloween party was held last night at 30 Third street when the members of the Carpe Diem club. The interior of the hall was decorated in a manner in keeping with the occasion. While the dancing was in progress, the music furnished by the Imperial

O'KELLY IS GAME Ryan's Pupil Put up a Fast Bout

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Con O'Kelly, Tommy Ryan's pupil, and looked to as the eventual opponent of Jack Johnson, last night boxed 10 rounds with Hank Griffin of California, a colored man. O'Kelly was punished in the first part of the bout but came back strong and by sheer weight reclaimed the honors of the go.

The colored man showed better ring generalship and experience and landed more often. In the third round he sent the big fellow to the floor with a wallop over the right eye. The Celt was game, though, and rushed Griffin in the final stages. The bout ended with both men going fast.

EASY FOR ALGER
NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 1.—George Alger of Cambridge won an easy victory over Eddie Mack of Boston at the Pastime A. C. last evening.

Alger was to meet Billy Dixon of Boston, but Mack was selected as a substitute. He was not in condition, while Alger was ready for a hard battle.

Alger led all the way. In the third round with a right overhand punch he had Mack on his knees several times, and once he failed to get up in time to go on, but Alger was willing to take a chance and Mack finished the round.

Twice in the fourth round Alger had Mack resting for a count of five, and finally disposed of him without having taken any punishment himself to speak of.

There were three preliminaries. In the first Laviole of this city was given the decision in a four-round go with Jimmy Yohe. Kid Doyle of this city won a four-round go with Fall River, but the referee called it a draw, which was also the decision when Homer Charpentier and Billy Barrett, both of Fall River, boxed four rounds.

VICTORY FOR BURNS
NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Frankie Burns earned a victory over Tommy Houck in their 10-round bout at the Olympic A. C. last night.

Burns started out at a rapid clip and while Houck had the better of several of the early rounds the terrific speed of the little Jerseyman told in the long run. Blow after blow to the face, jaw and body in the sixth, seventh, eighth and tenth rounds weakened Houck.

LEWIS STAYED THROUGH
GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Willie Jones of Brooklyn bested John Lewis of Philadelphia last night. Lewis was substituted for Oney Langdon, who, owing to an accident, was unable to meet Jones. Lewis stayed the full 10 rounds, Jones lacking the punch to put him out. He landed blows at will, but none were effective.

GAVE CLEVER EXHIBITION
ALBANY, Nov. 1.—Billy Ryan of Syracuse and Bart Dorsey of Albany last night put up one of the cleverest boxing exhibitions ever given here. They met in a 40-round go before the Knickerbocker A. C. and it was declared a draw. They fought at 130 pounds. Ryan was in danger in the seventh and eighth rounds but his ring generalship saved him. He made a dash in the last half minute of the 10th round.

ROLL OF $11,000 Was Found on Suspected Absconders

ACAPULCO, Mex., Nov. 1.—From the description given by a detective agency, it is believed that two of the men who were arrested on their arrival here on the schooner Kate, Saturday, are Wilson B. Evans, about 30 years old, a native of New York, and a teller of the Farmers & Merchants' bank of Los Angeles, and H. Hamburg, an alleged accomplice.

It is said that $11,000 has been recovered.

The matter of the arrests of the men has been taken up by the government with Washington direct.

The Kate came into port to take on a supply of gasoline. Three passengers giving the names of Harry Lam, O. Carlson and Dan Archer, were taken into custody as suspects on the theory that they might have been implicated in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building.

The sum of $10,000 was found in the boat.

The captain, Swan Engdeth, and Adolphson, the engineer, were placed under guard. The captain said that he had been engaged to take the Calapagos Islands, off the coast of Peru and Ecuador.

The police yesterday examined the prisoners in the light of description furnished by a private detective agency of Evans and Hamburg and it is believed that the identification was sufficient.

EXTRA

Obliged to Stop Machinery Because of Low Water

All the mills in Lowell are more or less affected because of the low water. The Merrimack river is unusually low and the Locks and Canals Co. has been obliged to curtail on the amount allowed the mills.

This process of curtailment has been going on for some time and it has finally arrived at the point where the mills have found it necessary to stop some of their machinery.

Inquiries at four of the cotton mills elicited the information that they were effected to the extent of being obliged to stop some of their machinery.

It is the driest fall known in many years and unless there is a good rain before the frost comes conditions will be anything but favorable.

FOR NEW CHARTER

The Movement Inaugurated Auspiciously Last Evening

Charter Committee of Citizens Assembled at Board of Trade Rooms and Organized to Consider the Matter of Charter Revision — The Movement is General

The movement for a new city charter is on and it was inaugurated last evening at the board of trade rooms under most auspicious circumstances.

While the movement was promoted through the medium of the board of trade it is by no means a board of trade movement for a board of trade charter but the effort of a committee of citizens who include all of the different political parties and nearly all the walks of life, and many of them are not members of the board of trade at all.

Some time ago the directors of the board of trade discussed the matter of city charter and decided unanimously that the time had come to take up the matter. The directors referred the matter to the executive committee and the executive committee after a discussion of the subject came to the conclusion that the best way to proceed would be by appointing a charter committee from the citizens at large in and out of the board and have them take the initiative. Accordingly the following committee was named:

Chas. E. Anderson, Andrew E. Barrett, John H. Beaulieu, Rev. Charles T. Billings, Edward B. Carney, Daniel F. Carroll, J. L. Chaffin, William Draper, John E. Drury, Cyrus A. Durkin, Patrick H. Farrell, Rev. Allan C. Forster, Frederick A. Fisher, Marshall C. Forrest, Jas. J. Gallagher, Edward J. Gallagher, Thomas J. Goyette, Frederick B. Greenhalgh, Joseph H. Guillett, George M. Harrigan, Henry H. Harris, Dennis Healey, Walter H. Howe, Walter H. Hoyt, George F. Knapp, Irving D. Kimball, Fred L. Knapp, Dr. Frank McAvinue, Craven Middleley, Hugh J. Molloy, Albert E. O'Hair, John J. Mahoney, Louis J. O'Brien, William N. Osgood, Clovis Ouellette, Philip J. Parent, Carl M. Phil, John C. Phil, Murray H. Pratt, Charles S. Proctor, Francis W. Qua, Esq., Henry Robertsshaw, Henry A. Smith, William E. Sproule, Alonzo G. Walsh, Fred C. Weld, Paul B. Wesson, Royal P. White, Harold A. Varum, Dennis H. Wilson, Esq., Frank Ricard, Dennis J. Murphy, Esq., Dr. Joseph Lannoux, Michael A. Lee, Fred A. Clatter, John V. McEvoy, Fred S. Marden, Harvey B. Greene, John H. Murphy, A. T. Safford.

In the above committee are democrats, republicans, former members of the independence league, and at least one prominent socialist. There are also city officials, newspapermen, manufacturers, mill workers and organized labor men, tradesmen and businessmen.

The first meeting was held at the board of trade rooms last evening with an attendance of about 50. President Greene of the board of trade called to order and opened the meeting by explaining the purpose of the gathering. A permanent organization was then perfected with William H. Wilson, chairman and John H. Murphy, secretary.

Mr. Wilson then called for expressions of opinion and a general informal discussion was held at the conclusion of which it was voted to meet next Monday night and to invite the mayor, city solicitor and an alderman of Haverhill to address the meeting upon the new charter under which that city is now operating, while Secretary Murphy will endeavor to have copies of the Haverhill and Lynn charters or distribution among the members.

Dedication Tonight

The board of trade will dedicate its new rooms this evening and incidentally will present to Freeman B. Shedd and Frederick Panning Ayer, two of Lowell's foremost public spirited citizens, handsomely inscribed notices of their election as honorary members of the board.

ALARM RANG

BUT THE FIREMEN COULD FIND NO BLAZE

An automatic alarm at 2.57 o'clock this afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to the United States Robbin & Shattuck Co. at the corner of Rogers and Perry street. When the apparatus arrived it was found that there was no fire there, the alarm having been the result of the automatic system being out of order.

TO END RECEIVERSHIP

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 1.—The receivers of the Matheson Motor Car company of this city today petitioned Judge Fuller to end the receivership and to turn over the business to the Matheson Automobile company which is increasing its capital stock to $2,500,000 to effect the purchase. The receivership was declared on July 7, the company being solvent, but temporarily embarrassed for money.

TO EXERCISE JURISDICTION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Asserting that any other connection will nullify the law, the interstate commerce commission in a decision today reaffirms its right to exercise jurisdiction over private cars when used for the conveyance of amusement outfits, theatrical companies and the like. It denied the petition for re-hearing in the case of Pat Chaffin against the Louisville & Nashville railway.

STREETS GUARDED

Express Drivers' Strike in New York May Spread

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Police measures today were more comprehensive than ever for the preservation of order in the strike of several thousand express company employees which has practically tied up express traffic through this city for several years past and has been accompanied by serious rioting. Police officers and special guards swarmed about the danger points at express company offices and stables where hundreds of strikers have been gathered and the city authorities were prepared they said, to give wagons sent out all needed protection.

Possible results were looked for today from the conference held by Governor Fort of New Jersey late yesterday with representatives of the strikers in Jersey City and later with express company officials in Manhattan. It was stated that the New Jersey executive made known to the company officials what the strikers demanded were. While no official statement on the result of the conference could be had it was understood that all but one of the companies were willing to consider the chief demand of the strikers—recognition of their union.

Companies represented at the conference, it was said, were the United States, Adams, American, Wells Fargo and National. Practically all the express lines of the city are now involved, the ground covered by the walkout including Jersey City, Hoboken and other territory in the metropolitan district. Wagons of the companies are moved in Manhattan only through specially guarded streets and avenues designated by the police. It was reported this morning that the department store drivers would be called out today in aid of the express men.

The National Civic Federation looked over the strike situation today with a view of possibly bringing about an amicable agreement between the expressmen and the various companies affected.

John Mitchell, a member of the executive council, came to this city on an early train and went at once to the offices of the federation. There he held a long conference with several of the federation officers, discussing at length the strike troubles.

Mr. Mitchell stated that he was not conversant enough with the question at stake to comment in any way at present.

BROKE WINDOWS

Centralville Boys Had Dangerous Fun

Certain residents of Centralville Hill are doing some detective work today in an attempt to discover who the boys were who observed Halloween last evening by throwing large stones through the windows of some of the residences in that section.

At the home of Mr. George Mevly, at Tenth and Methuen streets, five panes of glass were broken during the evening, while several other neighbors reported that windows in their homes were also broken. It is believed that the boys stood off at some distance and hurled the stones by means of slingshots as they could not be seen in the vicinity. Immediately after the windows were broken and the stones came through with great force.

The police were telephoned to and two plain clothes men assisted Officer Riley in a search of the vicinity but none of the culprits were found.

COTTON SHOWER

A "Stage" Snow Storm Fell This Morning

People going to work about eight o'clock this morning were surprised to see what at first appeared to be a light fall of snow but which proved to be a shower of fine bits of cotton evidently coming from some of the mill chimneys. The shower was quite noticeable along Merrimack street from city hall to Merrimack square, while it was also noted in Middlesex street.

WALES IS GUILTY

Convicted of Assaulting and Robbing Young Woman

WORCESTER, Nov. 1.—After 17 hours of deliberation, a jury in the Worcester county superior court today returned a verdict of guilty against William R. Wales, a night watchman of Clinton, who was charged with assault and robbery on Miss Catherine A. Kelly, also of Clinton, last September.

Miss Kelly, who was employed in a Worcester department store, was returning to her home in Clinton late at night on Sept. 2 last, when she was attacked by a man who fell her with an iron bar. The young woman's skull was fractured and the bones of one of her hands were broken. Just before becoming unconscious she obtained a look at her assailant and later positively identified Wales as the man who attacked her. The assault was followed by the robbery of two dollars.

For several weeks Miss Kelly was at the point of death in the Clinton hospital, but eventually recovered. Previous to her arrest Wales had borne a good reputation.

It was expected that sentence would be imposed later in the day.

JUROR ARRESTED

He is Charged With Having Accepted a Bribe

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Charged with having solicited and accepted a bribe of $500 to bring in a verdict acquitting Edward T. Rosenheimer, a well to do manufacturer, charged with murder, George Yeandle, an architect drawn as a juror in the trial of Rosenheimer, which was to have opened this morning, was arrested on the street today and brought before Supreme Justice O'Gorman. The $500, it is charged, formed a part of $2000 which was asked and was paid by one of Rosenheimer's attorneys on the advice of Justice O'Gorman, who had been advised of the alleged bribe demand and arranged for the payment of the money and the arrest of the juror.

Dasebert Tiemendorfer, alleged to be the "go-between" in the case, was also placed under arrest.

According to James Osborne, chief of Rosenheimer's attorneys, Tiemendorfer visited him in his office yesterday after the Rosenheimer jury had been selected and made the bribe proposition that for $2000 Yeandle would vote for Rosenheimer's acquittal, no matter what the evidence might be. To prove Yeandle's value, Mr. Osborne says Tiemendorfer told him that Yeandle had been one of the jurors in the first Nann Patterson murder trial and had "hung" the jury after holding out against a verdict of guilty for seventeen hours.

Mr. Osborne asked for time to think the proposition over. He then placed the matter before Justice O'Gorman, who advised that a trap be set for the juror. A meeting for this morning was arranged through Tiemendorfer, Osborne said, and George A. Knobel of the Osborne law firm kept the appointment. The money, $500 on account, it is alleged, was paid over on a street corner on Madison avenue. Both Yeandle and Tiemendorfer were there. Mr. Knobel stated, the actual payment, the attorney declared, being made to Tiemendorfer, for whom Yeandle motioned to take the role of bills.

On the arraignment of the two prisoners on a short affidavit charging bribery both were held in $10,000 bail. Neither was able to furnish the amount and they were sent to the Tombs.

Yeandle protested to Police Magistrate Murphy, before whom he was arraigned, that the whole matter was a mystery to him and asked time to consult counsel. The examination was set for Thursday.

Another juror was selected in Yeandle's place and Rosenheimer's trial for the murder was resumed.

CITY SOLICITOR

Says Eight Hour Law Applies to Engineer at City Farm

Some time ago the board of charities received a communication from Inspector Roche of the district police, calling attention to the fact that an engineer employed at the Chelmsford Street hospital was working more than eight hours a day and that the statute providing for an eight hour day applied to the engineer in question.

The board decided to get the opinion of the city solicitor in the matter and in his letter asking for an opinion the chairman of the board, Dr. James J. McCarthy, suggested to City Solicitor Duncan that the statute in this particular case was a bit ambiguous, and to this the city solicitor agrees.

Mr. Duncan, however, is of the opinion that the engineer at the Chelmsford Street hospital is not exempt from the provisions of the law. His opinion is as follows:

Office of City Solicitor,
Lowell, Mass., Nov. 1, 1910.
Board of Charities, Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen: I have your communication of Oct. 26th, asking for a construction of Section 33 of Chapter 814 of the Acts of 1909, and its application to the engineer at the Lowell Chelmsford Street hospital.

Section 37 of said chapter provides that "eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen and mechanics, now or hereafter employed by or on behalf of the commonwealth, or of any county therein, or of any city or town which prior to the 25th day of June in the year 1907 had accepted the provisions of Section 20 of Chapter 106 of the Revised Laws." Said section further provides that "mechanics" shall be considered "mechanics" within the meaning of the section.

By Section 33 of said chapter the provisions of Section 37 do "not apply to persons employed in any state, county or municipal institution, on the farm, or in the care of the grounds, in the stable, in the domestic or kitchen and dining room service, or in store-rooms or offices."

A first glance at the exceptions enumerated in this last section might make it appear that persons employed in state, county or municipal institutions in any capacity were excepted from the provisions of Section 37, and that the expressions "on the farm" or "in the care of the grounds," etc. referred to additional instances where the statute was not to apply. But my interpretation is, that these latter expressions are merely put in to restrict and modify those which precede them. In other words, to indicate clearly how far the non-application of the "eight hour law" is to extend in reference to public institutions.

I am therefore of the opinion that, since engineers are not among those employees specifically referred to in Section 33 as excepted from the provisions of the law, they must be employed in conformance therewith.

This covers the case of the person referred to in your communication. Very truly yours,
Wm. W. Duncan,
City Solicitor.

TRAIL OF BURGLARIES

Police Say That Boy Admitted Twelve Breaks

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 1.—A trail of 12 burglaries, beginning Oct. 27 at Perkinsville and extending to Roxbury, where a break was made last night, was brought to an end yesterday afternoon when Sheriff Tracey arrested a boy of 16 years, who is said to have confessed to all the breaks.

The boy gives his name as Herbert Gladstone Wood, and up to the time he commenced his career was helping on a farm at Perkinsville and then at Proctorville. His work showed that he was not a professional, but the officers were surprised when the arrests were made to find they had been on the trail of so young a burglar and one apparently not over bright.

The list of burglaries to which he has confessed includes four at Proctorville, three at Exvarts, two at Wells River, two at Perkinsville, and one at Roxbury. He was not particularly about what he broke into but took dwelling houses, stores, railroad stations and postoffices indiscriminately, using in every case the crudest means of gaining entrance. His booty ranged all the way from cash, revolvers, clothing, shoes, watches, stamps, down to popcorn and in value probably amounts to not more than $200.

The two postoffice breaks were at Proctorville and Exvarts and for these the boy may get a long sentence.

The numerous breaks about the state were brought to the attention of the attorney-general who started H. W. Morgan of the Boston detective firm of Wood & Morgan on the track of the burglar. Step by step Mr. Morgan traced him until he learned the burglar had a sister in Montpelier. This made Mr. Morgan think that he would sooner or later land him and so he came Saturday for a conference with Sheriff Tracey. It was impossible to find anyone here by the name of Gladstone, so Mr. Morgan went back to Baltimore and dug out the fact that the fellow's real name was Wood, which made it easy to locate two sisters of his in Barre.

Meanwhile Sheriff Baldwin of Wells River had got into the case, on account of the two breaks in his town, and when Wood arrived here yesterday and tried to dispose of some of the property stolen in Wells River word was taken and he was arrested. Tracey and with the description he had the boy was soon behind the bars. When arrested Wood had with him a revolver stolen at the Exvarts postoffice and carried an electric searchlight.

He took his arrest coolly and seemed in his confession to take some pride in his work he had been up to. There is a question as to just what disposition will be made of the burglar, as he is wanted in the several counties here where he has operated, and also by the U. S. authorities for his postoffice breaks.

CASE BROKE DOWN

Settled Out of Court During Trial

The case of Marr vs. Boston & Northern street railroad, which went to trial in the superior court yesterday morning and which was to have been continued to the afternoon, was settled out of court last evening and the opening of the session this morning upon agreement of counsel a verdict for the defendant was ordered. Pratt & Devine were counsel for the plaintiff, and Prull & Wier for the defendant company.

The plaintiff in this case was Simon D. Marr of Lowell, aged 75 years, and he claimed that he was injured by falling from a car at the junction of Bridge and First streets on May 8, 1908. At that time he was working as a carriage painter in Haverhill and was returning to his home in Lowell on Saturday night. He claims that when the car was nearing Bridge street he told the conductor that he wished to get off at Bridge street. Shortly afterward the conductor called out "Bridge street," and he went out to the platform and held on to the rail. The car was all the time slowing down and he stood there waiting for it to stop. When it was apparently about to come to a full stop, it suddenly started up again, and he was unable to keep his balance and held on. He was thrown to the ground, striking on his head.

There was some testimony that the car had come to a full stop before the plaintiff was thrown.

The defense claimed that the car had not come to a full stop, but was moving when Mr. Marr attempted to get off.

The case of Peck vs. Dwyer, to recover for an alleged assault, then went to trial. Lawyer Hamel for the plaintiff and Pratt & Devine for the defendant.

A WORLD'S RECORD

Johnstone in Airship Attained
Altitude of 9714 Feet

BELMONT PARK, L. I., Nov. 1.—America's first international aviation meet closed last night with a world's record for altitude, made by Ralph Johnstone of the Wright camp, flying a special Wright machine constructed for high climbing.

Johnstone's height as announced unofficially when he came down at dark was 9714 feet. The best previous record was 9186 feet, made at Moulmoulin, France, a few weeks ago, by Henry Myndmullen, a Hollander, flying a Farman biplane. Johnstone won by his high flight a special prize of $5000. The machine in which Johnstone made his record was brought to this meet by the Wright brothers for the purpose which was accomplished yesterday. It is much smaller than any of the regulation Wright machines, having only 180 square feet of wing surface. Its engine was a 30-horse power, four cylinder, and its special climbing ability was due in a large degree to extra long wing tips.

The Wright brothers had figured on corraling this record and prize and at the proper moment trotted out their little machine and their best climber went after the record and brought it down in the most matter of fact manner imaginable. Johnstone ascended at 3.31, one minute after the bomb had gone off for the special altitude contest. He was dressed for the occasion in a costume consisting of long rubber leggings, leather coat below the hips, a leather cap coming well down to the back of the neck, a leather mask that covered his face, except for eyeholes, and yellow glass goggles.

When Johnstone had climbed into his seat Orville Wright had a last word with him, giving him instructions on the control of the machine, in which Johnstone had never been before.

The young man listened attentively to his master, touched a lever, a switch and a few wires and was ready to start. After the propeller had been started Wilbur Wright, arrayed like his brother in ministerial black and a duster, came up and spoke to the young aviator, shaking a few words of farewell counsel.

Before the brothers stepped aside, Johnstone waved his hand in signal, the men at the tail of the machine let go their hold and the little climber started up.

Johnstone flew toward the south, going over the grandstand. At a height of about 500 feet he began to turn, and thereforward he went up and up in steady spirals for half an hour, his machine at last appearing a mere fleck of blue and silver against the pale blue of a cloudless sky.

Finally, the crowd on the ground completely lost track of the machine and turned its attention to other matters. There was enough to engage its attention. Following Johnstone by a few minutes was J. Armstrong Drexel of Philadelphia, second in his Blériot monoplane, also out for the grand prize in altitude. He also spiraled up into the blue until he was a smudge of dun brown on the sky. Then he, too, was forgotten.

In the race of twilight Johnstone came down in a swift descent that made the crowd about the field gasp. It seemed as if he were dropping headlong to earth. But he was not. Practiced eyes saw that he was coming in graceful, short spirals. This ended with a steep collapse to the field, where he alighted as easily as if he had been up only five minutes.

Biting Cold

An official automobile dashed across the field and came back with Johnstone's barograph. Only a glance at it was needed to show that Drexel of Philadelphia had brought to America the great honor of a world's altitude record.

Johnstone had been in the air an hour and a half. On being interviewed, he said he had found it easy climbing for the first mile and a half. He had met very little wind, and hardly any swirls. After he had passed an altitude of 8,300 feet, as indicated on a small aneroid barometer, he wore strapped to his wrist, he had very hard work getting higher, owing to the rarity of the atmosphere and the diminished lifting power of his plane.

He kept on going until he found that his gasoline was running low, and guessing on how much he would need to take him to earth, at last he came down. As he had never seen before he did not know exactly how his air stood to let it coast freely, so he came down in moderate spirals until near the earth. At that he was but three minutes in descending a mile.

His flight was his worst experience in the flight was with the cold. He had no trouble in breathing at the high altitude, but he was perfectly numb when the machine reached the ground.

CALLED A DRAW

Battling Nelson Has Lost His Steam

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Battling Nelson in a 15 round draw with Antoine LaGrave here last night proved himself unable to come back. He displayed his old-time boxing tactics and kept after LaGrave from the start, but was not quite good enough. Several times the Dane had the local boy worried but he could not gather the force to send home a knockout punch. LaGrave was nervous at first. For three or four rounds he looked as though the old champion was going to have an easy time of it. Driving in straight lefts, varied now and then with the old right cross, which helped him to the title, Nelson drove his man around the ring.

After the first four rounds of this black and white battle, Nelson fought back. He showed little science, but was rugged and game while his youth stayed off defeat, which threatened him as far along as the twelfth round. The Battler showed no little cleverness in blocking, but this was offset by his wildness. His mistakes came and again with his right cross to the jaw.

In the last round LaGrave stood up without flinching to a get-and-take slugging bee that brought the crowd to its feet. The men were hammering away without evidence of distress when the clang came.

CARBONI ALIVE

Medium Said That He Was Dead

LYNN, Nov. 1.—At the Lynn police station yesterday, a letter was received from a medium in Edgewood, R. I. who declared that Michael Carboni, the Watch and Ward detective who disappeared last week, had been murdered.

Carboni had been a leading witness in a number of police cases which have been tried in the Lynn court recently.

In the letter which was signed by Mrs. F. A. Hall, the writer declared that Carboni had been murdered by one of the 40 thieves of Boston. She declared that his ghost had appeared to her and had told her how he had been choked and strangled down his throat. The ghost, she declared, said that the body was taken in an automobile and thrown into a pond in Lynn.

Carboni, agent for the Watch and Ward society, whose disappearance Oct. 22 caused a series of foul play because of his exposure of opium dens, has got back to his home, 211 Endicott street, with a story of having lain unconscious in a New York lodging house after being drugged in a Boston hotel. Recovering from the drug he hired his wife and she went at once to New York and brought him home.

PICKETING SQUAD

New Phase of Garment Workers Strike

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—A new phase of the strike of the garment workers today was the inauguration of a systematic picketing squad, according to rule for the women and girls. The women's trade union league has compiled a set of rules for girl pickets and before the strike, girls of the society women who were to come out in full force today were allowed to attend the "picket school."

Legal talent was consulted and the rules were written so as to keep the strike within the letter of the law. At least 15,000 of the 40,000 workers now on strike are girls and women.

The rules are as follows: Don't walk in groups of more than two or three. Don't stand in front of the shop. Walk up and down the block.

Don't stop at the shop. Don't speak to; walk alongside of him. Don't put your hand on the person you are speaking to. This may be construed as a "technical assault."

Don't call anyone a "scab" or use abusive language of any kind. Plead, persuade, or threaten. If a policeman arrests you and you are sure that you have committed no offense take down his number and give it to your union officers.

INDIAN LANDS

To be Opened to Public Entry Today

KALISPEL, Mont., Nov. 1.—The fireworks to mark the opening of the last Flathead Indian lands to public entry today were primed at noon yesterday when the first claimant took his station at the land office door. He kept his vigil there all night in company with several others who arrived later. Some exciting incidents were expected today for many hired horses and had them made ready in relays. Others chartered gasoline launches and left their homes and ploughed their way up the west shore of the lake in the darkness. Crowds reached Somers early on regular boats this morning.

LOST THEIR CHANCES

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho, Nov. 1.—Shivering in miniature tents, some without shelter and little bedding, approximately 11,000 "spooners" squatted on land in the Coeur d'Alene reservation last night waiting the signal opening the unallotted tracts to general selection at noon today. Following the recent in drawing all who drew lucky numbers and did not file, lost their chances.

ADMIRAL BARRIE COMMANDS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Rear Admiral W. D. Barrie assumed command of the Pacific cruiser fleet today when he took the command of the battleship USS Oregon, which is being transferred to the position of flagship of the second division, command of which has been assigned to Rear Admiral Chatigny Thomas.

BADLY BURNED

Hull Woman Not Expected to Live

HULL, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Thomas M. Paine, aged 58, of Atlantic avenue, Green Hill, this town, was severely burned in her home last night, and it is feared she cannot recover. Her husband also was badly burned while trying to aid her.

Mr. and Mrs. Paine are among the oldest residents of this town. They have seven grown up children, four daughters and three sons, who do not live at home.

Mr. Paine sleeps upstairs in their little home, and Mrs. Paine sleeps in a chamber on the first floor. As usual, they retired early. At 8.30 Mr. Paine heard his wife crying for help. He ran downstairs in his night clothing and found her in the bed, which was a mass of flames. He attempted to extinguish the flames and in doing so was severely burned about the legs, arms and hands.

Mr. Paine was driving by the Paine house at the time and he saw smoke coming out of the door, and he tried to get help. Peaseley went inside and found Mr. Paine fighting to save his wife's life. Peaseley went to their aid and called in neighbors, and the flames were extinguished before they had spread to the house.

Mr. Paine was shockingly burned from the head to the shoulders. She was taken to Massachusetts General hospital.

Before Mrs. Paine became unconscious she said she got out of bed to get a glass of water and in doing so lighted the kerosene lamp. The lamp was blown out and it had not exploded. It was thought that the oil she threw the match into the bed clothes which smoldered and burst into flames shortly after Mrs. Paine got back to bed.

In his early days Mr. Paine was captain of the Red Jacket company of volunteer firemen of a company town which ran with a hand. He is well known among the veteran firemen's organizations of the country.

HAS RESIGNED

Viscount Morley Gives Up Office

LONDON, Nov. 1.—It is stated that Viscount Morley has resigned the office of secretary of state for India and the fact that he declines information on the subject is accepted as confirmation of the report of his retirement. The viscount is in his 73rd year and it is known that he has for some time desired to vacate his post because of his advanced years and ill health.

The Earl of Creve is mentioned as likely to succeed Viscount Morley.

BOSTON HERALD

WAS TURNED OVER TO NEW HANDS TODAY

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—The Boston Herald passed today into new hands after a four months' receivership and the new owners of the property, of which Morton G. Plant of New York is the largest, have relinquished the control to a board of trustees. Those now in charge are Richard Olney, Major Henry Leavenworth, Robert M. Burnett and Henry Rowe. Robert Lincoln O'Brien, a newspaper man of national reputation, is the editor, and J. Wells Farley, a young lawyer and a famous Harvard football player of ten years ago, is its counsel and treasurer.

The trustees are all well known men. Richard Olney is a former secretary of state, Major Higginson a well known banker, John H. Holmes was the manager of the Herald at the height of its prosperity, and Robert Burnett is the head of the largest farm in New England, while Henry S. Howe is a prominent Boston commission merchant.

It is stated that these five men can make no profit out of the enterprise, their services being secured only by an appeal to their civic pride.

It is also announced that the paper will not be made "uselessly" voluminous, but will be kept at the old size of four pages, and that it will be published on week days or Sundays. The work is to be done by the old staff, but with a new management, by no means experimental, but by supporting in the interests of the public, safe, sane and progressive policies without regard to their origin.

$1,000,000 LOSS

6000 Bales of Cotton Were Burned

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Nov. 1.—Several large cotton sheds and 6000 bales of cotton were burned today. The loss is about $1,000,000.

PRES. JORDAN

ASCRIPTION CAUSE FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 1.—"The high cost of living which we are feeling now is partly due to the outcome of the Russo-Japanese war," declared the Lord Starr Jordan, president of the League of Nations, in a speech last night on "International Peace."

"The whole world helps to pay the penalty of any war. Governments are now ruled by their capitalists. The drain of war in life and blood has lowered the quality of the race and has placed the nations under bonds to the invincible empire of wealth than can ever be paid. Every grant power is staggering under the weight of the interest charges alone."

KING ALFONSO

DECLINES TO ASSUME PLEBANY POWERS

MADRID, Nov. 1.—The recent statement of the Diarte Universal, the ministerial organ, that King Alfonso would decline to assume plebany powers in the settlement of the boundary disputes between Ecuador and Peru would propose that the parties invest him only with the faculties of a friendly arbitrator is considered official.

A TRIPLE TRAGEDY

In a Fall River Home Was Narrowly Averted

FALL RIVER, Nov. 1.—A triple tragedy was narrowly averted in a tenement at 207 John street yesterday when James Powers of 449 4th street was arrested, charged with assault and battery on his wife Mary, and murder of his brother-in-law, Michael Donovan.

Powers was convicted a short time ago of assault on his wife and sentenced to the house of correction. Since then she has not been living with him.

Yesterday morning it is alleged, Powers stood at the corner of John and Morgan streets to intercept his wife on her way to work in the mill, and as she attempted to pass him he struck her. There were several persons near at the time and Powers ran off when he saw them.

Mrs. Powers was not able to go to the mill and returned home. The attention of the police was called to the case and they went searching for Powers. He had eluded the police and about 11 o'clock started for the home of his wife at 207 John street.

Just as the officers reached the house they heard a revolver shot.

Rushing into the tenement the police saw Powers and Michael Donovan in tight embrace. Over in a corner stood Mrs. Powers, while two neighbors were on the verge of collapse in another corner. Powers' right hand gripped a revolver, the police say, and Donovan was struggling with him for possession of it. Prompt action was necessary and Officer Neffman clubbed Powers into submission.

It was learned by the police that Powers entered the tenement and, showing to his wife, told her to throw up her hands, at the same time giving a similar command to his brother-in-law. In another instant the possible tragedy was averted, for Powers turned his head enough to allow Donovan to jump upon him and the struggle for the revolver ensued, ending with the arrival of the police.

At the station house Powers told the police that he intended to kill his wife first, then his brother-in-law and then shoot himself. An examination of the revolver showed that one cartridge had been exploded and the other four chambers were filled.

WANTS $100,000 MAN HAD A ROLL

To Fight "White Slave" Traffic But Refused to Support His Family

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Asking for an endowment fund of $100,000 and suggesting that the first place to inaugurate a campaign against the "white slave" traffic is in the nation's capital, the alleged social reformers who left Chicago in September for a social purity campaign through the west, south and north, returned yesterday and made a report to the American Purity Federation.

The members of the delegation visited all the principal cities of western Canada as well as St. Paul, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Seattle, Tacoma, San Francisco, Houston, Texas; New Orleans, Memphis and Washington. They report that they found conditions much worse in the west than in Chicago, but not one of the delegation was willing to admit that Chicago had been slandered.

Congressman J. R. Mann, author of the "white slave" act, said that while all men were sorry for the vicious conditions which prevail in certain localities, yet the aim of efficient legislation was to secure the enactment of effective laws and not to engage in the wholesale expression of sentiments.

"When President Taft signed the 'white slave' bill he said to me: 'Now that you have the law, lose no time in arresting and imprisoning the men who engage in the traffic,'" said Mr. Mann. "The president said that these men were the vilest of all criminals and that it was now up to the people to catch them and prosecute them."

Tracy appeared before the court last week on a similar complaint, and the court after learning the circumstances in connection with the case, ordered Tracy to pay $8 a week to his wife, the first payment to be made last Saturday.

Tracy failed to comply with the order of the court and as a result a writ of habeas corpus was issued for his arrest and yesterday he was taken into custody and when searched at the police station it was found that he had $154 in his possession.

When the matter was brought into court this morning, and it was explained to Judge Hadley that Tracy had considerable money in his possession and refused to give any of it to his wife the court ordered that Tracy be fined $100, the money to be paid to the wife.

MEN ARE ARMED

Searching for Gang That Kidnapped Girl

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 1.—Armed men are now in pursuit of desperadoes who kidnapped Grace Rolph from a ranch near Chicom on Wednesday. Miss Rolph is a daughter of Dr. E. B. Rolph of Boston, Mass.

The kidnapping was contained in a telegram received at the American embassy last night from Consul Miller of Tampico. The consul reported that Segundo Selero and Leandro Mendoza, two armed men, robbed a safe, kidnapped the girl and fled.

Dr. Rolph, accompanied by friends, are now in pursuit. The kidnappers joined friends with whom they are headed for Huasteca, Vera Cruz. Consul Miller has asked that rurales be sent to aid the pursuers in the situation and has said that a clash is probable.

The fate of the young girl is in doubt.

LARCENY CHARGE

FATHER AND SON ARE HELD AT BRIGHTON

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Benjamin Shatz, 48 years old, father and son, were arrested yesterday afternoon by Capt. McGarr and Armstrong and Inspector McCauley on larceny charges following complaints by Benjamin S. Gledley of Barnett, Vt., John D. Neylvin of Hardwick, and Harry A. Gilmore of Westboro, all cattle dealers. Cash bail of $1250 was furnished by the father's brother for each of the men.

The larcenies are said to have occurred at the Brighton stockyards on Sept. 21, 26 and 27. On the first date the father is said to have purchased two head of cattle from Gledley, valued at $1250. The agreement, the police say, was that the cattle were not to be taken until they were sold. The father, Shatz, is alleged to have violated the agreement by going to the pen and claiming the cattle.

The day that Gledley lost his cattle the father came to the stockyards alone, but on Sept. 26 and 27 the father and son are said to have gone there together, representing themselves as Charles Shatz & Co.

The son claimed to be the treasurer of the company. Twelve head of cattle, valued at $467.50, were obtained from Neylvin and Gilmore. Charles Shatz is alleged to have written out checks as treasurer in payment, which are alleged to have been worthless.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Cochrane of Auburn street are seeking over the removal of a baby girl. The little stranger arrived Saturday.

CAUGHT BY THE POLICE AND FORCED TO GIVE UP

Brought in For Non-Support With $154 In His Possession—Court Ordered Fund of $100 Turned Over to His Family

A very pitiful case was brought before the attention of Judge Hadley in police court this morning when Edward Tracy was arraigned on a complaint charging him with failing to provide proper support for his wife.

Tracy appeared before the court last week on a similar complaint, and the court after learning the circumstances in connection with the case, ordered Tracy to pay $8 a week to his wife, the first payment to be made last Saturday.

Tracy failed to comply with the order of the court and as a result a writ of habeas corpus was issued for his arrest and yesterday he was taken into custody and when searched at the police station it was found that he had $154 in his possession.

When the matter was brought into court this morning, and it was explained to Judge Hadley that Tracy had considerable money in his possession and refused to give any of it to his wife the court ordered that Tracy be fined $100, the money to be paid to the wife.

Liquor Nuisance

Osmond L. Field pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with keeping a liquor nuisance. Upon promising to do better in the future the court imposed the nominal fee, $50.

Drunken Offenders

Thomas F. McGovern has been hanging around the South common for the past several weeks, according to the testimony of Police Constable Cagney. McGovern was charged with being drunk and admitted the allegation. After the patrolman had testified the court sentenced McGovern to two months in jail.

Thomas Bond, who was charged with being drunk, was ordered to do better in the future and the court sentenced him to four months in jail and placed him in the hands of the probation officer for one year.

John Smith was given a direct sentence to the state farm.

Serious Offense

James C. Burns and Mary C. Austin were found guilty of a statutory offense and were sentenced to six months in jail.

JOSIAH P. QUINCY

GRANDSON OF FIRST MAYOR QUINCY IS DEAD

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—After an illness with pneumonia of seven days, Josiah Phillips Quincy passed away last evening at his home at 82 Charles street.

He was born in Boston Nov. 23, 1828, and was the son of Josiah Quincy, the second mayor of Boston of that name, and a grandson of the first Mayor Quincy. He graduated at Harvard in the class of 1850, which celebrated its 60th anniversary at the last commencement

FOR SHEDD PARK

Appropriations Committee Recommends Expenditure of $10,000

Judge Pickman Says a Skating Rink Will be Provided—Fire Chief's Auto and Auto Police Patrol Provided For—Other Matters

The committee on appropriations, at a meeting held in the mayor's reception room at city hall last night, voted to recommend a loan of $10,000 to start the work of developing Shedd park. The committee also voted to recommend a loan of $500 for a new auto patrol wagon for the police department and $2000 for the purchase of an automobile for the chief of the fire department.

Heads of departments were on hand to explain their wants. The committee referred to a loan of $25,000 for a new stable for the health department to next year's government. The sum of $500 for fire alarm boxes at Cashin street and Princeton boulevard and Fourth avenue and Moody street was recommended.

John J. Mulvaney, chairman of the board of police, was before the committee to speak of the question of a new auto police patrol for which $5000 had been asked. Mr. Mulvaney allowed that an automobile was necessary in order to bring the department right up to date. He said that in the capture of criminals he believed an automobile to be practically indispensable. He said that the horses were getting old and that the department would have to have new horses if the automobile was not forthcoming. He assured the committee that the police department would live within its appropriation with the exception of the amount asked for the purchase of the auto patrol. He believed that in order to properly cover the Highlands, South Lowell and other long distance points an automobile was necessary.

A joint order to borrow $10,000 for two auto combination wagons and an automobile for the chief, also $500 for two alarm boxes was taken up.

Chief Hosmer's Views
Chief Hosmer said that the auto combinations were required to bring the department up to the required efficiency. He said it was cheaper to buy automobile apparatus than to build new houses. As to an auto for himself, Mr. Hosmer said he wanted something to get him to a fire before it is all out.

"The auto gets to a fire now," he said, "while I am looking up street." He allowed that the purchase of automobile apparatus would be a good investment for the city. In fact, he said the automobiles were necessary in order to give the Highland and Oakland districts the proper protection. The combination wagons are for High and Branch street engine houses.

Mr. Hosmer thought the automobiles would work all right in the snow. "I think they will go where horses can't go," he said.

Mr. Hosmer said it would be impossible to get the apparatus this year, and in view of that fact Alderman Dexter suggested that perhaps it would be as well to let the matter go over to the first of the year and have the appropriation made at that time.

As to the fire boxes, Mr. Hosmer said they had been petitioned for and he believed they were needed.

The chief also spoke about the boiler in the Central fire station. The state inspector recommended that a new boiler be installed. Mr. Hosmer said that if anything went wrong with the boiler the fire alarm system would be put out of commission. The present boiler is 35 years old.

Members of the park commission were present to discuss the question of a loan of $10,000 for the development of Shedd park.

E. W. Bowditch, landscape architect of Boston, explained the plans that he prepared for Shedd park. He explained how the $10,000 could be expended to best advantage as a starter for the development of the grounds.

Mr. Bowditch said if the money was forthcoming he would make the pond this winter so that the children and others could use it for skating purposes.

Judge Pickman Promises Skating Park
Judge Pickman said he thought the public approved of the action of the council in accepting the gift. He said Mr. Shedd and his family were pleased with the graceful acceptance of the gift.

Mr. Pickman commented on the utterances in the press relative to the gift and its acceptance and said that such general expression of satisfaction was unusual.

"Let us look after all classes," said Mr. Pickman, "and provide pleasure and entertainment for those who are not in a position to seek rest or entertainment at the mountains or the seashore during the summer months. I want to see the pond ready for skating this winter."

Hon. John E. Drury
Hon. John E. Drury of the park commission said that Judge Pickman had covered the ground pretty thoroughly and there wasn't much that he could add. Mr. Drury spoke of Fort Hill as a beauty spot. He said there had been more or less criticism as to the money expended at Fort Hill, but the people of Lowell, he said, get a great deal of enjoyment there and the beauty of the place excites the admiration of visitors. Mr. Drury said that while Fort Hill is a beauty spot and commands a splendid view of the city and surroundings it is, but a Shedd park will be a place to rest, to sport and to admire.

He told the committee members that by helping along the development of the park by recommending the appropriation asked for they were offering an incentive to others of a philanthropic spirit to do as Mr. Shedd has done. "It strikes me," he said, "that you as representatives of the people can wisely recommend the appropriation asked for."

Supt. Dow
Inspector James Dow of the lands and buildings department was called in and asked relative to the boiler question at the Central fire station. Mr. Dow said that a new boiler was necessary. He also broke the sad news to the committee that he needed about $1500 to bridge over his department for the year, over and above the $300 required for the boiler.

After Mr. Dow had been excused, the committee got down to business. The first up was the proposed expenditure of $25,000 for a new stable for the board of health. It was voted to refer the matter to next year's city council.

Then came the question of recommending $5000 for the purchase of an auto patrol for the police department and on motion of Councilman Flanagan, the recommendation was voted.

As to the automobiles for fire department, Councilman Flanagan thought the matter ought to go over to next year's government. He said the automobiles could not be delivered this winter.

Mr. Flanagan said that the purchase of automobiles would mean that the Councilman Jewett moved that $2000 be allowed for an automobile for Chief Hosmer. It was so voted, Flanagan voting against.

Alderman Dexter moved that the committee recommend the adoption of the order for $10,000 for developing Shedd park.

"Mr. Shedd has made a magnificent gift to the city, and it seems to me that we ought to show our appreciation," said Alderman Dexter.

The motion became a unanimous vote.

It was voted to draw up an order recommending $900 for a new boiler at the fire station in Middle street.

The question of voting $500 for two new fire alarm boxes came up.

Alderman Smith J. Adams of the fire department committee was present and he informed the committee that the protection of life and property in the vicinity of Cashin street and the Princeton boulevard, and Fourth avenue and Moody street demanded the installation of the two alarms. He said the residents of these localities were remote from any fire alarm at the present time.

The committee voted to recommend the $500.

The committee briefly went over the year's loans and estimated revenues as compared with receipts.

The revenues for month work did not come up to expectations, the estimate being $5000, with only $1223.19 received up to Oct. 1. It was stated that less work had been done on private property this year than has been the case heretofore.

The total estimated revenues for the year amounted to $41,245, whereas only $26,186.14 had been turned in up to Oct. 1.

The loans to Oct. 1 amounted to $18,400, as follows: Paving streets, $30,000; sewers, $50,000; buildings, $10,000; bridges, $10,000; Hale's brook improvements, $20,400.

FOR SHORTER DAY
Mr. Carroll Defends the Eight Hour Bill

The following letter from William J. Carroll, discussing the expediency and justice of reducing the hours of labor in order that none may be overworked and that all may have an opportunity to work. Mr. Carroll argues in favor of the eight hour bill vetoed by Governor Draper.

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 31, 1910.
Editor of The Sun:

Sir: A friend of mine, who is an independent politician annually from Jan. 1st to Sept. 1st, inclusive, and a militant republican for the rest of the year, finds cause for considerable comfort in Governor Draper's veto of what he terms "the so-called eight hour bill."

His day in discussing the matter, he said it is up to every sensible man, whether he be a labor union member or not, to stand up in his place and be counted for the right side of this particular question.

As I seemed to be more or less accurately described by the term, "sensible man," I jumped right up to be counted, but on second thought, said: "Wait a moment, let us see just what is the right side, before we proceed with the enumeration."

"Well, says my friend, 'the mere fact that an organized body of men demands a law, is no guarantee that it is a demand fit to be granted. In this case it certainly was not. The demand was outrageous.'"

This took me somewhat by surprise, for if there is any one thing upon which my friend prides himself more than the facility with which he uses Latin phrases in his discussion, it is the facility with which he uses Latin phrases in his discussion. So it was with some misgivings that I said, "Perfectly true, but neither does the same fact prove that the demand was not fit to be granted—in fact is no evidence one way or the other and is, as you yourself would say, argumentum ad hominem. Your conclusion that the demand was outrageous could not be founded upon fact stated but must have been drawn from other facts which you have not seen fit to disclose."

"However," I continued, "I will admit without further argument that if the demand was outrageous, it is not fit to be granted and you may count me as against it, but I am not quite convinced as yet that such is the case."

Taking no notice of my remarks, my independent friend proceeded: "No wonder the governor refused to sign any such bill. If he hadn't vetoed it, the supreme court would presumably have declared it unconstitutional when it was tested, and therefore null and void."

"But, my dear sir," I objected, "you must see as a logician that this is the argumentum ad verecundiam." Seeing that he didn't like my Latin, I hastened to say by way of conclusion, "Of course if all laws which are unconstitutional are outrageous, and if the law under consideration is unconstitutional, there can be no question but that it is outrageous."

But in this particular case there are two other facts either of which must prove fatal to the argument. 1st, the proposed law is clearly not unconstitutional, never having been so declared by competent authority, and 2nd, many proposed laws which have been declared unconstitutional are certainly not outrageous, a good example of which is the late lamented income tax law.

With a thinly veiled expression of either pity or contempt for my stupidity, my friend arose to his feet, and drawing forth a small American flag which had hitherto reposed in the inner left hand pocket of his waistcoat, he held it aloft with patriotic fervor, his face bright with emotion, and his voice tremulous with emotion, all the while waving the flag, like the little drummer boy in the moving picture of the battle of Gettysburg, he declaimed as follows, to wit: "The free right of a free-born American workingman to work even a few minutes overtime if he himself wanted to do it, and if necessity or convenience made it desirable, was sought to be denied him."

I feel no shame in confessing that at the time, I failed to notice that this was an exceptionally fine example of the well known material fallacy, argumentum ad populum, and, to use a slang phrase, I fell for it.

The light of day seemed to fade away, the room and all my surroundings vanished into nothingness and I seemed to be borne by invisible hands to times and scenes long since passed and gone. There passed in rapid review before me those mighty events leading up to the establishment of the American nation. I beheld the gradual colonization of the new world, the struggle against taxation without representation, the Boston tea party, the declaration of independence, the crisis of Valley Forge, Washington crossing the Delaware with the cold cakes of ice on every side threatening to overwhelm Yorktown, victory! 1812. The constitutional struggle in congress culminating in the war for the preservation of the Union and the abolition of chattel slavery. The great industrial development and the prosperity of our glorious country and its glorious inhabitant, the free-born American workingman! The sovereign voting rights whose right to work overtime is now sought to be denied him. My patriotism was aroused, my heart was touched, several tears sprang to my eyes and I wept. "Crucel! I cried. Despicable! Outrageous! Count me against it! Count me against it! I came to with a start. I was alone; my friend had left in triumph.

But the memory of his last words haunted me, particularly those referring to the free-born American workingman's right to work overtime, and I kept asking myself over and over again if he really had any such right—has he even the right to work? and if so how does he acquire such right, what are its limits and what incidental rights go with it in order to make it effective?

The conclusions I arrived at are: 1. The free-born American workingman and every other man, has the right to work.

2. This right is a natural right acquired by birth, the same as the right to breathe the air, and for the same reason, viz.: life itself depends upon the right.

Upon this earth food, clothing and shelter are absolutely necessary to the maintenance of life. These may be obtained only by the application of human labor to the resources of Nature and when such application is made may be obtained in bountiful supply. As the only object in performing labor is the securing of these necessities of life, above referred to, it follows that if by the invention and adoption of improved methods of production and distribution, such as machinery, railroads, etc., the human labor required is lessened, the advantages thus derived should redound to the benefit of the workers in the form of shorter hours of labor. But unfortunately, as industry is now carried on the result of improved methods of production and distribution is this: Those who are in control of the machinery of production and distribution, (which includes mills, mines, railroads, steamship lines, telegraph and telephone systems, etc.) find that the work of the world can be done by employing only part of those who are willing and able to work, are able through the competition of the unemployed, to force the employed through fear of losing their jobs, in other words their means of life, to accept shorter wages and work longer hours than they would in the absence of such competition. The unemployed is the sword of Damocles which hangs over the head of the employed.

The right to work necessarily carries with it the right to the opportunity to work, for without such opportunity the right to work is meaningless and is of no value whatever.

There can be no question that the soundest considerations of public policy demand that every individual have the opportunity to expend his labor power in producing either directly that which he requires for his maintenance or something in the absence of which he is willing to accept in exchange for such requirements.

Lack of this opportunity constitutes all the difference between the efficient, industrious, producing and useful members of society, and the tramp, pauper and criminal, for by the continued denial of the opportunity to work the best citizen may become in

Awards Were Made to 58 Who Performed Heroic Work

PITTSBURG, Nov. 1.—The Carnegie hero fund commission last night made 58 awards—the largest number ever handed down. There were 28 bronze medals, 30 silver medals and $40,250 disposed of in the award yesterday.

The pensions in yesterday's awards total $10,380 per year. The awards stretch from northern California to the Pacific coast.

Thirteen who took part in the rescue work at the ill fated Cherry, Ill., mine disaster Nov. 13, 1909, are among those recognized as heroes by the commission, while heroes of several mine disasters in the hard coal region of Pennsylvania are also remembered.

There are also awards of interest to the Atlantic coast. Louise M. Kilroe, the mother of F. B. Kilroe, a 20 year old lad of Waterbury, Conn., who lost his life at Middlebury, Conn., June 10, 1910, trying to save John Gallagher, a motor boatman, is given a silver medal, $150 to liquidate indebtedness and $30 per month until further notice, not to exceed five years. Of Kilroe's act, the hero commission says:

"Frederick Kilroe and a brother, who was older and together young men in a 16 foot rowboat went out 50 feet from shore, with Massicotte, hanging in the water from the stern of the boat. Frederick's brother was only an ordinary swimmer and the other occupants of the boat could not swim. Massicotte was continued to keep a hold on the boat and then Frederick and his brother dived overboard and began to swim about."

Story of Kilroe's Heroism

"Massicotte left the boat unnoticed and was 30 feet south of it struggling with the water. Frederick saw him and shouted to Frederick to look after him. Frederick was about 30 feet south of Massicotte, and he immediately swam to him. Massicotte grabbed him by the face and they went under together. Frederick quickly came up, followed by Massicotte. Frederick shouted to the others to bring the boat. His brother had swam to the boat, but in his anxiety to get to Massicotte had lost an ear and could not propel the boat against the wind with the single oar."

"Then Frederick swam behind Massicotte and grasping him by the back of the neck started to push him toward shore. He had progressed but a few feet when Massicotte twisted about and grasped him by the shoulders and both went under for the second time. In a few seconds Frederick reappeared, his face flushed."

"Massicotte did not come up and Frederick started swimming feebly toward the boat, which was now about 100 feet north of him. His brother shouted to him to swim to shore, as it was nearer. He turned toward the east bank and had taken but a few strokes when he sank and was drowned. His body was recovered in about 20 minutes but all efforts at resuscitation failed. He was scratched considerably and cut about the mouth and one eye. After an hour, Massicotte's body was found standing in the mud on bottom."

Bopp's Mother Gets Pension

Adam J. Bopp, aged 23, of Middleboro, Mass., lost his life May 22, 1910, trying to save John Gallagher, a Boston telegrapher from drowning in Lake Assawompsett. His mother, Elizabeth D. Bopp, is awarded a silver medal and death benefits in the sum of $1000 to be applied to the liquidation of her indebtedness. Of Bopp's heroic act the hero commission says:

"After casting the painter of his rowboat to the occupants of a passing sailboat Gallagher attempted to jump into the sailboat and fell into the lake. He started to swim after the sailboat, but at the urging of its occupants he was pulled back. The painter, the painter of which had been dropped. The wind kept the rowboat beyond his reach and he called for help."

"A young man jumped from the sailboat, swam to the rowboat and taking the painter of it in his teeth swam toward Gallagher. Becoming fatigued when within about 20 feet of Gallagher he stopped swimming and clinging to the rowboat. A motor boat passed Gallagher and a man at the bow of it made a grab for him, but missed."

Middleboro Men's Act

"Bopp arrived in his motorboat and as he ran past Gallagher made an unsuccessful effort to grasp him. A moment later Gallagher went under water. Bopp swung his boat about and inquired where Gallagher had disappeared. The spot was pointed out to him and running his boat to it he shut off the power, stood up and peered into the water. In a moment he cried that he could see Gallagher and then dived overboard."

"He soon came up, holding Gallagher at his left side and started swimming toward his boat, which had drifted about 20 feet away. He had gone but four or five strokes when Gallagher whirled about and caught him by the throat and they went under. They rose in a few moments, Gallagher still holding to Bopp."

"A motor boat was run past them and a man attempted to grab them but failed. Another motorboat swung past and a rope was thrown which struck Bopp's hand but to which he paid no attention. In a second or two Bopp and Gallagher sank and were drowned. Their bodies were recovered after dynamite had been used. Witnesses state that when they saw Bopp dive overboard they felt he was taking a great risk."

Of the rescue from death or the attempts, seven were from railroad trains or street cars, 19 from drowning, one from a runaway horse, eight from suffocation in gas producers or wells, 20 from death in mine disasters, two from fire and one from shooting."

BOY IS MISSING

Feared He Has Met With Accident

HAVERHILL, Nov. 1.—The police are baffled over the disappearance of James Albert Pinkham, aged 18 years, a resident of Charles street, and a light chestnut mare which the boy had from E. Emery.

Last Saturday afternoon Pinkham went to the Emery stable and asked to hire a saddle horse. He was not known but presented a good appearance and he was allowed to have one of the best animals the stable afforded. He started out, taking a course up Stage street, through Vermont square. The traces of him have been secured since then.

When the horse was not returned the stableman reported the matter to the police, giving a detailed description of horse and youth to the officers. The parents of the lad also called at police headquarters and reported their son as missing.

Pinkham has been in Haverhill about two years, having come here with his family from Vancouver, Me. He lived on Charles street and since he has been here, so far as the police know, has been a model young man. His parents assert he never before remained away from home over night and they fear that some serious accident has befallen him.

The police don't know what to make of the case. From their investigations they have found no habits of young Pinkham to have been of the best. They are disinclined to believe the accident theory, for the reason that had anything of the sort taken place they would have been likely to have heard of it.

The boy is 18 years old, 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, has light hair, blue eyes, smooth face and wore a dark gray suit, blue flannel shirt, no tie, and a blue cap. His horse was black and he wore low cut patent leather shoes. When he left he had no weapon.

The mare which he hired was a chestnut, weighing about 900 pounds, had a white striped forehead, two white hind legs and a docked tail. The saddle on the mare was of the English style.

So far as anyone has been able to learn the boy did not have much money, nor did he carry any valuables worth mentioning.

A SURPRISE PARTY

Stirring Talk by E. S. Crandon to Sons of the Revolution

The members of Old Middlesex chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, held a delightful social gathering at the Vesper-Country club with large attendance. The guest of the evening and the principal speaker was Edward S. Crandon of Cambridge, vice president of the state organization, who gave an informal talk that made a deep impression.

An excellent dinner was served by Supt. Clough, and 50 members and guests assembled at the tables. Hubbard's orchestra played popular airs during the repast and the diners joined in the choruses. The president, Horace S. Bacon presided and introduced as the speaker of the evening Vice President Crandon, who said that his purpose in speaking was to arouse the real spirit of '76 in his hearers. In plain language he indicated that there was need for the sons of those who of the American Revolution.

After Mr. Crandon's address, Harry G. Pollard, chairman of the entertainment committee, was called upon, and he in turn introduced an emcee, Mr. S. Thompson Blood of Concord, Mr. Blood gave a number of recitations that were exceedingly funny, using wigs and beards and spectacles to enhance the makeup of the characters.

Those present were: Horace S. Bacon, Edwin S. Crandon, Dr. Moses G. Gray, Parker, Dr. James B. Field, Charles H. Conant, Rev. Allan Conant, Fern, Rev. Dr. Ransom A. Greene, Dr. Clarence B. Livingston, James P. Savage, Sec. Ralph E. Shaw, Howard W. Foster, John Trail, F. H. Safford, Edward W. Clark, William H. Choate, Edson K. Humphrey, Harry G. Pollard, Herbert C. Taft, Frank L. ## HORSE LAMENESS

In health, the weight of the body of the horse is supported by the equal distribution upon the four legs and changes, by regular action and movements from right to left and back again without friction or loss of equilibrium but if the right leg becomes in any way weakened or impaired it seeks relief by resting on the left, the greater weight of the body being thrown to that side and the body will settle to the left. Therefore, lameness on the right side, the horse drops to the left, while should the left leg show lameness, by the same rule the drop will be to the right.

Now to properly examine a horse for lameness have an assistant lead the horse by halter onto a good hard road if possible (have no blanket or harness to interfere) look at the animal from in front, all side and behind, watch him in all gaits possible, as he approaches or recedes, passes by, turns about and watch closely the dipping motion from side to side. The head, shoulder and hip will tell you much, the head dipping on the side which causes the greatest weight of body, to the right when the left fore leg and vice versa when the right is affected. If in the hind quarters the hip will tell as does the head so we may say when the horse is lame and drops to one side, look for the lame spot on the other side. Now that we have determined that the horse is lame on one side or in a certain leg, does not solve the problem by any means; the hardest part is to come. Where in the particular or suspected leg is the lame spot? This is often the trying question even to the practiced veterinarian. Of course, there are many cases where the exterior evidence is conclusive but in many and we may say the majority of cases the exact region is obscure. Of course, we have the chance to observe all the outlines, the temperature, tenderness to touch, swellings, etc. and all these are helps along the line. Still haste makes waste. Conclusions must not be too hasty. Has the foot been examined? The foot is the most sensitive part of the limb, the part more liable to injury, many times the seat of injury located elsewhere, is later, possibly too much so, found to be in the foot.

MAYOR CAHILL

NAMES MEMBERS OF INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL COMMISSION

LAWRENCE, Nov. 1.—Mayor Cahill last night appointed Max Trumppold, Michael J. Keeler, Henri Hebert and John J. O'Leary members of the Industrial school commission, and the aldermen confirmed the selections. They succeeded the late W. H. Sumners and Bernard A. Otto. Edward Ingles and David Sullivan, the city solicitor, were named as the three latter were not leaving members of the board as their appointment by the Mayor White had not been confirmed by the lower branch.

The mayor was authorized to negotiate a loan of $100,000 to meet current expenses.

ADDRESSED Y. W. C. A.

"Such Things" was the subject of a lecture by Robert Arthur Elwood, the "board walk preacher" of Atlantic City, before the Y. W. C. A. members and others last night. He said that the successful man, the educated man, the man who has been through college, but the one who from boyhood has had the faculty of "seeing things."

HITCHCOCK TO STAY

Postmaster General Will Remain in the Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Postmaster General Hitchcock will remain in the cabinet.

This statement is made on authority. President Taft is very much pleased with Mr. Hitchcock's work in reducing the postal deficit. The president desires to secure economical administration of the government and he is not going to dispense with the services of so valuable an assistant as Mr. Hitchcock.

In the future, however, Mr. Hitchcock will devote more of his time to the business of his department and less to politics.

This naturally follows the president's policy of extending the civil service as far as practicable over postmasters and other government employees. Mr. Taft will recommend in his annual message that second class and third class postmasters be put under the classified service.

The recommendation regarding second class and third class postmasters is regarded by Mr. Taft as the beginning of the extension of the classified civil service over all postmasters, collectors of customs and internal revenue and other local appropriations, which will result in an enormous reduction of the expenses of the government.

Opposition to civil service protection for these officials is expected from

Billy the Boy Artist. The cast: Billy, the Boy Artist, Angus McKinnon; Prof. G. W. Wise, a profound philosopher, Ted Vinton; Prof. I. B. Schmart, a German sage, Geo. Fisher; Clarence Chumpley, a fashionable photographer, G. F. Brown; Hen, the hired man, Robert Stevenson; Count de Chicane, a diamond dyed villain, Ed. Payne; Aunt Abby, Billy's aunt, Sybil Barrie; Maud Goldington, a summer boarder, Gertrude Huntington; Pansy Blossom, a friend, Ethel Nason; Jane, from the country, Alice Barton; Mrs. Fussy, Sarah White; Billy's dainty darling, Margaret Parr; Mabello, Evelyn Raymond; Floogie Film, Edith Grook; Gladie Mary, Marion Lapoda; Lottie, Nina Drake; Gladys, Lella Rolas; Belle, Genevieve Jewett; Sadie Suite, Jane Elton; Vera Thin, Agnes Pearl; Dottie, Edith Pearl; Elmer Moulton, of Bennett & Moulton fame, has started out with a show that promises to earn the country-wide fame of "Peck's Bad Boy" for "Billy, the Boy Artist," has it all over the "Bad Boy of Peck," for good and funny "badness" and he has assembled around him a fine and fair bunch of fun-makers. As is already known to those who read the papers, "Billy" and the other characters are taken bodily from Ed Payne's humorous creations in The Boston Sunday Globe and are given words to say and songs to sing by clever play writers and librettists. The play is far more attractive than its title would imply and the large audience that attended last evening was most favorably impressed. The company includes a pony ballet of young pretty and graceful girls, who sing and dance charmingly. They are eight in number and they are the youngest bunch in their line ever seen here. As "Billy," Angus McKinnon was a hit. He can sing, dance and paint and he does a lot of all of them. Ethel Nason helps him out and is a charming little soubrette. The other members of the cast all have a share in the general fun-making and a succession of laughs continues from curtain to curtain. There are songs galore in the play and the musical numbers were as follows:

Opening chorus—Rube Quartette.
Country Maids, Farmhands

The play will be repeated today and tomorrow and is being given at popular prices.

NEW OPERA COMPANY.

Christina Hanson, the tenor of the New Opera company which will be here on November 12th, at the Opera House, this season, creates two more roles, one in "Cockade" and the other in "Love Laughs at Lucksmiths," two of the new American operas in the repertoire of the New Opera company. Hanson, whom the Musical Courier classes as one of the greatest of the fifteen great living tenors of the world, is idolized in Berlin and is becoming popular with the American public. When he opened the Boston opera season last year he was acclaimed as a new Caruso. The critic of the Boston Herald wrote: "Hanson, the rarely gifted, has a robust voice and a strong physique, the stuff of a heroic tenor. He is a voice that is destined to be loved as few are loved."

"THE MAN ON THE BOX"

Grace Livingston Furness' play, "The Man on the Box," adapted from Harold McGrath's popular novel of the same name, is a play that is certain to provoke much laughter, and its presentation by John Mehan and a special company at the Opera House on Saturday, Nov. 5, matinee and night, will surely be the signal for the assembling of all comedy lovers. Almost everybody has read McGrath's entertaining novel and can see in its lines and situations an opportunity for a highly interesting and amusing play, and Miss Furness in dramatizing the book has made the most of her material. The play has been seen on tour with Henry E. Dixey in the title role.

The play has for plot the confusion of identities that comedy writers revel in, and the ingenuity of the novelist and the playwright has resulted in a series of complicated situations that keep the audience on the alert of expectancy and mystery. The fact that the book has been so extensively read makes the theme of the play generally well known, and it is generally conceded to be one of America's best and most successful comedies.

Seats on sale Wednesday morning.

"THE DAWN OF A TOMORROW"

Another week remains previous to Gertrude Elliott's appearance as Glad in Mrs. Burnett's curious play, "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" at the Opera House. This latest play by the author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," is somewhat difficult to describe in a few words, for it is more than dainty and whimsical—it is decided dramatic and philosophical value. It combines almost all the elements that should be in the title. The plot is a curious one in about their proper proportions, with the result that it moves and interests its auditors from start to finish. In addition it supplies its youthful star with the most delightful role she has ever had.

THEATRE VOYONS

"UPON WHAT MEAT DOETH THIS OUR CAESAR FEED THAT HE HATH GROWN SO GREAT?"

HORACE WRIGHT AND RENE DIETRICH.
"The Somewhat Different Singers," at Hathaway's Theatre.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Wright Huntington, one of the most popular actors who ever played in Lowell and who has a host of friends in this city, assisted by a competent company, is the stellar attraction at Hathaway's theatre this week. He appears in a comedy playlet entitled "A Vision of the Night," and in this play has an excellent opportunity to show his ability. He is the same Wright Huntington who was at the head of the Huntington-De Deyn Stock Co., which played in this city about five years ago. He is peculiarly adapted for the part which he plays in the sketch.

"A Vision of the Night" includes comedy and a little pathos. A humble naval lieutenant who is a student of art and is struggling in order to make a name as an artist, while visiting in Florence, Italy, has a vision which shows him the way to success. He awakens and making a sketch of the vision.

later reproduces it in oil and succeeds in having it hung in the French salon. He sees the star of fame shining brightly when suddenly a heavily veiled woman appears in his apartment and states that the woman in the painting is a likeness of her and that her brother, a fiery Corsican, had seen the painting and is now looking for the painter. The lieutenant-painter at first believes the woman to be crazy and decides to humor her, claiming that he never saw her before in his life. She removes her veil and he is startled to find that his painting is an exact likeness of her, but still contends that he never saw her before.

It is then that she explains that the vision was nothing more nor less than reality. She and her brother were stopping at the same hotel in Florence as was the painter and she was in the habit of kissing her brother, good-night. One night she became confused in the rooms and entered the room occupied by the painter and kissed him before she realized her mistake.

She explains that she is a countess and that her brother is a countess and threatens to kill the painter on sight. She advises him to flee, but he laughs the matter off. A knock comes on the door, the countess is hidden behind a screen, and when the door is opened her brother enters. He is looking for his sister; the lieutenant-jollier the infuriated Corsican along, and matters are running along nicely until the screen behind which the countess is seated is overturned and then nothing will satisfy the count but a duel. The count goes out for the swords, but in the meantime the painter and countess agree to marry, it having been a case of love at first sight, and when the count comes back and finds that a marriage is to take place in the near future he decides that he cannot kill his own brother-in-law, especially when the latter is to become famous and have plenty of money.

Mr. Huntington portrays the part of the lieutenant-painter in a capable manner, while Armand Cortes does justice to the part of the count and Miss Louise Gerold makes an excellent countess.

Horace Wright and Rene Dietrich are billed as "The Somewhat Different Singers," and they are somewhat different in every sense of the word. Both are possessed of excellent voices and sing songs in the dialect in a manner which is productive of great amusement.

Mr. Wright makes a hit in "La Donna e Mobile," while Miss Dietrich opens numbers include several opening numbers include sketch entitled "A Trip Around the World."

Vittorio and Georgetti do a novel stunt. The most of the act is carried out with two men standing on their hands.

The show comes to a conclusion with moving pictures. Performances will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

There's a fellow playing with electricity at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. His name is Dr. McDonald and he is billed as "the electrical wizard," whatever that means. The exhibition given by Dr. McDonald, and you may call him "Doc" for short, is really wonderful. He can eat electricity, and while he has never tried it he allows that he could withstand the voltage used in the process of electrocution. He doesn't know himself why it is that he can withstand so much electricity. He likes it and if he were eatable he would eat it. In his act, which is instructive and interesting, he is assisted by a young woman and she, too, is somewhat impervious to electricity. This act is the highlight at the Merrimack Square theatre this week and you ought not to miss it.

ALIDA

Miss Irene LaTour indulges in some very clever balancing and as a contortionist she is in a class by herself. She has two little dogs that take part in the act and they are just too cute for anything.

Morgan and West present a comedy that is a laugh getter. It is brimful of snappy things.

The Scenic Stock company presents a one-act play called "The Thief and the Rose," which tells of a burglar who is reformed in unusual way. It is an unusual and quite an interesting story. Mr. Mackey, as the burglar, covers the ground very well, and Miss Overton is quite as clever and pleasing as ever. Mr. Sutton took every advantage of his opportunity, while Miss Comford Marie, who appeared with the company for the first time yesterday, proved fully capable.

Miss Mae Monahan sang several songs in a sweet voice and was one of the hits of yesterday's performance. Excellent moving pictures, all new, were interspersed on the bill.

A continuous performance will be presented daily from 1 until 10:30 p. m. Beginning Thursday and for the rest of the week, films of the world's series baseball games will be on the bill.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

EMPIRE THEATRE

The bill at the Empire theatre this week is one that no lover of music should miss. The feature, musical in every way, is the Moulin Rouge orchestra of 12 men, all thorough musicians, who give an entertainment seldom enjoyed at ten times the price. Selections are given from the works of the best composers, the composers themselves being accurately impersonated, in appearance and manner by the leader, Frederick Guillaume. The rendition is perfect, and at yesterday's performance called out most favorable comment from those whom it is difficult to please in such matters. In addition to the above, there are also Mlle. Teresse, the eminent contralto and pianist in some very charming numbers, and Florence Mann, the dainty singer of illustrated songs, thereby rounding out a thoroughly enjoyable program which must be seen to be appreciated.

DIVISION 2, A. O. H.

The military organization recently formed by Division 2, A. O. H., met last night in Hibernian hall and held a well attended drill. The purpose of the formation of the company is to have it act as an escort to the division on parades. The drill proved to be a success and the manner in which the members went through the manual showed that they are very enthusiastic over the new organization.

GENERAL ALARM*For Haverhill Fire That Caused $800 Loss

HAVERHILL, Nov. 1.—A loss of $800 was caused by fire on Milling street, the most thickly populated section of the city, late yesterday afternoon. Every available piece of apparatus in the city was called out and the firemen worked for an hour before the flames were under control. The house where the fire was situated on the summit of Mt. Washington and the flames could be seen for miles. Neither Rose Bernstein nor Bertha Shapiro, occupants of the house, could account for the origin of the fire, which started in the attic and swept down through the building, gutting the upper story, while the lower floor was badly damaged by water and smoke. While returning from the fire several firemen on a ladder truck narrowly escaped injury, a job team was in collision with the truck on Currier sq. No damage resulted except a pole being broken.

JUDGE BALDWIN*Sends Tart Reply to Roosevelt's Letter on Labor Legislation

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—Judge Simeon E. Baldwin, democratic nominee for governor, sent a letter yesterday to former President Roosevelt in reply to the recent letter of the latter relating to Judge Baldwin's stand on certain labor legislation. The letter is dated at New Haven, Oct. 31, and is in part as follows:

"I have received your two answers (both undated) to my letter of Oct. 24, one written before you received it, and the other written after you had read it. 'Apparently you have misunderstood the point of my communication. In that, I referred to the fact that in a public address in New Hampshire you had charged me with holding a certain view of a point of law. I then stated that I did not hold that view and never had, and requested that you retract the charge.'

"In your first undated letter, you state that your recollection of a certain passage in your address is that you mentioned that the democratic candidate for governor of Connecticut occupied a retrograde position as to the rights of legislative bodies to interfere with what you regard as the utterly misallied liberty of laboring men and women to contract for the performance of work under conditions which jeopardized their welfare and their lives and limbs; and that the republican party, on the contrary, stood for what you regard as the only proper progressive attitude, which is that it is not competent for the workman, who may be driven by dire need to accept any employment in spite of the conditions imposed upon his acceptance, to bind himself or be bound in any way by any action of his, not to be compensated, if his wealth is damaged, or if he loses life or limb in that occupation.

"You then remark that I said in my letter to you of Oct. 24, as printed, that the view which you then stated as that of the republican party would be opposed to the settled principles of law, and that no competent lawyer could or would take it, and that to ascribe such a position to me was calculated to affect my standing as a lawyer.

How to Stop Drinking

It was formerly customary for the habitual drinker to take the pledge regularly, sometimes once a year, and sometimes in every fit of remorse that lowered his debauches, and then break it. But now it is gradually dawning on the world that pledges do not stop the habitual drinker; the nervous system of the habitual drinker is diseased and he must have treatment that will cure this condition. Orlene is sold under a positive guarantee to cure the drink habit or the money will be refunded. Can be given secretly.

"As to this, I would say that this view which you described as that of the republican party is the view which is generally taken by courts and lawyers, and was explicitly taken by me in my work on American railroad law, in a passage to which I refer you, in my letter of Oct. 24.

"I did not complain in my former letter, nor do I now, of your characterization of me as having been a retrograde judge. I am not objecting to the use of adjectives, but to misstatements of facts; misstatements, the retraction of which it is the more important to me to secure, on account of the high position which you formerly held as the first citizen of the United States.

"You have stated in public that I took the view that it was competent for the workman, when driven to accept any kind of employment, to bind himself not to be compensated, if he lost life or limb, in that occupation. I have denied that I ever took such a view. I will add that I have long been in favor of the principle of workmen's compensation acts (though not unaware of the constitutional difficulties in applying it in this country) and was nominated to the office to which you referred, by a party which called for such legislation in its platform.

"I now repeat my request, that you retract the statement of which I complain. I ask it as a matter of fairness to one to whom his reputation as a lawyer is of value, as well as in the interest of truth.

"It would seem to me that in your reference to the Hoxie case, in your second undated letter, you not only go wide of the question between us, but write under a misapprehension of the legal action. Let me state a few of those, as to which there is such a difference of opinion among any who have made the law a political study.

"A judge in deciding a case has to pronounce on a past transaction. The only question coming before him is what were the rights of the parties when that transaction took place. This must depend on the law as it then existed.

"Most of our law is what is termed the customary or common law. In generation the people make it, and add to it by common consent, as they go along. As far as, at least, as the courts recognize and apply it, it is as authoritative and binding as enacted by the legislature. There has been grown up a 'general American common law, resting upon considerations of right and justice that have been generally accepted by the people of the United States. These are of which necessarily governed the decision of the Hoxie case.

"Those rules govern most of the transactions of daily life in every generation. Perhaps an illustration may be defined as follows: Slander, which is injurious to the reputation of another. Where is this definition to be found? Not in any statute. It has been shaped by the common law, but just as authoritative as if it had been shaped by the legislature.

"The main question in the Hoxie case was whether a federal statute had altered the common law, as the statute administered in the state courts of Connecticut. That the fellow servant rule was part of this common law in Connecticut was not questioned by any of the able counsel who participated in the argument. These included some of the leaders of the Connecticut bar.

"The supreme court of errors had no rule as applicable to the case before them. It had become generally accepted as right and just in the middle of the last century by the American people. It had been recognized and applied by the supreme court of errors of Connecticut in many opinions. In none of these, written nearly fifty years ago (Burke v. Railroad, 34 Connecticut reports, 479) the court made these remarks:

"The principle relied upon by the defendants, that a master is not liable to a servant for an injury to him occasioned by the misconduct or negligence of a fellow servant, has been so often recognized both in this country and in England that it must now be considered as settled law. Two reasons are usually assigned for the rule, first, that the employee must be supposed to have contracted with reference to the perils of the business, including those which may arise from the character and conduct of his fellow employees, and second, that public policy requires that each servant should be influenced by its obligation to be not only careful of his own doings, but as watchful as possible over the acts of his associates." Farwell v. Boston & Worcester Railroad Company, 4 Met. 49.

"The justness of this reasoning has been questioned by high judicial authorities. Little Miami Railroad Company v. Stevens, 20 Ohio 435. However doubtful whether, in fact, a spinner in a factory or a fireman on a railroad ever made an examination into the condition of the machinery, the mode of conducting business, or the character and habits of the operatives, for the purpose of ascertaining of extent of his risk, as an element in calculating the proper amount of his wages. A passenger in a railroad car may well be presumed to have a vivid consciousness of his risk, but it has never been understood that he contracts with reference to it when he buys his ticket, so as to be his own insurer. Again, if a principal is responsible to an employee for his own negligence, why should he not be liable for that of his agent, over whom the employee has no control, and of whom he may have no knowledge?

"With respect to consideration of policy, it is by no means certain that the public interest would not be best served by holding the superior, with his higher intelligence, his superior means of information and his power of selecting, directing and discharging subordinates to the strictest accountability for their misconduct in his service, whoever may be the sufferer from it.

"Shortly after I came upon the case, a case arose (Nolan vs. Railroad, 70 Connecticut reports, 194), in which this same fellow servant rule was relied upon. We applied it, as we were bound to do, but with the observation that it was 'too freely established as law, by a multitude of decisions, to be now reversed or seriously modified by any exercise of the power vested in courts.'

"In order to emphasize this intimation that the rule was followed because it was settled law, a note was appended to our opinion, signed by the initials of the justice who wrote it, containing these statements, among others:

"But the evil (of the co-employee rule) is too deep seated to be remedied by judicial action; it needs radical treatment through wise legislation."

"No change having been made since then, by the legislature of Connecticut, the rule was necessarily applied in the Hoxie case. Subsequently, and on account of that decision, the federal law was altered so as to make it, in terms, applicable to actions in the state courts."

"Hoping that this letter may remove any misunderstanding of my request, and that you will conclude, that under the circumstances, it is not an unreasonable one, I am

(Signed) "Simeon E. Baldwin."

TAMMANY HALL*BRUNT OF AN ATTACK BY COL. ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Theodore Roosevelt swept almost from end to end of Manhattan last night, delivering nine speeches in behalf of Henry L. Stimson, the republican nominee for governor. At the nine stops he spoke fifteen minutes each, following close on the train of Mr. Stimson, who had preceded him with an equal number of brief campaign talks. Both made Tammany Hall the brunt of attack.

In his first address, in the heart of the east side, Mr. Stimson flung an answer to the democratic charge of republican responsibility for the high cost of living.

"I understand," he said, "that our opponents are placarding the east side with stories of the high cost of living and attributing the increased price to the republican party. The cost of living is governed by causes not altogether political, but by the laws of supply and demand. The workmen of London, Paris and Berlin are having the same complaint about high prices as in this country."

Continuing Mr. Stimson reviewed his answer to a prosecutor of law-breaking corporations while United States district attorney. He concluded this phase of the address with an attack on John A. Dix, his opponent and asked the question: "What has Mr. Dix ever done in the way of striking down

Just before Col. Roosevelt entered the hall amid a burst of cheers, Mr. Stimson concluded:

"I hear they are telling the people of the east side that Theodore Roosevelt does not care for the people of the east side and their sufferings from the high cost of living. Have they forgotten what he did for the people in the coal strike; in the matter of advocating safety appliances for labor; in the prosecution of the big corporations; for the compensation laws to protect the working man and to bring him proper compensation when he is injured? I repudiate as false any such attack on him."

Col. Roosevelt was introduced as the "greatest citizen in the world."

"After an opening thrust at Tammany Hall, he said:

"I ask for the support of the men of the east side because we are fighting your fight. We are trying to shape conditions so that every decent man can have the opportunity to show the stuff that is in him, so that any oppressed man may come healing his wounds and have the chance to bring up himself and those dependent upon him, under fair and honest treatment."

"Tammany Hall is making its appeal to all those wealthy men who seek special privileges, to those wealthy men who try to keep their money unjustly, and who are seeking to take advantages to which they are not entitled. We are fighting the worst alliance between crooked politics and crooked business that this state has seen since the days of Tweed."

At the Murray Hill lyceum, 34th street and 3d avenue, Col. Roosevelt said:

"I have not an element of power except the belief of a number of my fellow citizens that I stand for what is decent and straight, and that I want to bring nearer the day when there will be honesty and fair dealing between man and man. My power vanishes when my fellow citizens cease to believe in what is straight and honest. I can fight for you but I cannot gain the victory for you. I can point out the way, but you've got to do the fighting yourself. Now is your opportunity to take advantage of it."

Henry W. Taft also spoke at this meeting. The brother of the president said in part:

"We cannot be so blind to the fact that some of our republican friends in this city are threatening to vote for Dix in order to eliminate some body who is not himself running for any office. They seek to defeat the republican state ticket as a means of injuring Mr. Roosevelt's political future. But the consequences of such a defeat would be so far-reaching that they ought to be regarded by every thoughtful republican with the gravest concern because of its effect upon the result of the presidential election in this state in 1912."

At the other meetings Col. Roosevelt was greeted enthusiastically. He attacked Dix and Tammany Hall, praised Stimson, and pleaded for good government and a continuation of the state's progressive policies.

The colonel's voice became hoarse before his tour was over, but he stuck it out to the end.

JUDGE PARKER*ADDRESSED DEMOCRATIC RALLY
IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—Judge Alton B. Parker of New York came to this city last night to address a democratic rally, Philip Troup, son of the late Alexander Troupe, president and in introducing the chief speaker, referred to a visit of Judge Parker to Connecticut during the 1904 campaign, when he made the charge that a trust magnate was collecting funds from trusts to be turned over to the republican campaign committee for use in New York. Mr. Troup said that Judge Parker was vindicated after election.

In his speech after dealing with the tariff issue and the increased cost of living, Judge Parker discussed the subject of campaign contributions, reading from correspondence between the late E. H. Harriman and Col. Roosevelt, then president, to support his contention that corporate interests in contributing to campaign funds of the republican party expect to be paid through favorable schedules in the tariff. Mr. Parker made a plea for a federal statute which will compel publicity of campaign contributions before election and a law which will stop any president or public officer from demanding from corporations which are partially under public control, contributions to political parties.

Judge Parker congratulated the democrats in their nomination of Judge Baldwin for the governorship.

HOUR BILL

BROCKTON, Nov. 1.—The sum and substance of the labor legislation in which Governor Eben S. Draper has been intimately concerned during his two years in office was related to a large gathering of Brockton voters last night by the governor himself at a rally in Canton hall. Governor Draper explained in full his stand on the eight hour bill which he declared was unnecessary in view of the existing eight hour law. He said he had signed some 24 bills affecting the best interests of labor.

Judge Robert C. Harris discussed protection and the tariff, while Congressman G. P. Lawrence declared Massachusetts had the best all round laws of any state in the Union.
